M'ADOO ARRANGES TOUR OF THE WEST TO PUSH THE LOAN

Plans Strong Appeals to Patriotism to Loosen Nation's Purse Strings.

WILL EXPLAIN WAR NEEDS

TREASURY CIRCULAR OUT

Gives Full Details of $2,000,000,000 Offering — Party Speakers' Bureaus May Be Utilized.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The actual campaign to float the first $2,000,000,000 in bonds of the $5,000,000,000 Liberty Loan was begun today when Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo made public the official prospectus and the subscription blank, and called upon the people to show to the enemies of the United States that the country had billions which it was ready to sacrifice in the cause of freedom.

At the same time it was announced that to push the loan Secretary McAdoo would make a tour of the Middle West, beginning on May 17 at Chicago and going as far west as Denver. He will address representative audiences in some of the chief cities and bring home to the people of the Middle West the need of unanimous co-operation with the Government in making the big issue more than a success.

Mr. McAdoo will tell his audiences that the United States is not engaged in half a war, but is in a fight to the finish with autocracy, still strongly entrenched. He will appeal to their patriotism to do their part in making effective the declaration of the President that America pledges all her resources in the cause of democracy. He will seek to unloose the sucsestings of all classes so that the Liberty Loan will not only be fully subscribed, but tremendously oversubscribed, and that Germany may realize, in the words of a statement which the Secretary issued tonight, "that we have billions to sacrifice in the cause of liberty."

The Secretary will speak in Chicago on May 17; Milwaukee, May 18; St. Paul, May 19; Des Moines, May 21; Lincoln, Neb., May 22; Denver, May 23; Kansas City, May 24, and probably in other cities, for which no definite arrangements yet have been made.

Opening of the "Actual Campaign."

"With the announcement today of the details of the Liberty Loan," Mr. McAdoo said tonight, "the preliminary campaign is ended and the actual campaign has begun. There are thirty days within which the people of the United States must make good the action of Congress in pledging all the resources of the country, for the conduct of a righteous war—a war for universal liberty.

"Failure to subscribe the $2,000,000,000 required would be a confession of national impotence. I do not for a moment doubt the overwhelming success of the Ligerty Loan if the people are made to realize that no great work of this kind can be accomplished unless every one throws himself into the task with the energy and fire of determined patriotism.

"Wars cannot be conducted without money. It is the first thing to be provided. In this war it is the most immediate help, the most efective help, that we can give. We must not be content with a subscription of $2,000,000,000. We must oversubscribe this loan as an indication that America is stirred to the depths and aroused to the summit of her greatness in the cause of freedom.

"Let us not endanger success by complacent optimism. Let us not satisfy ourselves with the reflection that some one else will subscribe the required amount. Let every man and woman in the land make it his or her business to subscribe to the Liberty Loan immediately, and if they cannot subscribe themselves, let them induce somebody else to subscribe. Provide the Government with the funds indispensably needed for the conduct of the war, and give notice to the enemies of the United States that we have billions to sacrifice in the cause of liberty.

"Buy a Liberty bond today. Do not put it off till tomorrow. Every dollar provided quickly and expended wisely will shorten the war and save human life."

Wide Publicity Campaign.

The Treasury Department is planning a vigorous publicity campaign in behalf of the bond issue. This campaign may include the use of the speakers' bureaus of the two big political parties. Secretary McAdoo tonight asked for the co-operation of the newspapers in giving publicity to the Treasury's prospectus.

"I know of no more patriotic act that the newspapers might perform," he said, "than to publish this prospectus and subscription blank in full tomorrow morning. The Treasury Department has been bombarded with telegrams, telephone messages, and letters urgently requesting the very information that they contain."

Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank, and Chairman of the Publicity Committee of the New York Bankers' Liberty Loan Committee, was the one to suggest the use of the machinery of the political campaign committees to spread information. He sent this telegram to Vance C. McCormick, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee:

In connection with the work which the committee appointed by the Federal Re-

Germans Plan to Raise Ships U-Boats Sunk and Make Profit

AMSTERDAM, May 13.—The problem of salving ships sunk by submarines is solved, according to the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, which says that German naval engineers have perfected a process of raising ships from the bottom of the sea. Details are withheld, except that specially equipped salvage vessels will be employed and that they will be able to operate even in stormy weather.

The Fremdenblatt, which, as an example, puts the value of the ships sunk in February alone at what it calls the moderate figure of $180,000,000, says that the number of ships sunk and their favorable position in most cases for raising guarantees for many years after the war plenty of work and a rich profit.

BIG DAMAGE DONE IN 2 U-BOAT PORTS

Fire in Wilhelmshaven Cripples Yards, Which Are Closed to the Public.

KILLED 63 AT ZEEBRUGGE

British Destroyed Two Submarine Sheds, According to Reports in Rotterdam.

AMSTERDAM, May 13, (via London.)—For seven hours on Wednesday a great fire raged on the Imperial wharves at Wilhelmshaven, according to advices received here today. The submarine building department was seriously damaged. The entire district has been closed to the public.

Wilhelmshaven is the chief German naval station and war harbor in the North Sea and is the second largest naval base of the empire. It is situated in the Province of Hanover, on the north side of Jahde Bay. The harbor contains numerous docks and slips capable of accommodating war vessels of every description and size. In addition to eight enormous dry docks and two 35,000-ton floating docks, there are five floating docks and four pontoons for torpedo boats.

MUCH DAMAGE AT ZEEBRUGGE.

Two U-Boat Sheds Blown Up and 63 Persons Slain, it is Said.

ROTTERDAM, May 13, (via London.)—According to reports received here, the naval attack made yesterday upon the German submarine base at Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast, was the most destructive yet carried out by British warships.

Two submarine sheds were blown up. Sixty-three persons were killed and upward of 100 others were taken to hospital.

Dover Shaken by Bombardment.

DOVER, May 13.—The concussion of the bombardment at Zeebrugge was felt here and at neighboring coast places in a quite unusual manner. Windows and doors rattled sharply, although the battle was proceeding sixty miles away. The reverberations of the guns caused the belief that the heaviest naval artillery was being employed.

Among the reports of the results current locally was one to the effect that th great mole protecting Zeebrugge Harbor was badly breached. If this proves true and quick repair is impossible, the port is likely to be rendered useless by the rapid siltaing up of the sand.

LONDON, May 13.—An official statement issued this evening by the Admiralty relative to the bombardment of Zeebrugge Saturday says:

A very heavy bombardment of the important area at Zeebrugge was successfully carried out Saturday morning by a portion of our forces under orders of the Dover Vice Admiral.

The Royal Mail Air Service rendered valuable co-operation, and over fifteen aerial combats occurred in which four enemy machines were destroyed and five others were driven down out of control.

Two of our machines failed to return. One of these descended in Dutch territory and was interned.

BERLIN, May 13, (via London.)—"Enemy monitors, during foggy weather early Saturday morning shelled Zeebrugge from a great distance," says an official statement issued today by the Admiralty. "Our batteries replied. There was no loss of life. Slight material damage was done. Two enemy airplanes were shot down."

FIRST U-BOAT CHASER OFF THE WAYS HERE

110-Foot Craft, Nucleus of Fleet, Launched Five Weeks After the Keel Is Laid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The first of the new submarine chasers being built by the Government has been launched at the New York Navy Yard, according to an official announcement made tonight by the Committee on Public Information.

The keel was laid on April 1, and within five weeks the 110-foot vessel was in the water. Another chaser, begun at the New Orleans Navy Yard on April 1, is ready to be launched in the next few days.

Considerable work must be done on these vessels after they have been launched, and they will not be ready for use for a month.

Many others of the 110-foot motor craft are nearing completion and will be put into the water within a few weeks. Private builders and navy yards are rushing construction, so that a large number of the vessels may be available soon for coast patrol work and attack on submarines.

SPAIN PROTESTS TO BERLIN.

Steamer Torpedoed in Her Waters —Patrol by Destroyers.

MADRID, May 13, (via Paris.)—The Spanish Government has sent a note of protest to the German Government concerning the torpedoing of the steamer Carmen, which was sunk within Spanish territorial waters.

The Spanish Government, it is announced, will also establish a patrol by destroyers between the Cantabrian coast and France.

MONGOLIA'S SHOT CRIPPLED U-BOAT, KILLED CAPTAIN

Submarine That Stopped First Shell Fired by America in War Was Not Sunk.

PERISCOPE KNOCKED OFF

The Upper Part of the Conning Tower Also Was Much Damaged.

LEARNED BY SECRET SERVICE

Liner Reaches American Port with News—Fired at Supposed U-Boat on Way Back.

The armed American steamship Mongolia, which fired the first shot in the war on April 19 at a German submarine, arrived yesterday at an American port with the report that the shot did not sink the U-boat, as was at first supposed, but knocked away the periscope, damaged the upper part of the conning tower, and killed the commander. This change of opinion, one of the officers said, was due to the fact that three days after the Mongolia reached England the British Admiralty was informed through its secret service that a U-boat had arrived at Kiel with the periscope gone, the top section of the conning tower smashed, and the body of the commander on board, who had been killed by the shell fired from the American liner by Gunner's Mate James Goodwin of Portsmouth, Va.

The hitting of the conning tower, it was said, would account for the small cloud of vapor which ascended after the shell struck the submarine. The U-boat was sighted about 5:30 A. M. on April 19, when the sea was perfectly calm and the weather clear, ten miles south of South Foreland, in the English Channel. She was on the port side, before the beam, the officers said, and came around the stern of the Mongolia to the starboard quarter. The first shot hit the mark, and three more were fired, all from the stern gun.

On the voyage back to America the naval gunners fired a shot at what they believed might be a submarine, but did not get any tangible result. This was at midnight on May 4, in the mouth of the English Channel, when the sea was very rough. The ship was zigzagging at the time at fifteen knots, when one of the gunners aft declared there was a submarine on the port quarter. The officers on the bridge looked through their glasses and saw some shimmering object passing through the water within fifty feet of the stern, which might have been a torpedo. One shot from the stern gun was fired at some faint object about 2,000 yards away, to make sure, and the Mongolia continued her course.

On the following day something like a submarine was sighted on the surface of the sea nearly a mile away on the starboard beam with hundreds of seagulls hovering over it. The gunners were about to fire when the officer on the bridge shouted through his megaphone: "Don't shoot. It's a dead horse."

That was the final incident on the voyage home.

The committee in charge of the testimonial dinner to be given on Wednesday night at the Waldorf-Astoria in honor of Captain Emery Rice of the Mongolia announced yesterday that the speakers would be the Right Rev. C. H. Brent, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of the Philippine Islands; Willard D. Straight, Brig. Gen. H. H. Bandholtz, Melville E. Stone, and possibly Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell.

KAISER HAS TO CALL AMERICAN DENTIST

German Royalty Have Rushed to Our Tooth Doctors in Each New Crisis.

COPENHAGEN, May 13, (via London.)—Emperor William recognizes no state of war with the United States, so far as his personal comfort is concerned. This is shown by the fact that he has summoned his American dentist, Arthur Newton Davis of Piqua, Ohio, to visit him at Great Headquarters this week, and attend to the necessary repairs to the imperial teeth.

The war in general has proved toothache to be no respecter of international relations, and throughout the long months of tension between Germany and the United States the imperial and royal family and the highest officials of the State have continued to patronize their respective American dentists. Each new crisis was marked by an almost ludicrous rush of members of the royal families, Foreign Office officials, and other dignitaries to get their teeth attended to before the possible departure of the American dentists. Some of the most rabid vituperators of the United States have been mild as doves in American dental chairs.

The Emperor's personal view of the relations with the United States apparently is the official interpretation of his Government, which, in a communication regarding the continuance of the Belgian relief work, speaks not of war but of the "abandonment of neutrality" by the United States.

Along the same line is a declaration in the Reichstag Committee by Major Gen. Fredrich, who said there was no intention to intern Americans.

Contract Signed for First of 1,000 Ships In Billion-Dollar Anti-Submarine Project

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Signing of the first contract for ship construction under the Administration's billion-dollar building program was announced tonight by the Federal Shipping Board. The contract went to the Los Angeles Ship Building and Dry Dock Company, and called for delivery in 1918 of eight steel vessels, each to carry 8,800 tons of cargo.

It also was announced that the board was bargaining for 250,000 tons additional steel and wood tonnage for delivery as early as possible. Some of the wooden ships already are under construction, their builders proceeding without awaiting formal contracts.

The Shipping Board plans to have built within the next eighteen months at least 1,000 ships, steel and wood, of more than 3,000,000 aggregate tonnage, to combat the German submarine campaign. Bills to be introduced in Congress this week call for an initial appropriation of $400,000,000. Later an additional $350,000,000 will be asked, and if this is not enough still more will be sought.

"The Government," said Chairman Denman of the Shipping Board today, "is convinced that ship construction is vital to American success in the war. A billion dollars is a cheap price to pay if it turns the balance between victory and defeat. If $1,000,000,000 is insufficient more money must be spent."

Under the bills to be introduced the Government will be empowered to requisition shipyards, if necessary, to hasten construction, and in an emergency could take over the country's steel mills' output and put it into shipbuilding. Officials, however, believe the power will not have to be invoked.

The eight vessels to be built at Los Angeles will be of a standardized type, developed on the Pacific Coast, and found satisfactory as well as economical.

The board is studying four sets of plans for cargo-ship construction. The Pacific Coast plan calls for the largest vessels of the four. It is possible that all four will be adopted, and that shipyards in different parts of the country will be assigned to construct the vessels they can build cheapest and most quickly.

The ships to be built at Los Angeles will be delivered as follows: Two in May, two in June, two in September, and two in October of next year.

VIVIANI THRILLS BOSTON AUDIENCE

2,000 Dinner Guests Honor Him by Standing Through His Hour Address.

PICTURES A WORLD UNION

Hopes for a League That Will Prevent Mad Autocrats Playing Havoc with the Universe.

BOSTON, May 13.—Boston gave a warm greeting today to René Viviani, former Premier of France and head of the French War Mission to the United States. The distinguished visitor, coming a day after the city had outstretched its arms to Marshal Joffre, was feasted, toasted, and cheered by thousands.

Despite a cold, drizzling rain that fell all day, M. Viviani and his party were taken through streets decorated with the colors of France, Great Britain, and the United States, and were applauded enthusiastically wherever they went.

Welcomed by Governor McCall, Mayor Curley, and other State and city officials, the French statesman later was the centre of a reception in the Boston Public Library. A visit to the home of A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University, and to the Widener Memorial Library of that institution, and another reception and dinner at the Boston City Club completed the list of functions for the day.

M. Viviani and his party, which included the Marquis de Chambrun and General Vignal, Military Attaché at the French Embassy in Washington, arrived here from Ottawa a little after 9 A. M. They were met at the station by William L. Phillips and Warren H. Robbins, of the State Department, and local officials and were driven to the home of Dr. Henry F. Sears, in Beacon Street. After a morning of rest, M. Viviani and his party were the guests of Governor McCall at a luncheon in the Sears home.

Speaks at the Public Library.

The visit to the Public Library was the first public event on the day's program. Speaking from the grand stairway to an audience that filled every available foot of space, M. Viviani said that he had never been alarmed over the neutrality of the United States.

"I knew in my heart," he said, with emphasis, "that your great country could not contemplate the slaughter of innocents, the burning of cathedrals, and other outrages without throwing in your lot with France and her allies."

He pleaded for "spiritual union across the sea," which he said would forever safeguard the principles of true democracy. The present war, he said, must be a fight to the finish, and there must be only the thought of victory in the minds of all the allies. If a German victory were possible, he added, the free peoples of the world, those of America included, would be reduced to "servitude and slavery."

After leaving the library, members of the mission paid a short visit to the local headquarters of the American Fund for French Wounded. They were then driven to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, where they viewed the work of the Surgical Dressings Committee. Then a flying trip was made to Cambridge, and M. Viviani called at the home of President Lowell. He expressed regret at being unable to be at the university yesterday to receive the honorary degree which was to have been conferred upon him.

The visitors' day closed with a reception and dinner at the City Club and an address in the great auditorium by M. Viviani, which evoked a demonstration that the speaker declared would be one of the pleasantest memories of his mission to America. Encouraged, evidently, by the realization that a very large percentage of his 2,000 auditors followed his French without difficulty, M. Viviani spoke for nearly an hour.

The City Club established two precedents today. It gave a dinner to a guest on Sunday, and the audience stood on their feet throughout his address. The only smile that lightened the grave face of the orator broke when at the conclusion of his address the presiding officer called for a "rising vote" of thanks. When the laughter had ceased a show of hands was substituted. Always sympathetic, his hearers in sev-

BALFOUR VISITS COL. ROOSEVELT

AT SAGAMORE HILL 4 HOURS

No Hint Given as to Matters Discussed—Commission Returns to Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., May 13.—Arthur J. Balfour, accompanied by his Parliamentary Secretary, Ian Malcolm, paid a four-hour visit to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon at Sagamore Hill, staying for high tea, which in the Roosevelt menage takes the place of dinner on Sunday evening. More than usual interest was attached to the visit from the fact that Mr. Balfour had lunched, after attending religious services at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York this morning, at the town residence of Colonel E. M. House. But no information was forthcoming as to what was said by the British statesman with either of the Americans concerning issues of the time.

It was admitted at Sagamore Hill that the war had been mentioned in the course of conversation, and the surmise was that the Colonel's plan for taking volunteers to France came in for consideration, but no details were announced. The trip was the result of an invitation given by Mr. Roosevelt, who was already fairly well acquainted with Mr. Balfour, at the Mayor's dinner at the Waldorf on Friday night.

Mr. Balfour and his secretary left the residence of Vincent Astor at about 4:30 o'clock. They were escorted to the city limits by motor cycle policemen, and all the way to and from Oyster Bay by three cars full of Secret Service men under Chief William J. Flinn and Captain John Henry.

The party reached Sagamore Hill about 6 o'clock, and Colonel Roosevelt took Mr. Balfour for a trip over the estate, which is bright with the green of Spring, before they went in to the evening meal. The only other guest was the Colonel's son, Quentin, who has just enlisted as a private in the aviation corps of the regular army, and is now about to take instruction at Mineola.

Mr. Balfour and Colonel Roosevelt have met twice before, both times in London. The first occasion was in 1910, after the Colonel's return from his African hunt, and the second in 1914, when he made a brief stay in England after going to Madrid to attend the marriage of his son Kermit.

One of the matters recalled today was that on this trip the Colonel had told Mr. Balfour of a Scotch engineer on the steamer which brought the Colonel back from Brazil earlier in the year, who used to discuss metaphysics and theology with him and displayed a number of newspaper clippings of the Gifford lectures which Mr. Balfour had delivered at the University of Glasgow in 1913 and 1914.

Mr. Balfour told the Colonel that he had remembered the incident and had sent the engineer a copy of the lectures when they were published in book form under the title of "Theism and Humanism" in the following year. But how largely theology and metaphysics occupied the conversation it was impossible to learn; certainly, however, Colonel Roosevelt was highly pleased with the visit, and he said afterward that he was very much delighted by the episode.

General Bridges to Stay a While.

Lieut. Gen. G. T. M. Bridges and the officers of his staff will remain in New York for several days, staying at the Plaza, but the other members of the party have returned to the capital. Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, left yesterday afternoon and the others at midnight over the Pennsylvania Railroad on a special train.

The train will make no stops between here and the capital. The station runway was lined by fifty uniformed policemen, and a detachment of detectives was

KORNILOFF RESIGNS AS COMMANDER OF PETROGRAD ARMY

BRUSILOFF WARNS NATION

COUNCIL GRASPING POWER

Communicating by Telegraph Directly with Foreign Governments and Organizing the Provinces.

PETROGRAD, May 13.—General Korniloff, commander of the Petrograd garrison, resigned today. The General explained to an interviewer that his resignation was due to an impossible position arising from the efforts of various organizations to control the garrison, and added: "Well, then, let them take the responsibility."

The last straw which led to the commander's resignation was the demand made yesterday by the executive committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies that all Korniloff's orders should be presented to the committee for its indorsement. General Korniloff will go to the front to command one of the armies.

Addressing a congress of delegates of the field army Minshiviki Tseretelli, member of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, declared that the German and Austrian proletariat had not yet emerged from the state of chauvinistic intoxication into which they had been plunged by Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the Imperial German Chancellor, and the imperialist bourgeoisie.

"As long as the German proletariat marches with Emperor William," said the speaker, "our position is clear. Should we now stretch a fraternal hand toward the peoples of Central Europe to conclude a separate peace it would be an eternal shame which would lead inevitably to the downfall and annihilation of Russia. We will not seek to break our engagements with our allies. On the contrary we will do our utmost that the alliance arranged by the bourgeoisie shall be more solidly cemented by the fraternal union of the allied democracies."

Brusiloff Deplores Conditions.

LONDON, Monday, May 14.—The Times Odessa correspondent, telegraphing under date of May 9, says a great impression has been created by a recent speech of General Alexis Brusiloff, Commander in Chief of the Russian armies on the southwestern front, complaining of the serious shortcomings of the army and deploring the agitation for a premature peace, the relaxation in discipline, the number of desertions from the army, and the tendency of the Russian soldiers to fraternize with the enemy.

General Brusiloff, says the correspondent, declared that the enemy had tempted the Russian soldiers by offering them vodka and had tried to deceive them with proclamations. He added that the desertions were having a baneful influence in the army's rear, along the railroads, and in villages, and that if the lack of discipline was continued it must entail the ruin of Russia.

General Korniloff, who has now resigned, was in command of the Petrograd district at the time the Imperial Government was overthrown and personally placed under arrest the former Empress Alexandra, who was residing at the Tsarskoe-Selo Palace.

In an order issued May 6 General Korniloff warned the inhabitants of Petrograd that a German attack on the capital was impending by way of Libau, and directed the reorganization of reserve elements to defend the city. Following the publication of this order the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates requested the Kronstadt, Tsarskoe-Selo, Krasnoselo, Peterhof and other garrisons around Petrograd not to send troops into the capital without a written request from the Executive Committee.

STRAIGHT TALK TO COUNCIL.

French Munitions Minister Tells What France Expects of Russia.

PETROGRAD, May 13. — Albert Thomas, French Minister of Munitions, was received yesterday afternoon by the Executive Committee of Workmen's and Soldier's Deputies and invited to explain his point of view on the present political situation, on the war and on the actions of international Socialism.

In a speech which lasted more than two hours, M. Thomas indicated what French public opinion expected from new Russia. He said France was at times uneasy regarding the assistance which Russia might lend. The hopes of the French democracy were that the new Russia would help France unreservedly.

M. Thomas then analyzed the mistakes French Socialists might make regarding the ideas of Russian Socialists and vice versa. It was necessary, he said, to find bases and conditions on which common action could be taken. He explained why the majority of French So-

Powerful Bomb Discovered in Kaiser's Palace, Paris Hears

PARIS, May 13.—An infernal machine was discovered recently in the Bellevue Palace in the Tiergarten in Berlin, where the Imperial German family is now residing, according to a correspondent who sends German news to L'Humanité. The machine, he says, contained enough dynamite to wreck the palace and the adjoining buildings.

"It is probable the German Government will declare this news 'a pure invention,'" says the correspondent. "Nevertheless, I can affirm that my information is accurate."

BETHMANN CLASHES WITH HINDENBURG

Said to Have Threatened to Resign if Kaiser, at General's Urging, Blocked Reforms.

HURRIED TRIP TO VIENNA

May Shun Peace Statement In Reichstag Speech Tomorrow —His Foes Still Busy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 13.—The annexationist press of Berlin suggests that the Chancellor made his recent trip to Army Headquarters to offer his resignation, in view of his impossible position between the batteries of the Conservatives and Socialists. The Tageblatt says that if anything of the sort happened the resignation was not accepted.

According to the story current in Reichstag circles, what happened was this: The Kaiser, Junkers, and militarists were alarmed by the radically democratic recommendations of the Reichstag Committee on Constitutional Reforms, Hindenburg being especially infuriated by the attempt of the committee to gain some Parliamentary control of the Army and Navy. Hence the Kaiser proposed to nullify all the committee's proposals by closing the session of the Reichstag instead of merely adjourning the House. This would mean that all the committee work of the House would have to be done over again in a new session, and thus the reactionaries would gain six months.

It is said that Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg urgently warned against the consequences of such a measure, threatened to resign if it were taken, and finally carried his point.

The German press now asserts that the Chancellor will address the Reichstag on Tuesday, giving a general outline of his views on the military and political situation, doubtless formulated during the conversations which he had at Headquarters with the Kaiser and Field Marshal von Hindenburg. According to these forecasts he will not, however, enter into a discussion of the Socialist and Conservative interpellations on the subject of peace, only making a short formal statement and practically requesting the postponement of this discussion until July. It is understood that he will have a majority of four or five votes in favor of such a postponement.

VIENNA, Monday, May 14. (via Amsterdam to London.)—Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg had luncheon on Sunday with Emperor Charles and Empress Zita. Later he dined with Count Czernin, the Foreign Minister, and started on his return for Berlin in the evening.

The discussion which the Chancellor started with Count Czernin will soon be continued in Berlin.

Berlin Thinks Chancellor Secure.

BERLIN, May 13, (via London, May 14.)—While the balting of the Imperial Chancellor is going on, the events of the last forty-eight hours would seem to indicate that Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg's position continues secure. The Chancellor returned from a hurried visit to Great Headquarters Saturday and departed the same night for Vienna, after having spent the day conferring with the Reichstag party leaders concerning the interpellations on Germany's war aims.

Both his visit to Great Headquarters and his trip to the Austrian capital were made in connection with the Chancellor's declaration covering the war aims, which he will submit to the Reichstag on Tuesday. Both the Government and the middle-of-the-road parties are desirous of avoiding an extensive or acrimonious debate, and representatives of the latter will unite in a joint statement or present independent coinciding declarations.

It is contended that the Chancellor holds enough strong cards in the present military situation, the success of the U-boats, the record sixth war loan, and the improvement in the food situation, to beat off his opponents who have been at his heels for months.

Bethmann's Foes Still Active.

COPENHAGEN, May 13, (via London.)—The latest direct advices received here from Berlin confirm the impression that a vigorous campaign is being waged to compass the downfall of Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg.

The movement has shown such strength that there was much speculation, when the news of the Chancellor's trip to Great Headquarters became known Friday, whether he would return as Chancellor or as a private individual. The friends of Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, however, were absolute-

BRITISH ADVANCE OUTPOSTS NORTH OF BULLECOURT

BRITISH ALSO ENTER ROEUX

Capture Western Part of Town After Successful Attacks Nearby Yesterday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, May 13.—While the British were fighting north and south of the Scarpe an attack was made yesterday morning by the English and Scots at Bullecourt, supported by the Australians on their flank. The English and Scottish troops advanced from the south and west and drove forward through the village, establishing themselves first on the road which runs through the centre of the ruins and then going forward again to a line at the extreme north of the village, from which they have pushed out posts.

The place is a rabbit warren of tunnels, in which there may still be Germans holding out, cut off from all chance of escape. When the British got through the enemy seemed to run up these tunnels, hoping to get away to Riencourt, but by this time the Australians had just come up and captured a crowd of them numbering two officers and over 180 men, bayoneting a number who refused to surrender and fought like tigers.

German Attacks Futile.

This morning at 3:30 the German artillery put a heavy barrage on the northeast end of the village and launched an attack, which was immediately smashed by gunfire. Only twelve men came within bombing distance, and of these nine were killed outright, while three men have since died from wounds after being taken prisoners. An hour later another German attack was dispersed by the British guns, and this time twenty men broke through. All of them were killed except one, and that one I saw standing alone in a great prisoners' camp this afternoon—a melancholy figure.

It was English troops of the south country who entered Bullecourt, together with some Scottish troops who have attacked the place before and heroically endured an enormous shellfire and an intense gunfire. Little bodies of them entered the village and stayed there, isolated for several days, one group of five, I believe, having been rescued yesterday.

The history of this fighting at Bullecourt is, however, inseparably bound up with the Australian troops who broke through the Hindenburg line to the right of this village and held on to their positions with amazing and splendid courage, although they were utterly exposed on their left and subjected to at least a dozen counterattacks in considerable force, preceded and followed by severe shelling. As I heard all the narrative of this among the Australians today the tragedy of it all—for there were many tragic hours—seemed to me as great as the glory of it, but through all the record of this ten days shines the spirit of the Australian youth, those long-limbed boys of the Southern Cross, who would not retreat from the places they gained, who held an almost impossible position, defended it against fierce attacks from all sides, and gave themselves more elbow room for fighting by bombing further eastward down the Hindenburg line while their wounded were carried down behind the lines.

Australians Were Almost Hemmed In.

They were so surrounded by the enemy, because Bullecourt village was not yet taken, that their machine guns had to fire northward, westward, and eastward. From each of those directions came heavy counterattacks, the enemy striking down from Queant and out of Bullecourt itself, so that the Australians were threatened on their flank. All these attacks were repulsed by machine-gun fire and trench mortars and gunfire, and for ten days other masses of field-gray men came forward shooting, but only once did they cause a slight withdrawal from a front trench of the Hindenburg line, and only once did they penetrate the Australian ranks. It was May 6, and immediately a fierce bayonet attack drove the enemy out with great loss.

All this time there was perfect liaison between the artillery and infantry, and, although the gunners were working under a frightful strain day and night, with storms of explosives searching for their batteries, they were marvelously quick to get on to their living targets during those repeated counterattacks, and broke up the enemy's massed troops again and again.

All Australian officers pay high and touching tribute to the work of their stretcher bearers, who were superb in courage and self-sacrifice. I have seen the ground they had to cross, and I know the evil and peril of it, but they went forward with the infantry and day after day crossed this country in the open with their heavy burdens, never stopping to glance at the bursting shells on either side of them, regardless of their own lives so that they could save their comrades. Unfortunately, the enemy did not respect ambulances, although they could clearly see the sign of the Red Cross, but sniped them continually with shells and shrapnel bullets, as well as stretcher parties which had more faith in German chivalry and for that reason walked deliberately in the open, so that they could not be mistaken. The percentage of mortality among these men is rather higher than that of the infantry themselves, and that is proof of their supreme valor.

All those Australians are wonderfully careless of shell fire and it is characteristic of all of them that today when an escort of four brought down 150 prisoners it was the prisoners who were made to walk down the communication trench while the escort of four walked alongside on the top with crumps falling on either side. Casual fellows, but great soldiers, as all the British agree.

It is good to know the British are in Bullecourt, for many men have fallen in the previous fighting there.

British Success at Roeux.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Saturday, May 12.—Two actions fought before last evening's dusk gave the British some ground and some ruins, which they had before and had lost and taken again and lost again in very bloody fighting, and now hold at last so strongly that they await German counterattacks not with horrible anxiety, but with grim expectation. Those two positions are about Roeux, just north of the Scarpe, and at Cavalry Farm beyond Guémappe.

To the German staff the taking of these two places by the British means the failure of all their great sacrifice of men, and the loss of observation posts of high advantage to them. To the British staff it means, I imagine, a sigh of relief that two points for which the British troops had struggled so long, with the ebb and flow of fortune, have been regained so easily, for that was how it happened, and organized so rapidly in defensive that the men are confident of holding them against all assaults. Three hundred and fifty prisoners were taken around the chemical works by the English troops, most of them Brandenburgers, and they were cowering in cellars and tunnels waiting until the storm of high explosives overhead should liberate them in time to rush up and meet the attackers with their machine guns. They did not get that minute or two. The British soldiers were too quick behind the shell fire, and down among them before they could use their weapons. Today in a long, dusty column of field-gray men, with the bright sun shining on their steel helmets, they marched down behind the British lines into the quiet countryside of France, white with apple blossoms, and I dare say most of them greatly pleased at their luck.

In and around the cemetery of Roeux where graves have been opened by shell fire and the old dead lie among the new dead, the Bavarian garrison of the tunnels below came up to the earth in time to challenge the British, and fought ferociously. It was a fight to the death and it was the Bavarians who died.

A queer thing happened in the sky above both here and further south, near Guémappe. As I have said, the battle took place just before dusk, and it was at an hour when all British aircraft fly home to roost after lone journeys of adventure over the German lines, some of them with holes in their wings and some with broken wires, to the valley of the Cojeul River, below Guémappe, last evening at this time I watched these homecoming flyers, beautiful as swallows, as they skimmed high in the blue fields of air above white cloud mountains. They had earned their rest, but did not take it. They saw fighting down below, British troops advancing in open order, and Germans coming out to meet them. These droves of airplanes did not continue their homeward flight. They swooped low and circled around like hawks, dropping the last of their ammunition and sweeping the enemy positions with the swish of machine-gun bullets. Men of the air fought with men of the earth in the glow of sunset light, which was rich and warm over these battlefields.

South of the river the fighting was on a smaller scale around Guémappe, by Cavalry Farm, and there, more than once, Scottish troops were in and out of the ruins, holding advanced posts under violent bombardments and against fierce counterattacks, until they could hold out no more. Again the Scots were among those who went forward last evening and retook the place, routing out the garrison and sending back ten enemy machine guns and ten prisoners. I happened to be looking at Guémappe when the attack started, and I could see of it was a body of troops moving forward in artillery formation across a slope north of the Cojeul River and all the British batteries winking and blinking as suddenly after some hours of slow firing from this battery or that they all turned to a quick and fierce chorus. The enemy's artillery had been vicious all afternoon, flinging over great numbers of heavy shells, 5.9's, for the most part, but with great weights among them. They were concentrating on the crest of the ridge above Wancourt, Henin, and Heninel, and long-range guns were firing in a wild, aimless way over the quiet fields and ruined villages miles back, strange and wonderful war! Through all this tumult of shells horribly near to their bursting points a military band was playing. It was playing merry tunes as in a country fair where Maytime lovers dance.

BRITISH TAKE PART OF ROEUX VILLAGE

Heavy Fighting North of the Scarpe Enables Them to Make Important Progress.

LONDON, May 13.—The British appear to have an unshakable grip on the villages of Bullecourt and Roeux, east of Arras. The War Office announced tonight that General Haig's troops have captured most of Bullecourt, after establishing themselves yesterday in the village. This village, standing within the Hindenburg line, has been the scene of some of the hottest fighting on this front. The Australians held out here for ten days, repulsing more than a dozen strong counterattacks in that period. The Australians also hold a slice of the Hindenburg line between Bullecourt and Queant. Here two German assaults were repulsed today with considerable losses to the attackers.

North of the Scarpe the British have seized the western part of the village of Roeux and have improved their positions on the western slopes of Greenland Hill.

The text of the report issued this evening follows:

Early this morning the enemy made two further counterattacks upon our positions in the Hindenburg line east of Bullecourt. In both cases his attacking troops were repulsed and left a number of dead in front of our trenches.

During the last ten days the Australian troops have gallantly maintained their positions in this sector of the Hindenburg line, having during that period repelled at least twelve determined hostile counterattacks. The greater part of the village of Bullecourt, which lies in the Hindenburg line, is now in our hands.

North of the Scarpe our troops established themselves during the day in the western houses of Roeux, and again made progress on the western slopes of Greenland Hill, capturing a few prisoners.

Five German airplanes were brought down in air fighting yesterday; five others were driven down out of control. One other hostile machine was shot down in our lines by our anti-aircraft guns. Six of our airplanes are missing.

The early statement said:

There were patrol encounters last night northwest of St. Quentin and northeast of le Verguier. Casualties were inflicted on the enemy, and our posts were advanced at certain points.

Fighting continues at Bullecourt. We advanced our lines slightly during the night south of the Scarpe and improved our position on the Western slopes of Greenland Hill, north of the river, capturing a few prisoners.

Early in the night a hostile counter-attack east of Roeux Cemetery was repulsed. We took fifty prisoners.

ADMIT ADVANCE AT ROEUX.

Germans, However, Say "Great British Attack" Broke Down.

BERLIN, May 13, (via London.)—The great British attacks launched yesterday against the German positions on the Arras battlefront, says the official statement issued today by the German Army Headquarters Staff, have broken down. At Roeux the British were successful in forcing their way through the German lines, but at all other places they were repulsed after hand-to-hand fighting, suffering the heaviest losses. Fighting for possession of Bullecourt again broke out today.

The text of the statement reads:

The great attacks of the English have broken down. After very strong artillery preparation, which extended throughout the whole battlefield of Arras, from Lens to Queant, the English in the early morning attacked the lines between Gavrelle and the Scarpe, astride the Arras-Cambrai Road, and near Bullecourt. At Roeux they were successful in forcing an entry, but at all other points they were repulsed by our fire and hand-to-hand fighting, and sustained the heaviest losses. In the evening several fresh attacks were made on both sides of Monchy. These likewise broke down with sanguinary losses.

The advantages which the English succeeded in obtaining at Bullecourt were again wrested from them by powerful counterthrusts of a guard battalion. Further fighting again broke out today at the village.

Front of the German Crown Prince—While north of the Aisne the artillery duel has become quieter at times on the Aisne-Marne Canal and in Champagne toward the east as far as Tahore, it has been of greater intensity. A French night attack on both sides of the Corbeny-Pontavet Road was without success.

The enemy yesterday lost fourteen airplanes in aerial encounters and three airplanes which were shot down by anti-aircraft fire. A French aviator was compelled to make a forced descent behind our lines.

The supplementary official report from headquarters this evening reads:

There was lively firing near Arras. Local advances by the British against Oppy Park and Bullecourt failed.

On the Aisne and Champagne fronts the situation is unchanged.

FRENCH SHELL FOE'S LINES.

Break Up Strong German Attacks on Aisne and in Champagne.

PARIS, May 13.—The French continue to direct a heavy fire on the German positions along the Aisne and south of St. Quentin. The only infantry fighting of the day developed this morning, when the Germans delivered violent attacks on the Craonne Plateau, north of Rheims, and in the region of Maisons de Champagne. The French artillery and machine guns broke up these attacks, inflicting heavy losses on the Germans.

The text of the afternoon statement from the War Office follows:

Lively activity was shown by the artillery of both sides in the course of the night between the Somme and the Oise, as well as on the Aisne front.

This morning the enemy delivered violent attacks on the Plateau of Craonne, north of Rheims, and in the region of Maisons de Champagne. All these attacks were broken up by our artillery and infantry fire, and the Germans were pushed back, after suffering heavy losses. We made some prisoners.

In the region of Verdun we executed a surprise attack, which was entirely successful and which procured for us a number of prisoners. On the rest of the front the night was calm.

The statement issued this evening says:

The day was comparatively calm on the whole front. There was no infantry action. Our artillery continued to shell the enemy works and organizations. The German artillery replied feebly.

GERMAN WOMEN EAGER FOR PEACE

Miss M. Z. Doty Says Germany Has Failed to Care for Mothers and Children.

REVOLUTION SEEMS LIKELY

People Don't Realize We Are Fighting Their Government and Not Them.

Miss Madeleine Z. Doty who made a personal study of social conditions in Germany last Fall, said last night at the Open Forum of the Church of the Ascension that if the German people could be made to realize that the United States aimed not at them, but at their Government, it would hasten a revolution in Germany, and end the war. She said that the people of Germany, especially the women, wanted peace, and that a revolution was sure to take place sooner or later. Miss Doty's subject was "Women and Children in War Times in Germany."

"It is hard for you to realize," she said, "the sufferings of the women and children of the warring countries of Europe, especially of Germany. There the women have nothing to say about affairs. There is no woman suffrage there. True it is that there is no woman suffrage in France, but there the women have always had a say about things, because they share with men the responsibilities of business and other activities. But in Germany the women have nothing to say and theirs has been a sorry lot.

"The milk situation is very serious for the babies. Last August I stopped at one of the best hotels in Berlin and could get only a few drops of milk for breakfast. The supply was stopped in September. Think of what this must mean as to the situation among poor people. The allowance was officially made of one pint of milk a day for each baby. That, of course, is not enough, and often the supply gave out before mothers, who had to work all day in munition factories, could get it. Thousands of babies became weak and ill-nourished. This sickness the mothers called 'English sickness,' because the German authorities taught them to blame the English that there was no milk.

"I had some money from charitable sources and I started out to see if I could not supply milk for some babies. Cows could not be bought, so I set out to get some goats. One rich German consented to sell us some goats at $37.50 each, their normal price being $5.50.

"The officials of the Red Cross were visibly distressed over the situation. I asked them if they would consent to the chartering of ships and the taking of some thousands of starving German babies to America. They thanked me for my thoughtfulness, but said that the attitude of the German authorities was adamant against the proposal—German babies must remain in Germany, must be raised in Germany, they said. On the other hand, the mothers were most enthusiastic over the suggestion.

"The women are doing the most arduous work in Germany. I saw them laying railroad tracks by the side of Russian prisoners. They are doing the greater part of the work in factories. In one munition plant 6,000 persons were employed; 4,000 of these were women, 1,500 with babies. The women had little experience and there are many accidents. Incidentally the women do the work well after getting used to it, but they get only half the pay of men doing the same tasks.

"The women all through Germany are eager for peace. They all want peace. There are many peace meetings being held all through Germany, for the conservative Social Democrats are allowed to hold them, provided they ask for no more than a peace based on the status quo of Germany."

Miss Doty told of a peace meeting in Munich she attended one night, where there were as many soldiers as there were women, at which almost everybody voted for peace, and the women cheered the advice to have no more children until they knew that they would not be "food for cannon."

"The Government of Germany has failed to care for its women and children, and that is one of the basic grounds of the discontent there. That the people of Germany, and especially the women, want peace there can be no doubt."

Miss Doty told of a vision she had of Colonel Roosevelt taking his division to France, embarking a force in airships, taking them into Germany, and striking at the Kaiser and Hindenburg. She said that if the Colonel could do such a thing he would accomplish the greatest thing an American could accomplish in the war.

ITALIANS PREPARING DRIVE ON THE CARSO

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 13.—Everything goes to show that important developments are about to occur on the Carso front, where activity is most intense on both sides. The Italian artillery has begun the work of complete destruction of the enemy's lines, while the struggle on land is rivaled by that in the air, where all kinds of aircraft dot the sky with puffs of smoke from their explosives.

Even on the Italian front the Austrians show their lack of humanitarian principles by bombarding hospitals, although these are provided with all the signs established by the Red Cross Convention, and also undefended peasant hamlets. The Italians confine their bombing operations to military posts, bringing back photographs of the damage caused, so that the Austrians cannot deny it.

ROME, May 13.—Today's War Office statement says:

The artillery activity continued normal yesterday in the Trentino and Carnio regions, but was considerably livelier on the Julian front from Tolmino to the sea. Our fire caused explosions and fires in the enemy lines. Enemy batteries caused slight damage to some buildings in Gorizia.

In skirmishes on the heights east of Vertoibizza Torrent we captured a dozen prisoners, including an officer.

Hostile aircraft dropped bombs on Isola Mormosini and other localities on the lower Isonso, killing a civilian.

VIENNA, May 13.—An official statement issued today by the Austrian War Department says:

Italian Theatre — Isonzo Army.—Along the whole front between Tolmino and the sea the enemy was active with artillery and mine throwers. Our fire was directed through the entire night, and still continues. Our artillery replied successfully.

280 MORE AGITATORS ON WAY TO RUSSIA

Germany, Giving Them Free Transportation, Urges Them to Work for Separate Peace.

ASSURES REICHSTAG AID

Reports of a Willingness To Enter Later Conventions to Insure Peace of the World.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, May 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—The railway station at Zurich yesterday was the rendezvous for the departure of 280 Russian agitators, including the woman leader Angelica Balabanoff. They are traveling under German patronage, as did thirty-two members of the Lenine delegation, and were seen off by members of the German Consulates in Switzerland. The train will convey them through German territory on the way to Russia. It is understood they are to carry out a mission which has the full approval and encouragement of the German Government. Their message is:

"1—That Germany, which has the fullest confidence in the new free Russia, which has promised freedom to all nationalities under Russian sway, is prepared to offer peace to the Russian people without interfering with its internal affairs.

"2—The German Government repeats its offer of Dec. 12 to enter peace negotiations on the conditions therein declared.

"3—The German Government is assured of having the support of a great majority of the Reichstag in making these offers.

"4—Germany is not opposed, once these peace conditions are accepted, to enter into international agreements or a convention of nations to assure the future peace of the world."

The departure of the mission was prepared by the Russian revolutionary Socialist, Platten, whose German name alone betrays his origin and sympathies, and who formed part of the delegation of Lenine, but was not permitted to enter Russian territory.

The German Government has permitted him again to travel freely through Germany to Switzerland, and at Zurich Platten became busy encouraging all Russian political refugees, former police agents, spies, revolutionists, and alleged Socialists to accept the German offer of free transportation. The motley deputation of 280 members, all traveling under the red banner, was thus collected.

RUSSIA WILL BUILD SIXTY NEW RAILWAYS

Commission Is Coming Here to Buy Equipment, Costing Nearly a Billion Dollars.

Alexander Bottari, representative of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in Russia, has returned from Petrograd with large orders for steel rails and other materials signed by the representatives of the new Government.

"The first thing decided upon by the Duma," said Mr. Bottari, who is a naturalized American of Russian birth, "is the construction of sixty new railroads to open up various districts in Russia, and the funds have been found already to build fifteen of these lines. A commission has been appointed to come to the United States and buy 2,000 locomotives and 40,000 freight cars. The entire equipment for the railroads will cost nearly a billion dollars and will be bought in this country.

"I cannot say what the Root Commission to Russia will accomplish, but I am sure its members will be received with open arms. The Russian people recognize America as the leading republic, and are grateful to President Wilson for his recognition of their new Government. Anything from America is looked upon as the right thing in Russia today.

"I do not think there is any danger of serious trouble of any kind in Petrograd so long as the soldiers remain faithful to General Brusiloff and the other chiefs in the army. In my opinion the worst is over, and if the soldiers remain faithful, there will be no more anarchy in Russia.

"I think Russia will undoubtedly become a republic, but lots of things may take place before the great meeting of delegates, which is to be held in Petrograd in six months.

"The Duma will remain in control of affairs in Russia as long as General Brusiloff is able to give the members his support.

"The Grand Duke Nicholas is liked by soldiers of the army of the Caucasus, but he will not receive a command again because the other Generals say that he is too arbitrary.

"The late Czar and his family will reside in his former palace on the banks of the Neva at Petrograd, which, instead of being called the 'Czar's Palace,' is now called 'the soldiers' palace.' After the war Nicholas may be allowed to go to England, where all his money was sent before the war. He will get nothing from the vast estates which he held in Russia."

RUSSIANS LOSE AIRPLANES.

One Huge Machine with Crew of Six Falls 9,000 Feet.

PETROGRAD, May 13, (British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—Five Russian officers and one private lost their lives yesterday when a big airplane in which they were flying fell to the ground at Monasterzyska, northeast of Stanislau, in Galicia, from a height of 9,000 feet, says the official statement issued today by the Russian War Department. The text of the statement follows:

Western, (Russian,) and Rumanian Fronts—There were exchanges of fire, scouting reconnoissances, and aerial engagements.

Caucasian Front — Southwest of Gumushkane Turks, about a company strong, attempted to take the offensive. They were repelled by our fire.

Aviation—A German airplane landed in the region of the town of Nailbok, in the direction of Novogrudok, and was captured.

In the region of Monasterzyska one of our Ilya Morometz airplanes, owing to an unknown cause, fell from a height of 3,000 yards. The commander, Lieutenant Lavroff, and crew of four officers and one private perished.

In the region of Stanislavoff one of our airplanes fell. The pilots Katchioni and Fesino were killed.

BERLIN, May 13, (via London.)—"Two Russian motor boats," says an official statement issued by the German Admiralty, "appeared today at the entrance to Riga Bay. We fired on them, sinking one and severely damaging the other."

ly sure that the Chancellor still possessed the full confidence of the Emperor, despite the efforts of the Pan-Germans and Conservatives to harass him on the question of electoral reforms and particularly on his failure to express a stern nonpossumus on the proposal of the Reichstag Constitutional Committee to change the method of the appointment of army and navy officers on the ground that it was undermining the throne and endangering the future of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg himself, according to stories circulating in Berlin, did not take the movement against him altogether lightly and was credited with the remark that if his opponents drove him out they would only put Count von Bernstorff, former Ambassador to the United States, in his place. The position of Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, Vice Chancellor and Foreign Secretary, is described also as shaky, the Mexican affair having undermined the confidence of the Reichstag and of his progressive sponsors in his qualifications for the post of Chancellor. But it is difficult at this distance to judge the amount of truth behind this report and that of Count von Bernstorff's candidacy.

The Pan-German Hamburger Nachrichten, discussing rumors concerning Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, says the Bethmannites were expecting the Chancellor to return from Headquarters not only with a renewed expression of the Emperor's confidence, but with some tangible and extraordinary proof of it —apparently some new title.

The Chancellor himself is evidently determined to persist in his plan of deferring a statement of his policy on the question of internal reforms and the definition of Germany's peace aims, and apparently will be able to continue this policy.

The only immediate reform likely to be conceded by the Government is a measure giving some slight additional representation to a number of the great urban industrial Reighstag districts, which, under Germany's economic development in the last forty years, have developed populations ten to fifteen times greater than are specified in the Constitution as the unit of representation.

Reforms Shelved for Months.

The Government refuses to express any opinion on other proposals of the committee until after the Reichstag has acted definitely on them. This would postpone the day of decision for months at least.

The committee itself played the Government's game by discontinuing further work in order to draft a formal report for the Reichstag on that accomplished during its eight days' sittings. The report cannot be acted upon before the July sitting of the Reichstag, at the earliest, and then only in the form of a request to the Bundesrat to introduce the necessary legislation.

It is known that on the subject of peace conditions the Government will merely submit a declaration that the time is inopportune for a definition or discussion of Germany's peace terms. It is rumored in parliamentary circles that Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, may not read the declaration himself on Tuesday, but leave to Dr. Alfred Zimmermann, the Vice Chancellor, the task of sidestepping the Conservative and Socialist interpellations.

The Chancellor's attitude is apparently dictated by consideration of the conditions in Russia, and by the feeling that it is best to avoid any statement of terms at the present which would either bind the Government to accept less than is possibly obtainable if the Russian disintegration continues, or which might cause Russian sentiment to realize that the future of the nation was endangered by a continuance of internal party strife.

Apparently under no conditions will Germany undertake any military operations on the eastern frontier which might revive the national spirit in Russia. Berlin is full of stories brought back by officers and soldiers of the peaceful conditions on the Russian front, where no military operations are in progress.

WOULD DROP FOOD CONTROL.

Batocki Resents Criticism by Reichstag Members.

AMSTERDAM, May 13, (via London.)—Adolph von Batocki, President of the Food Regulation Board of Germany, has asked permission to resign, according to a Berlin telegram, owing to severe criticism by members of the Reichstag of his administration of the food supply.

While permission to retire has been temporarily withheld, the message adds, it is expected that his resignation will soon be announced, constituting a severe setback for the Conservative Party leaders.

GERMAN CARGO SHIPS USING THE NORTH SEA

Rotterdam Reports Ten Vessels Arriving in Holland and Six Sailing.

LONDON, Monday, May 14.—German and Austrian shipowners have lately resumed shipping in the North Sea, according to a Rotterdam dispatch to The Daily Mail. Nine German steamers and one Austrian vessel are said to have entered the hook of Holland last week, while six sailed.

Most of the arrivals were from Hamburg, Bremen, and the Baltic.

This is the first dispatch to indicate an attempt by the Germans to operate a regular steamship service outside of the Baltic since the early days of the war. Ships passing from Bremen and Hamburg to Holland ports would be protected for the initial stage of their journey by the German mine fields, and could sail thence through Dutch territorial waters. Ships from the Baltic would presumably use the Kiel Canal.

MAY FREE FOREIGNERS FROM GERMAN ARMY

Reichstag Inquiry Indicates That Many, Including Americans, Are Unjustly Held.

LONDON, May 13.—Herr Kunert, a Socialist member of the Reichstag, at the sitting on Friday, according to a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam which quotes the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, questioned the Government about the incorporation of foreigners into the German Army. He declared the foreigners in this category included North American citizens who had been provided with official identification papers. Herr Kunert asked what the Chancellor contemplated doing in connection with this subject.

Colonel Marquardt, replying for the Government, said the War Minister would communicate with military commanders, and after an investigation of the whole question would order the release of any person unjustly incorporated into the army.

Kunert then asked whether the Chancellor was aware that the same compulsory measure had been applied to Frenchmen and Poles.

Colonel Marquardt's answer was that he had nothing to add to what he already had said.

When Kunert insisted upon knowing what action the Chancellor intended to take against such a violation of international law and violence of conscience, the President intervened, saying this was a new question.

THINKS WE CANNOT UNDERSTAND GERMANY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 13.—Leopold von Wiese, the well-known traveler and writer, tells in the Tageblatt today a little incident which occurred while he was journeying to India, when he met a Mr. Henderson, Professor of Theology at Chicago University. Before landing at Bombay Wiese had given him some book of his which contained a few skeptical remarks on America which the author had forgotten all about.

A few days later, when Henderson was preaching the gospel of the New World to an assembly of Parsees and Indians, he suddenly addressed himself personally to Wiese, who was also present, referring to the latter's remarks in his books about America's adoration for the almighty dollar. He said the biggest creation of capital on earth was Krupp's works at Essen. America had nothing like it. Americans adored the dollar, but Germans adored the mark, which was only one-quarter of a dollar.

While Wiese didn't think very much of Henderson's logic in this argument, he pays a high compliment to the theologian's knowledge, culture, and accomplishments, but he characterized the latter's remarks as an example of the superficiality with which even well-meaning Americans judge Germany. Anyway, they were the immediate cause for his making the American world of ideas a special study. He deplores the proclivity on both sides to base the interpretation of the real nature of a nation in overdone phrases and crude platitudes, and says:

"The utterings of President Wilson, as they reached us from the other side of the ocean from time to time during these last three years, were not dictated by malicious, mercenary egotism hardened by avarice and greediness, as so many of us believe, but by utter incapacity to transplant himself from the totally different conditions of the New World into the situation this war has created for Germany, for which the primitive intellectuality of a colonial nation is responsible.

"Conditions the people cannot conceive are the tasks and problems of another nation that rose from the fierce battles of centuries to new life in the depressing circumstances and complications created by a geographical situation and traditions. America in that respect is like an inexperienced, naively selfish son of a wealthy family, whose life has been free from sorrow and complications, and who cannot appreciate the hard battle for existence another older and less favored man must fight. They must disagree, because what to one seems the only natural thing to do remains incomprehensible to the other.

"Our young man, like the average Yankee, will ventilate his supposedly nobler mind in cheap pathos. But we Germans should realize that Americans often really believe in what they proclaim in high-sounding language. They are not perfidiously designing and are not afflicted with a bad conscience or the profit-hunter's cunning treacherousness. They do not seek to hide a materialistic nature behind idealistic phrases. With them both these conceptions of life more often honestly go hand in hand than we would think possible.

"Only ignorance and prejudice incapacitate the Yankee from seeing things as they are. He cannot understand what is strange to the spirit of his new world. Mere economic motives with him are of much less importance than is generally assumed by us. Therefore, Henderson was right with his contention that the phrase of 'the hunt for the almighty dollar' was not even the main characteristic of the American mind, much less the whole of it. American smartness is not merely a desire for profit. Much stronger with the Yankee of today is national pride, and especially his ambition to represent a higher phase of civilization than all the European States. To many cultured Americans wealth is only the means for higher purposes.

"It is also a mistake to disbelieve the honesty of intention of the majority of cultured Yankees to bring about a world peace. They mean what they say, however small their competency may be. That does not exclude extraordinary business capacity, but in practice and theory they are often much more naive and childlike, even childish, than we generally presume in Europe. The future will show that in their political activity they will have been led much more by mistaken ideals than by economic interest."

HARDEN JUSTIFIES CHINA'S HOSTILITY

Says She Sees in Germany Revival of Ancient Struggle of Sword Against Spirit.

AMSTERDAM, May 13.—The current number of Die Zukunft, Maximilian Harden's weekly, is devoted to Germany's "Twelfth Enemy—China."

Herr Harden asks how such a peaceloving and anti-war power came to "declare war" on Germany and replies by citing at great length from his own works letters purporting to have been written by the late Li Hung-chang relating to experiences of the famous Chinaman in Europe, describing Germany as nothing but a war camp and telling of the all mighty Emperor and of Germany's commerce, which he describes as the great idol dominating everything.

"The corruptible considers every one corruptible," is Herr Harden's retort to those Germans who allege that China was bought body and soul with dollars. He ridicules as stupid any notion that China is arming against Japan. Herr Harden thinks there is nothing surprising in China's choice when she sees a revival of the ancient struggle of the sword against the spirit.

WANTS CONTINENT TO OPPOSE ANGLO-SAXONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 13.—In an editorial the Düsseldorf General-Anzeiger says:

"The more clearly our opponents are made to see that the submarine campaign renders American aid illusory the more effective will become the diversity of interest among them in regard to America. At this point will come into play the solidarity of European interests to which Germany has frequently referred in the replies to President Wilson's proclamation.

"We have every reason to emphasize very distinctly the Anglo-Saxon solidarity which is undoubtedly the true objective of Anglo-American policy, despite the occasional differences of opinion between London and Washington. For in this way we prevent England from veiling the diversity of interests in which she is placed in relation to her other allies by this Anglo-Saxon community of interests.

"The wall which England has erected against the peace tendencies of her allies will collapse the sooner in proportion as it becomes clearer that not only is England not able to keep her promises of victory, but also that in her calculations she omits all respect for the interest of her allies."

It would seem from this statement that so far as Germany, or at least annexationist and industrial Germany, has a program it is for a European combination under the German aegis against an Anglo-Saxon league. It is thought here that some attempt may be made to unite the conflicting annexationist and anti-annexationist parties in Germany on this program and with the solidarity of continental interests as their watchword.

LANGUAGE LINE IN BELGIUM.

Germany Establishes Walloon and Flemish Divisions in Administration.

AMSTERDAM, May 13, (via London.)—According to a Brussels dispatch received by way of Berlin, the Governor General of Belgium by an ordinance has divided the three Ministries of Agriculture, Science and Art, and Commerce and Labor into Flemish and Walloon Ministries. The new order will go into effect June 15.

The division of Ministries announced in the foregoing dispatch indicates the adoption by the German authorities in Belgium of the policy recently advocated in the Reichstag of separating the administration of French-speaking (Walloon) and Flemish Belgium—a policy which, because it seemed to hint at the eventual reoperation of a part, at least, of the conquered territory, was vigorously opposed by annexationist Deputies and newspapers.

Germans Revive Lusitania Defense.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 13.—The Berlin Tägliche Rundschau protests against what it calls the lowest and most slanderous English-American "Lusitania propaganda." The paper once more repeats all the arguments to prove that the crime was an act of heroism. Statements about ammunition are again put forward as an excuse, and it is even said that hundreds of thousands of German soldiers were saved from death from American ammunition.

KORNILOFF RESIGNS HIS ARMY COMMAND

cialists considered it impossible to meet the majority of German Socialists in a conference which would have been convoked without preliminary recognition of common principles. He recognized, nevertheless, he declared, that it was desirable that the Socialists of all countries should clearly formulate their principles.

M. Thomas added, however, that this effort must not be allowed to become the occasion of new German intrigue. In this connection he recalled the intrigues of the German Socialists during the war, and said that after the United States had entered the war, and after the revolution in Russia, the Western Socialists could not consent to discuss the democratic aims of the war unless they were convinced that the war would be vigorously prosecuted, for the war aims of international democracy never would be recognized by Prussian militarism. To realize democratic ideas all must work together to assure the defeat of Germany.

The speech was listened to with interest and with growing sympathy as it proceeded. Although several of the points raised had been discussed and decided by the Executive Committee, the committee requested that it be allowed to defer until Monday its reply to the new questions involved. In deference to this request M. Thomas will confer with the committee again on Monday.

"RED GUARD" CUTTING LOOSE.

Armed Workmen Plan Organized Militia Independent of Council.

By HERBERT BAILEY.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, May 11, (Delayed.)—The brutally frank confession by M. Guchkoff, the Minister of War, at yesterday's session of the Duma that "destruction is getting the better of creative work, our military power is weakening and crumbling, and the country is on the verge of ruin," and the news that Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg will possibly still state the terms on which Germany and her allies are prepared to make peace, divide public attention today.

That Guchkoff presents the real situation and his warning to the nation is no mere alarmist cry is recognized by all who have any knowledge of conditions at the front and in the rear. Guchkoff, as I can personally testify, is a man of extraordinarily clear vision, who possesses something of the decisiveness and tenacity of the soldier and the sagacity and resolution of the true statesman. His indictment of dual authority is particularly valuable.

Today we see from the news bulletin of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies what its International Committee is doing and how the services of the Petrograd Telegraph Agency, with the cooperation of the Government, have been placed at the disposal of the council for the dissemination of news and communicating with foreign Governments. Already messages have been dispatched to the English, French, and Italian Governments, asking their co-operation in facilitating the passage of delegates to the Socialist Conference which they propose holding in Petrograd.

This encroachment on the Government's authority is viewed with alarm. It is quite conceivable that the council will soon insist on the censorship of newspaper cables in order to eliminate criticism of their policy and procedure. Meanwhile the council is organising the provinces. Every day its tentacles are longer, and the time is apparently not far distant when the council will be in position to overthrow the Government and establish a régime of its own. They have their own difficulties, however. The Red Guard of armed workmen has now taken fright at the prospect of further hostilities. The murder of soldiers might afford the military leaders an opportunity of inflaming the minds of the troops against the workmen and thus creating a fatal cleavage in the council. The leaders of the Red Guard plan to establish an organized militia ready to assist, but independent of the council. Its function would be to fight counter-revolutionary forces, but it is more likely that it would be used, as it has been used, to supplement arguments by bullets in fights with capitalists.

Cable messages containing Germany's peace terms as outlined in the Morgenbladet of Norway appear in the newspapers this morning. In diplomatic circles the opinion is unanimous that the German Chancellor is endeavoring to obtain guidance for his policy and is using the columns of the Norwegian newspaper for this purpose. His speech is awaited with interest and anxiety. The rejection of any offer by Germany before victory has been obtained is the desire of the political leaders of the educated classes, but the effect of any specific offer on the proletariat cannot be foreseen.

HOBBLES HAASE SOCIALISTS

German Officials Refuse Passports To Minority To Visit Stockholm.

AMSTERDAM, Monday, May 14, (via London.) — The German authorities have refused passports to the members of the Socialist Minority Party who wish to attend the Stockholm Conference, according to the Hamburg Fremdenblatt.

The paper quotes Hugo Haase, leader of the Independent Socialists, as informing the Berlin correspondent of the Wiener Journal that he intends to bring the matter before the Reichstag Tuesday.

German Press Suffers.

AMSTERDAM, May 13. — German newspapers say the Berlin Government admits its inability to augment the supplies of print paper and that many journals must cease publication.

Other newspapers will publish one or two editions weekly, while a few of the more important will be allowed to continue daily, but with a further reduction in the size and number of pages.

King of Sweden Under Knife.

COPENHAGEN, May 13.—King Gustave of Sweden underwent an operation today, according to advices from Stockholm. The operation was of a minor nature, but the King will be confined to his bed for a few days.

TO CONFER WITH GERMANS.

Russian Council Still Hopes the Democracy Will Force Peace.

LONDON, May 13.—M. Skobeleff, a member of the Executive Committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, according to a Reuter dispatch from Petrograd, asserted in his speech Saturday that while the committee was opposed to a separate peace it was of the opinion that the war might be ended by an agreement between the German and Russian democracies.

For this reason, he said, it proposed to enter into negotiations with the representatives of German democracy at the International Socialist conference.

Another dispatch says that M. Skobeleff is going to Stockholm to attend the conference as the representative of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies.

Sir George Buchanan, British Ambassador to Russia, according to another dispatch from Petrograd, has issued a denial that the Entente allies ever contemplated applying to Japan to exercise pressure on the natural course of events in Russia.

DEMOCRACY SOLE DEFENSE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 13.—Referring to Samuel Gompers's telegram to the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, the Vorwärts says today:

"Mr. Gompers unfortunately gives a correct picture not of actual German conditions, but of the view of them prevailing in America. He preaches a holy war of democracy, and against that there is truly one defense, namely, democracy."

IS IT REAL FILET, OR JUST

ARMY BILL MAY GO TO SENATE TODAY

Conferees Expected to Agree Quickly, Since It Now Contains Roosevelt Amendment.

PRESIDENT URGED HASTE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Facing the mandate of the House, which instructs the managers on the part of the House to write into the Army bill the Senate amendment which would permit the acceptance by President Wilson of Colonel Roosevelt's offer to raise a force of volunteers, the conferees on the part of the House and Senate will return to their conferences tomorrow morning on the measure.

Unless some new feature is injected, the conference is not likely to take up much time with the bill. Since the Roosevelt amendment originated in the Senate, it is possible that the bill may reach the floor of that body tomorrow.

The urgency of the desire of the President for the quick passage of the Army bill was disclosed in a letter, which Representative Dent, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, received from President Wilson, and appears in this morning's issue of the Congressional Record, as follows:

The White House,
Washington, May 11, 1917.

Hon. S. Hubert Dent, Jr., House of Representatives.

My Dear Mr. Dent: Now that the Army bill has been successfully brought out of conference, I want to express to you my sincere appreciation of the service you and your colleagues have rendered in helping to bring the bill to a final consideration free from any feature that would embarrass the system of draft upon which it is based.

I trust that the conference report may be very promptly adopted. Every hour counts in these critical times, and delay might have very serious consequences.

Sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Letter Not Read in House.

This letter was not read to the House, but was placed in The Record under the leave given to Chairman Dent to extend his remarks in The Record. The letter, though dated Friday, was not sent to Mr. Dent until yesterday afternoon. It was written after the conferees had reached their agreement on the bill and before the House had voted to instruct its managers to have the Harding amendment inserted in the measure.

The President congratulated Mr. Dent and his colleagues on having brought the bill to a final consideration "free from any feature that would embarrass the system of draft upon which this is based." Whether the President meant to convey by this phrase the thought that the raising of the Roosevelt volunteers would embarrass the draft system cannot be learned until the President expresses himself on the Harding amendment. He might do this, if he so deemed, by vetoing the bill and making it an issue. It is hardly thought that he will do this in view of the statement in his letter that "every hour counts in these critical times." But, should he so desire, he may sign the bill with a statement of his attitude toward the Harding amendment, and may refrain from acting under authority of the legislation.

The vote of the House was 215 to 178 in favor of recommitting the bill with instructions to accept the Harding amendment. Under this motion it is believed that the amendment will be quickly written into the bill and there will be no appreciable delay of final approval of the measure. Under the terms of the motion to recommit, the House managers are not instructed to do more than agree to the Harding amendment. The motion adopted by the House does not instruct them to reopen the other features of the bill, but there are many members of the House who contend that the return of the measure to conference would permit the conferees to reopen all its features and enable them to further modify their original agreement.

Anthony Motion Specific.

The full text of Representative Anthony's motion, as adopted by the House yesterday, was:

"I move to recommit the conference report to the Committee of Conference, with instructions to the managers on the part of the House to agree to that part of Section 1 of the Senate amendment which reads as follows:

"'7. The President is further authorized to raise and maintain by voluntary enlistment, to organize, and to equip not to exceed four infantry divisions, the officers of which shall be selected in the manner provided by Paragraph 3 of Section 1 of this act: Provided, that the organization of said force shall be the same as that of the corresponding organization of the regular army; and provided further that there shall be no enlistments in said force of men under 25 years of age at time of enlisting; and provided further that no such volunteer force shall be accepted in any unit smaller than a division."

As no other instructions were given to the conferees, the consensus of opinion, however, is that the sense of the House is that the conference report with this alteration will be acceptable to that body, and that the conferees, in making other changes in the bill, would be running the risk of having the measure again recommitted.

MORE MEN FOR ROOSEVELT.

Colonel Gets Thousands of Offers to Enlist—1,000 Truck Drivers Ready.

Since it was announced last week that more than 200,000 men had volunteered to serve with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, more than 11,000 letters have been received from others offering to enlist or to raise companies or regiments to go to France with the ex-President.

One of these letters was from Colonel Thomas L. Lanard, commanding the State Fencibles of Philadelphia, offering a body of 1,200 men in that organization, fully equipped, and ready to join Colonel Roosevelt without delay.

A letter was received from a man in Detroit, who offered to provide the highest quality of men and sufficient numbers of them to take care of the transport for the troops that go with Colonel Roosevelt, whether one division or more. The author of this letter said:

"There are at present in the City of Detroit 1,000 to 1,500 truck drivers who saw from four to nine months active service on the border. These men were mustered out in Detroit, and, with few exceptions, they remained together and are now working here in various places. Today their organization is practically as complete as when it was discharged from the army, and if equipment and supplies were available they could be entrained for active field service in five days from notice—the best trained and most efficient organization of its kind in existence today.

"These men are privates and non-commissioned officers. They were commanded on the border by commissioned officers from regular army and militia regiments. In many instances the active command of the companies was left to the truckmaster Sergeants and served to develop among them some very promising company commanders. These men would prove very efficient in officering the organization I propose, but you could use your own judgment as to using any of these men for commissions. The main thing is that we want to go with you in any capacity. Personally, I am sure that to go even as a company cook is sufficient glory for the average man."

ATTACKS ARMY BILL DELAY.

Dr. Young Calls Congressmen Playing Politics "Benedict Arnolds."

Denunciation of the slowness of Congress in taking final action on the Army bill and the prediction of a world federation were features of the sermon preached last night in the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, by the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, who is to be a chaplain in the Roosevelt army if there is one.

"Joffre and Viviani and Balfour and Arlotta," he said, "are the harbingers of a world federation, under which representatives of all nations will legislate for the liberty, justice, and peace of all mankind. As our Revolutionary War ended in thirteen States bound in a bond indissoluble, so will the present upheaval end in a union of the States of the earth, under which such an attempt as Germany has made will be mere insurrection, to be suppressed by the standing army of humanity. No nation will lose its identity any more than New York State has lost hers in this Republic.

"It is the destiny of America to become the meeting place and inspiration of this universal democracy. To let our women of the Red Cross prepare bandages only for the wounded soldiers of other nations to wear—what an indictment of our manhood! The Benedict Arnolds of the hour are those two-by-ten Congressmen who hold back our expedition to the still wavering battle fronts of Europe by parrying for political and personal advantage."

M'ADOO ARRANGES TOUR OF THE WEST

serve Bank of New York is doing to help float the Liberty Loan it is believed desirable, and indeed necessary, to use every proper means that we can to arouse interest in the loan throughout the State.

We believe that it would be wise to have a considerable number of meetings similar to political campaign meetings, with addresses made by good speakers. If it would be possible to use the party machinery of both parties, without any partisanship, for this work, it would, it seems to me, be very desirable. My thought is that the speakers' bureaus might be revived for this purpose and the two party organizations join hands in what would, I think, be the most effective publicity that could possibly be obtained. If you agree with us and will co-operate with us, we shall be deeply appreciative.

Mr. McCormick arrived in Washington tonight, and no decision in regard to this form of publicity was made, pending an interview he will have tomorrow with Secretary McAdoo.

Tentative subscriptions for the fund submitted up to today, it was said at the Treasury Department, had reached a gigantic sum, and contained enthusiastic assurances. They were, however, merely tentative. The prospectus made public today was prepared with great care by bond experts.

The Treasury's Circular.

Following is the text of the Secretary of the Treasury's circular on the Liberty Loan:

Treasury Department,
Office of the Secretary,
Washington, May 14, 1917.

DEPARTMENT CIRCULAR 78.

Loans and Currency.

The Secretary of the Treasury invites subscriptions at par and accrued interest from the people of the United States of America for $2,000,000,000 of the fifteen-thirty-year 3½ per cent. gold bonds of an issue authorized by act of Congress approved April 24, 1917.

Description of Bonds.

Bearer bonds, with interest coupons attached, will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000. Bonds registered as to principal and interest will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $50,000, and $100,000. Provision will be made for the interchange of bonds of different denominations and of coupon and registered bonds upon payment, if the Secretary of the Treasury shall require, of a charge not exceeding $1 for each new bond issued upon such exchange. Transfers of registered bonds and exchanges of registered and coupon bonds and of bonds of different denominations will not be made until Oct. 1, 1917, or such later date as may be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The bonds will be dated June 15, 1917, and will bear interest at the rate of 3½ per cent. per annum from that date, payable semi-annually on Dec. 15 and June 15. The bonds will mature June 15, 1947, but the issue may be redeemed on or after June 15, 1932, in whole or in part, at par and accrued interest, on six months' published notice, on any interest day; in case of partial redemption, the bonds to be redeemed to be determined by lot by such method as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. The principal and interest of the bonds will be payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of value, and the bonds will be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation, except estate or inheritance taxes, imposed by authority of the United States or its possessions, or by any State or local taxing authorities. The bonds will not bear the circulation privilege, but will be receivable as security for deposits of public money.

If any subsequent series of bonds (not including Treasury certificates of indebtedness and other short-term obligations) shall be issued by the United States at a higher rate of interest than 3½ per cent. per annum before the termination of the war between the United States of America and the Imperial German Government, (the date of such termination to be fixed by a proclamation of the President of the United States,) the holders of any of the bonds of the present issue shall have the privilege of converting the same, within such period and upon such further terms and conditions covering matters of detail as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, into an equal par amount of bonds bearing such higher rate of interest and substantially identical with the bonds of such new series, except that the bonds issued upon such conversion are to be identical with the bonds of the present series as to maturity of principal and interest and terms of redemption.

Applications.

The agencies designated by the Secretary of the Treasury to receive applications for the bonds now offered are the Treasury Department in Washington, D. C., and the Federal Reserve banks in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta (with branch at New Orleans,) Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, and San Francisco. Said banks have been designated also, as fiscal agents of the United States, to collate applications and to give notices of the allotments which the Secretary of the Treasury will eventually make to subscribers and to issue interim certificates for payments made on allotted subscriptions.

Large numbers of national banks, State banks and trust companies, private bankers, express companies, newspapers, department stores, and other private corporations, firms and organizations, have patriotically offered to receive and transmit applications for the Liberty Loan without expense to the United States or to the applicants. The Secretary of the Treasury, appreciating the value of these offers, will have application blanks widely distributed throughout the country to these private institutions and also to the Post Offices and Sub-Treasuries. Individual subscribers may use these conveniences or may send their applications directly to the Treasury Department at Washington and to the Federal Reserve banks. As the law prohibits the allowance or payment of commissions on subscriptions, all those through whom applications are made render service as a patriotic duty without compensation.

All applications must be in the form prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury and be accompanied by a payment of 2 per centum of the amount of the bonds applied for. Applications must be for $50, or any multiple thereof, but any application for one $50 or $100 bond until further notice may be allotted at once and payment in full accepted against delivery of an interim certificate. Applications must reach the Treasury Department or a Federal Reserve Bank not later than noon, June 15, 1917, the right being reserved by the Secretary of the Treasury to close the subscription on any earlier date.

Allotments.

Allotments will be made as soon after June 15 as possible. The Secretary of the Treasury reserves the right to reject any subscriptions or to make allotment of part of the amount subscribed for, and to allot in full upon applications for small amounts and may do even though it may be necessary to reduce allotments on applications for larger amounts should any such action be deemed by him to be in the public interest, and his decision in these respects will be final.

In any case of the rejection of an application the accompanying payment of 2 per centum of the amount applied for will be returned. In case of partial allotment the 2 per centum payment will be retained and any excess applied upon the next installment. Upon allotment of bonds by the Secretary of the Treasury, the subscriber will receive notice thereof signed by or on behalf of the Federal Reserve Bank of his district, unless or until payment in full has been made, further payments must be made when and as below provided under penalty of forfeiture of any and all installments previously paid and of all right or interest in the bonds allotted.

Two per cent. on application:
Eighteen per cent. on June 28, 1917;
Twenty per cent. on July 30, 1917;
Thirty per cent. on Sept. 15, 1917;
Thirty per cent. on Aug. 30, 1917.

It is strongly recommended that subscribers avail themselves of the assistance of their own banks and trust companies. In case where they do not do so, subscribers should make payment, either in cash to the Treasury Department in Washington, or one of the Federal Reserve Banks, or bank draft, check, postoffice money order, or express company money order, made payable to the order of the Treasurer of the United States. If the application is filed with the Treasury Department in Washington, (thus: "Treasurer of the United States, Liberty Loan Account,") if the application is filed elsewhere, made payable to the order of the Federal Reserve Bank in the district in which the application is filed, (thus: "Federal Reserve Bank of ——, Liberty Loan Account."). All checks must be certified. United States certificates of indebtedness issued under the Act of April 24, 1917, will be received at par and accrued interest to date of settlement in making payment in full or in installments.

Interim certificates for installment payments due on or about June 28 will be issued by or on behalf of the Federal Reserve Banks as fiscal agents of the United States and delivered as far as practicable in accordance with written instructions given by subscribers. Upon payment of the installment due June 28, the notice of allotment must be surrendered, and upon payment of each subsequent installment the interim certificate must be presented to the Federal Reserve Bank which issued the certificate for notation thereon of the fact of such payment, or exchange for a new certificate. After full payment such certificates must be surrendered in exchange for the bonds when prepared.

Payments of installments must be made upon the dates above stated until full payment has been made. Payment in full may be made on and after allotment and before Aug. 30, 1917, if two weeks prior notice in writing of intention to make such payment, stating the date upon which such payment will be made, shall have been filed with the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which the subscriber will make payment; but such notice shall not be required in case of any allotment of not exceeding $10,000 bonds or when payment is to be made in Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

As the bonds will carry six months' interest payable Dec. 15, 1917, interest accruing on the bonds alloted, from June 15, 1917, to the date of full and final payment, must be added to the last payment, credit being given for interest at the like rate upon the several installment payments as follows:

As to 2 per centum of the amount of the bonds allotted upon application, from June 15, 1917, and as to subsequent installments duly paid from the respective dates upon which payment thereof is required to be made as above provided. Tables showing the amount of accrued interest payable on Aug. 30 in case payment is made in installments, and the amount of accrued interest payable upon various dates in case payment is made in full prior to Aug. 30 as herein permitted, will be prepared and furnished through the Treasury Department in Washington and the Federal Reserve Banks.

Within the United States and its territories and insular possessions bonds when prepared will be delivered so far as practicable in accordance with the written instructions of the holders of the interim certificates upon surrender to the Treasury Department in Washington or the Federal Reserve Bank which issued the certificate, or interim certificates full paid or accompanied by payment of the final installment. The expense of delivery will be borne by the United States. Delivery of definite bonds to holders of full-paid interim certificates will commence as soon as practicable after June 28.

Further details may be announced by the Secretary of the Treasury from time to time; information as to whom as well as forms for applications may be obtained from the Treasury Department and any Sub-Treasury or Federal Reserve Bank.

W. G. McADOO,
Secretary of the Treasury.

REALTY MEN OBJECT.

Declare New Tax Bill Puts Levy on Mortgages.

The Advisory Council of the New York Real Estate Interests announced yesterday that it had filed a brief with the Senate Finance Committee at Washington objecting to certain sections of the War Revenue bill on the ground that under the present measure all mortgage indebtedness of realty would be subject to taxation. A special committee of the council, consisting of President Mortimer of the Equitable Building Company, Walter Lindner of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, President R. E. Simon of the Morgenthau Realty Company, and John M. Stoddard, presents this summary of the effect on real estate:

"The new Revenue bill provides that all deeds and conveyances subject to a mortgage shall be taxed at 50 cents for the first $100 to $500 of the amount of consideration contained within the deed or conveyance, and 50 cents for each additional $500 or fraction thereof. Practically all deeds, conveyances, or instruments of writing whereby realty is granted, assigned, or transferred provide that the mortgage shall not be assumed by the purchaser of the property, but that the transfer shall take place subject to the mortgage; that the property itself is liable for the indebtedness, and upon payment of each subsequent installment the interim certificate must be presented to the Federal Reserve Bank which issued the certificate for notation thereon of the fact of such payment, or exchange for a new certificate. After full payment such certificates must be surrendered in exchange for the bonds when prepared.

"If the Revenue bill should be enacted into law in its present form it would mean that the mortgage indebtedness of all real estate would be subject to taxation. Previous revenue legislation in Washington has been adopted upon the principle that evidence of debt, such as mortgage indebtedness on real estate, should not be subject to taxation.

The committee makes this quotation from a letter received from Senator Calder on the subject:

"I will do all I can to relieve real estate and real estate mortgages of any further burden, for I believe that they are already taxed all that they can bear."

Concerning this realty mortgage tax and the excess profits tax Senator Wadsworth wrote to the committee as follows:

"Personally, I would be inclined to oppose any additional burden being imposed upon real estate, as I realize full well that that form of property is already carrying its full load of local taxes."

1,500 MORE DEPART FOR TRAINING CAMPS

Grand Central Station Crowded by Thousands of Relatives and Friends.

WAITING ROOM DECORATED

First Contingent of 1,000 Goes to Plattsburg and Others to Madison Barracks.

The second contingent of student officers ordered to Plattsburg for training departed 1,000 strong from the Grand Central Terminal at 9:40 o'clock last night, in four trains. Two hours afterward 250 members of the Officers' Training Camp Association of New York City left on a special train for Madison Barracks, at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y. About 200 other candidates for the Officers' Reserve Corps, including twenty men from points in Pennsylvania, who are to train at camps in New York, started for Madison Barracks on regular passenger trains leaving at 11:30 o'clock.

Each delegation got a patriotic farewell. When the larger part of the Plattsburg men had reached the big waiting room a band of musicians moved to the centre of the floor and played stirring airs until the last man had gone aboard the trains, and closed the program with "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The waiting room had been decorated with flags for the occasion, one a great banner suspended on invisible wires and falling almost to the heads of the soldiers in the centre of the room.

For an hour before train time the great floor on the upper train level of the station was crowded with thousands of relatives and friends of the soldiers.

At some points were groups of college men, all cheering their particular groups of fellows. The only men who appeared to have no friends or relatives present to see them off, were the few men from Philadelphia and other Pennsylvania places, who had already passed through the ordeal of leaving home.

The men of the Officers' Military Training Camp delayed their farewell to the last, so that their train, which was to have started at 11:30, actually did not get away until ten minutes later. Most of the men for both camps were in khaki.

BELL AT PLATTSBURG SAYS "SING AND FIGHT"

Tells Students They Must Beat Germans at Their Own Game, Singing as They March.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., May 13.—Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, commander of the Eastern Department, arrived at Plattsburg this morning and made an unofficial inspection of the Reserve Officers' training camp. Few of the students were aware of his visit until late in the afternoon, when it was announced that he would speak tonight at the opening of the Y. M. C. A. army hut before leaving for New York.

Accompanied by the camp commander, Lieut. Col. Paul A. Wolf, General Bell spent the forenoon riding through the country around Plattsburg to ascertain its adaptability for army manoeuvres. He said on his return that he considered the Champlain Valley particularly well suited for the training of troops. To a committee of Plattsburg citizens he said:

"I am convinced that this is an ideal spot for the training of soldiers during the Summer months. For five, or possibly six, months of the year no better place could be selected, but because of the rigorous Winters of this section I do not believe that it could be used to advantage for the training of large bodies of men during those months.

"There is no telling what the exigencies of the present war may require, and it may be necessary to keep a large number of troops at the post throughout the Winter. There is no doubt, however, that there will be a large number of men in training here as long as the weather will permit."

Citizens of Plattsburg offered General and Mrs. Bell the use of a furnished house in the city for the Summer, but he declined on the grounds that it was his practice never to enjoy comforts which were not to be had by men of his command. At the General's suggestion, the house will be occupied by the six nurses who will be on duty at the Post Hospital during the Summer. In the afternoon General Bell held a conference with the post officers and camp instructors.

After evening mess as many students as could get in filled the new Young Men's Christian Association Building with the rest grouped outside the open windows or peeking through skylights in the roof. Colonel Wolf acted as Chairman and introduced General Bell, who said:

"I am not here to talk shop. This is the Y. M. C. A. night. But I'll be here often during your training and will do a lot of talking. There are some military matters about which I shall speak to you, but I shall wait until you are all here, for I am determined that every one shall hear me.

"On the battle line it's character that wins—not ability or knowledge so much as character. You know what I mean. You have only one life to live and one life to give, and it does not matter when a soldier leaves this life, but it does matter how he leaves it. A soldier must think only of his duty and must do it in a way that all who survive him will be proud of the way he gave up his life.

"Gentlemen, you sang 'The Star Spangled Banner' tonight as I have heard it sung few times before. You know where we are going to fight. German soldiers sing while they march. I want you to see that our army beats them at their own game, for singing men are fighting men.

"From you will be selected part of our first 10,000 officers and I want you to take it upon yourselves as a duty to see that every company of our army has its marching tune, and that the men learn to sing it. You don't know how much further men can march when they sing. Any rousing air will do. 'A Hot Time In the Old Town Tonight' has a swing to it that will put ginger and cold courage in the hearts of men. Go to it. Sing and fight."

ARRIVE AT SACKET HARBOR.

Special to The New York Times.

SACKET HARBOR, N. Y., May 13.—Including the men who reported today, there are now 1,600 student officers quartered in the training buildings at Madison Barracks. Starting shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, long lines of men began filing across the reservation, and the stream kept up practically all day without check.

Despite instructions to the contrary, many of the men arrived dressed in civilian clothes, and it was necessary to detail reserve Lieutenants to take temporary charge of the recruit companies to oversee the issue of equipment. A sharp lake breeze that made a service overcoat a necessity chilled the frame barracks, and stoves, three to a building, were used. A thorough overhauling was given all the apparatus in the barracks, and when everything was reported ready, the cadets were admitted one at a time. As soon as they slung their kits alongside the army cots they were ordered to perform their first military duty, bedmaking. Some of the men were pretty clumsy about it.

Aside from light exercise to keep fit, the regular course will not be started until Tuesday morning, and then it will be much curtailed. This is the week's program:

Tuesday—Organizations of companies. Issue of equipment. Instruction in barrack regulations. 7:45-9:45 P. M., study period.

Wednesday—7:15-8, school of soldier and physical drill. 8:15-9, school of squad close order. 9:15-10:15, conference, care of equipment, nomenclature and care of arms. 10:30-11, conference, organization. 1:30-2:30, semaphore. 2:40-3:10, conference. Infantry drill, regulations. 3:20-3.50, conference, Manual of infantry guard, 4-5, sighting. 7:45-9:45, study period.

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday—(Morning.) 7:15-8, school of soldier and physical drill 8:15-9, school of squad. Close and extended order without arms. 9:15-9:45 conference. Care of equipment. 10-10:30 conference. Organization. 10:45-11:45 practice march without arms.

Thursday and Friday—(Afternoon.) 1:30-2.30 semaphore. 2:40-3:10 conference. Infantry drill, (three lessons.) 3:20-3:50 conference. 4-5 sighting. 7:45-9:45 study period.

Sunday—Noon to 7 P. M. liberty. 7:45-9:45 P. M. study period.

Under orders issued by the Quartermaster General the following reserve Captains of the Quartermaster Corps have been directed to report here at once: Francis M. Smith, administration; Robert A. Osborn, supplies; William J. McKay, supplies; Claude D. Lehman, transportation; Tom R. Wyles, transportation; Harry W. Parrett, finance, and William H. Fillmore, finance. As at Plattsburg, the cadets will be drilled under regimental organization, and it is expected to have the company commanders all selected by tomorrow.

EXPECTS NEW SERIES OF TRAINING CAMPS

Capt. Cosby Thinks Government May Yet Provide for Eligibles Who Were Shut Out.

In response to numerous inquiries as to whether a second series of Officers' Training Camps would be held, Captain Arthur F. Cosby of the Military Training Camps Association, which had charge of the recruiting for the first camp, issued the following statement today:

"It is our understanding and expectation that another series of camps will be held, to begin a few days after the completion of the first, that would be about Aug. 20, and men who are eligible for the first, but were not selected owing to the limited numbers for which there is room, will have an opportunity in due course to make application for this camp. We have been deluged with applications for the second camp, which are filed, and as soon as anything definite is announced such men will be notified. It is not necessary, however, for men contemplating going to the second camp to send in their notices now, as due announcement will be given in the newspapers.

"This association is now preparing a memorandum and report for the War Department of the recruiting work which has been done so far, which shows that the full number of 40,000 men requested by the department was recruited within the space of twenty days throughout the United States.

"In response to insistent demands from good men who failed of entrance in the camps, we have telegraphed to the different commanding officers of all camps throughout the country, and find that in every instance the camps from New York to Georgia, in the East, and through the country to the Presidio in California are at this date actually filled, with some thousands of applications over in practically every camp, so that when the camps open on Tuesday they will all have their full quota."

SAYS WAR HINGES ON FOOD.

Allies Losing When We Went In, Vrooman Asserts.

BALTIMORE, May 13.—A warning that each section of the United States must feed itself or go without food was voiced here today by Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. He said that with cotton at 22 cents a pound Southern planters were plowing land that already had been planted in cotton and were putting in foodstuffs.

"We must awaken," he said. "The submarine is a much more potent weapon than we imagined. The Allies were losing the war when we entered it, and will lose it unless we expend every effort of men, money, and economy. It is now a war of conservation of resources."

MAY STOP TRADING IN OTHER OPTIONS

Chicago Board of Trade Directors in Long Session—Frenzy of Buying Denounced.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The situation in the grain markets is so critical that for the first time in twenty years the Board of Trade Directors held a special session today, which lasted more than six hours. At the close President Joseph P. Griffin said no statement would be given out, it being deferred until after another meeting called for 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, when representatives of all the leading private-wire houses will gather in the office of Harris Winthrop & Co. and discuss trade conditions.

It is thought that trading in July wheat and May corn will be ordered curtailed or stopped, and a settling price fixed.

There will be no closing of the Exchange, as that would interfere with the cash grain trade, which is a most vital part of the grain trade of the country.

When President Joseph P. Griffin of the Board of Trade came from the meeting of Directors, he said:

"There is plenty of grain in the country to carry us through. If it were not for this wild frenzy which has seized America and the allied Governments, in fact the world, the price would be no such prices paid for wheat as at present. Not only are the Governments at war buying with frenzy, but the neutrals as well.

"There is too much wild advice by amateurs who know nothing about grain or its production. I am not trying to criticise the Government, but I am speaking of the 'food experts' who have bobbed up on every side with bad advice."

Asked if he had any reports that the German Government had provided money to bid up the price of grain, in order to make the Allies pay higher for wheat, Mr. Griffin said:

"I have heard such rumors, but I doubt if there is any truth in them."

WINTER WHEAT CROP SHORT IN CANADA

Acreage Killed is 23 Per Cent., and the Condition Is the Lowest Since 1909.

OTTAWA, Ontario, May 13.—A serious shortage in the Winter wheat crop of Canada was revealed by a report of the Census and Statistics Office, made public today. The acreage estimated to have been sown last Fall was 913,400, and the estimated destruction through Winter killing was 187,000 acres, or 23 per cent., leaving 626,400 acres to be harvested.

The estimated condition of the crop on April 30 was 69 per cent., which is lower than in any previous year since 1909 at that date.

FIRE TWENTY SHOTS AT JERSEY SENTRY

Guardsman at Lackawanna Bridge Returns Fire and Wounds an Assailant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, N. J., May 13.—A bushwhacker, who, with two companions, fired more than twenty shots from ambush last night at a National Guard sentry guarding the Lackawanna bridge over Pequest Creek, near Buttsville, was shot by the sentinel and carried away by his companions in an automobile running without lights.

This report was made today to Captain Harlan Besson of Company H. Fourth Infantry, a Jersey City unit, whose headquarters are here. The sentry said that he had not perceived the car, running noiselessly on the macadam road near the bridge, and his first intimation of the presence of strangers was when one man began firing at him from the woods, and was joined by two others.

Another sentry came to his aid and as one of the marauders appeared on the roadway the first guard fired and he fell. The others lifted him up and carried him away before more guardsmen could come.

This is the second time guardsmen have been fired on near Buttsville in the last four days. No casualties resulted from the first attempt. There has been considerable German sentiment manifested in the neighborhood, with attempts to discourage enlistment, and sentries on a bridge only a few miles distant last week had to bayonet two men who insisted on forcing their way across despite orders to halt.

NEGRO TROOPS TO CAMP.

Fifteenth Infantry Applauded on Way to Its First Service.

The Fifteenth Infantry, N. G. N. Y., composed of three battalions of negro troopers numbering 1,200, under command of Colonel William Hayward, left the city yesterday to spend two weeks in camp—somewhere in New York State. The First and Third Battalions, composed of Manhattan troops, in command of Majors Edwin W. Dayton and W. A. Pickering, arrived at Park Avenue and Forty-second Street in special cars, where the Second Battalion from Brooklyn, under Major Monson Morris, was waiting. The regiment then marched through Forty-second Street to Fifth Avenue, north to Fifty-seventh Street, and then to Broadway.

A large crowd along the line of march applauded the troopers for the fine showing they made. The infantry was organized during the last year by Colonel Hayward, and their trip yesterday was their initial military service.

SHIP SINKS IN A GALE.

Iron Bark Hedvid Goes Down With Cargo of Coal.

The officers of a British steamship which arrived yesterday at an American port from Halifax, reported the sinking of the Norwegian iron bark Hedvid, which left Norfolk on May 4 for Christiania with a cargo of coal.

On May 9, the officers said, the bark was pitching in a heavy gale and sprang a leak. The water gained so rapidly, in spite of all hands at the pumps, that the crew took to the boats and left the vessel half an hour before she foundered.

The Hedvig was built in Glasgow in 1877 as the Mataura, and was later the Orthes before being named Hedvid. She was 1,239 registered tonnage, 228 feet long, 35 feet 8 inches beam, and 21 feet 4 inches depth of hold, and was commanded by Captain J. Gunnerson.

The crew was rescued by the British freighter and landed at an American port.

BRITAIN IS FULLY ORGANIZED FOR WAR

GOVERNMENT'S NEEDS FIRST

Artillery Preponderance in France Due to Commandeering Supplies for Gun Factories.

Some of the restrictions which the necessities of war have put on the private activities of the people of England were told yesterday by Stephen McKenna, nephew of former Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald McKenna, in an interview at the Hotel Vanderbilt. Mr. McKenna is with the Balfour Commission as representative of the War Trade Intelligence Department, which acts as a clearing house for information regarding commerce affected by the war. He has given to officials of the United States Department of Commerce a full account of Great Britain's elaborate organization for preventing supplies from reaching the enemy, and for giving the Government first choice of everything needed.

Visitors to London, he said, were finding it difficult to get suitable accommodations because of the fact that so many large hotels and clubs had been taken over by the Government to provide headquarters for the new business organizations necessitated by the war. The largest of these is the Ministry of Munitions, which employs a staff of more than 10,000 persons in London alone.

"This ministry," said Mr. McKenna, "has the first call on coal, iron, steel, and chemicals used in the manufacture of explosives and anything else which it may need. How its requirements operate may be seen from the illustration, say, of a man who wants to build a modest cottage. He must first receive the permission of the Minister of Munitions to buy the raw material. Then he must get permission to have it transported to the site; and after this he must try to get the labor, which is difficult if not impossible. The obstructions imposed are so great that there is little building of a private character."

With regard to the work of his own department, and particularly the "Trading with the Enemy" act and the prohibition of the export of raw materials which might be of military value, Mr. McKenna said that the successes of the British in the recent fighting in France had been due to superiority in artillery, which would have been impossible but for the control by the British Government of the supplies of nickel, copper, rubber, petrol, manganese, and tungsten.

"We have had the problem of the exporter who wanted to trade with the enemy because of the profit involved," he said, "and while this has been practically eliminated, there is still a large class of persons too ignorant or indolent to learn the ultimate destination of goods which they sell. With these persons we have had to deal. That the work of the department is successful is indicated, I think, by the fact that we know that the shortage of oils and fats in Germany is appreciably lowering the vitality of the nation."

Mr. McKenna seemed to be fully convinced of the accuracy of the much-doubted story that the Germans used the corpses of soldiers for the rendering of oils. This statement was evoked by a question as to what he thought the position of women would be in Germany after the war, and he said that a Government which would be so unsentimental with regard to the bodies of its dead soldiers would probably promote repopulation without too much regard to individual liberties.

Another privation which lay before England, Mr. McKenna said, was the imminent shortage of tobacco, importation of which has been greatly restricted. "England has had changes amounting in effect to a social revolution as the result of the war," he said, "and America will probably experience much the same thing."

TO FIGHT POSTAL INCREASE.

Publishers and Labor Representatives Reach Washington in Force.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Publishers of newspapers and magazines and representatives of labor organizations arrived in Washington in large numbers tonight to appear tomorrow before the Senate Committee on Finance in connection with the House proposal contained in the pending War Revenue bill to heavily increase the postal rates on periodicals and newspapers. About 100 persons are in the various delegations.

Don C. Seitz of The New York World, Chairman of the Postal Committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, will present the main argument for the newspapers. The representatives of labor contend that the new rates may destroy the periodical publishing industry.

POSTAL SAVINGS GROW.

New York Increases Deposits in Spite of the War.

Postmaster Patten announces that notwithstanding the war there has been a considerable increase in the postal savings deposits in the New York Post Office, covering both Manhattan and the Bronx.

The amount on deposit now is greater than ever before, and in the month of April alone there was an increase of $556,386. The amount credited to depositors on May 1 was $26,650,070.

Postmaster Patten reports that all the advantages of the system are available to the public at all the stations of the New York Post Office and that accounts may be opened without difficulty, even by children.

VIVIANI THRILLS BOSTON AUDIENCE

"In this city, foremost in learning of American cities," said M. Viviani, "I find a democracy unknown in France. The City Club represents a democracy of society. Eligibility depends only upon character, efficiency, and capacity for citizenship. I pray fervently that this democracy may overspread Europe. This is one of the great gifts that America will give to France, and it is for democracy that you will fight. In joining France in this war the United States will not be paying a debt. Lafayette did not come to these shores to help young America. He came to promote democracy and liberty, and you are coming to us in France not so much to help your allies as to help make the world what it ought to be. The sword of the United States has been drawn not alone to help France but to protect and more securely establish democracy."

Aspirations for World-Union.

Carrying further his thought of democracy, the speaker, pointing to the Stars and Stripes, said:

"Your flag bears forty-eight stars, representing forty-eight States. Each State has its own Legislature, but all are subject to Federal laws that were made for all. May we not hope for the day when all the nations of the earth will be united as are your States, under certain broad and general restrictions that will make it forever impossible for some mad autocrat to play havoc with the universe?"

M. Viviani paid a fervent tribute to the men in the trenches.

"History," he said, "will preserve for all time the names of distinguished statesmen and Generals. By far the great majority of those who fall on the firing line will never be known except in the homes from which they are missed. Their identities will live only in the hearts of the few who loved them. But their kin will have the comfort of knowing that those who fell for France and America died that their children and their children's children might be free of the ghost of autocracy."

At the dinner which followed his address M. Viviani, who seemed to have recovered somewhat from the fatigue which he showed plainly upon his arrival in the city, toasted the club, the city, the State, President Wilson, and all America, the warmth of whose welcome, he said, had warmed the hearts of the mission, and constituted one of the happiest gifts that the great Republic had made to its sister republic overseas.

MONTREAL GREETS JOFFRE.

Enthusiastic Crowds Welcome Marshal on a Brief Visit.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 13.—Marshal Joffre left Montreal for New York this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock after a great day of rejoicing. He was more to the French Canadians than even a national hero could have been and his visit is expected to prove an immense stimulant to recruiting.

Marshal Joffre must have been convinced of the loyalty of Canada, and particularly French Canada, to the Empire. He must also have noticed that from this prosperous commercial city all the men had not gone yet, for several army corps of them were among the crowds that greeted him, and another was reviewed in uniform on Fletcher's Field.

The great review took place at noon in the park at the foot of Mount Royal, and, thereafter, taking the salute, the Marshal addressed in French a few inspiring words to officers and men, which were greeted by a mighty salvo of cheers. He had another evidence of Canada's zeal for the allied cause when he inspected the returned soldiers on the McGill campus, many of whom bore marks of their experience at the front.

The civic welcome having been extended by the Mayor, and that of the citizens themselves by the cheering crowd, the nation's turn came at the State luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton. There the Acting Premier, Sir George Foster; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Provincial Prime Minister; Sir Lomer Gouin, and ecclesiastical, military, political, and civil dignitaries expressed their welcome and their sense of the gratitude Canada and the Allies owe to Joffre and the soldiers of France. There were several of these latter in the procession which escorted the distinguished visitor, all of them men of Canadian citizenship, who had returned to Montreal wounded after fighting for France.

Viger Square, facing the French Consulate, where the Marshal went to pay his respects this afternoon, was thronged with a multitude so dense that many thousands could not get even a glimpse of the hero of the Marne. These were not the only people disappointed, for the Marshal's plans for the afternoon were cut short, and he left from Windsor Station an hour and half before the time set for his departure. Only a few hundred persons saw him go, but at 6 o'clock a large crowd had gathered, only to learn the disappointing news that the great soldier had gone. Before he left he again expressed his admiration for the part played by Canada in the war. He then bestowed kisses on two young women of the party who came to bid him godspeed, and shook hands with the men.

Marshal Joffre arrived here from Boston a few minutes before 11 o'clock, and after a brief reception at the station the parade started. It consisted of the local military units and as many civilians as could be carried in virtually all the automobiles in Montreal. The procession passed through streets beflagged with union jacks, the French tricolor, and the Stars and Stripes to Fletcher's Field, where a civic address was presented to Marshal Joffre by the Mayor, and the Marshal briefly replied.

"What the soldiers of Montreal, of Canada, have accomplished will always be appreciated in France," said the Marshal. "The soldiers of Canada are courageous. They scorn death, and their bravery reaches the level of the bravery of the French troops. I thank you for what you have said."

on guard as the party took the elevator and descended to the train platform.

The only member of the Mayor's Committee present to bid farewell to the visitors was Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith. Mr. Balfour shook hands with him before entering the elevator and said:

"Good-bye. I've had a wonderful time. I want to thank everybody connected with my reception." He expressed his appreciation to Police Inspector Cray and to Chief Flynn of the Secret Service for their efficient arrangements for the protection of the party. Mr. Balfour retired as soon as he got aboard the train, and the other members of the party came down by motor a few at a time from the residence of Vincent Astor, where they have been staying, the last detachment arriving only a minute or two before the train left.

While Mr. Balfour was at Oyster Bay a number of the other members of the commission dined last night at the residence of J. P. Morgan. A dinner planned on board a British cruiser in the harbor was called off when it was discovered that so many of the party had other engagements. The members of the commission said they were leaving New York with genuine regret, as they had received a welcome even more cordial than their anticipation had forecast.

Attends War Service and Hears Sermon by Bishop Brent.

Arthur J. Balfour attended divine worship at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday morning and heard a sermon by the Right Rev. Charles F. Brent, Bishop of the Philippines, who was the preacher last month at the service at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, commemorating the entrance of America into the war. Bishop Brent declared that on the fate of France today depended the fate of the world, and predicted good things for the future from the rapprochement between England and America.

Mr. Balfour sat in a pew with Joseph H. Choate, and was escorted to the cathedral by a party including Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Charles E. Hughes, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, General Daniel Appleton, Robert Bacon, Perry Belmont, Theodore Rousseau, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, George T. Wilson, and Deputy Police Commissioner Leon G. Godley. Admission was by card only, and the crowds which thronged the streets outside during the entire service waiting to catch a glimpse of the British statesmen were held back by a large force of police under Inspector Daly.

It was a war service all the way through. The flags of the allied nations were intertwined over the altar, the prayers included invocations of Divine blessing on the President and the leaders now conferring in this country, the collection was devoted to the wounded of the allied nations, and "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King" were played at the close of the service. Bishop Brent referred to the fact that on the very ground where the cathedral stood had raged a part of the battle of Harlem Heights in 1776, and made graceful reference to the happier conditions of today.

Bishop Brent took his text from an incident in the life of David, and declared that America had chosen a grim path, but that the sky ahead gleamed with hope.

"The days to come," he said, "promise to be the most glorious in the history of the world. There is in our midst a group of British public men come to charge our country with the most intimate ideas. They do not come to receive mere personal recognition, nor is this what we wish to give. America lays her embrace through them around Great Britain and pledges her help.

"England chose to risk all that she held dear in behalf of Belgium, the pivotal nation. Here it was a conflict between continuing to grow commercially fat on the troubles of others who were at war or of ourselves entering into what war has been rightfully called—into hell. War is hell, but we have chosen the lesser evil. Yet there is little or nothing in war of that glory about which you read. There is no more glory in it than in a plague of cholera. It is always the unalterable social evil, the greatest of social evils, a scourge from God to drive those to Him who have declined a loving invitation."

The preacher eulogized Stonewall Jackson as at once a great soldier and a man of deeply religious nature, and attacked the looseness of morality in the great cities of America.

"Ideals are talked of glibly enough among us," he said, "when there may often be but little indication of their presence. Every one among you has his share to do, and to do right now. I warn you that in the fate of France today lies the fate of the world. The nation asks for service; it asks for economy; it asks for temperance, if not for total abstinence.

"In behalf of the Bishop of New York, and in the name of the church in the entire country, I bid you, our friends and brothers, a sincere welcome. In God's temple it is meet that a united people should dedicate themselves to God and God's cause and bring to a successful conclusion the grim task before us."

The High Sign Of Good Clothes-Making

A label, to be of any significance, must have a big idea to support it. The thought at the foundation of "Supre-Macy" Clothes was simply this—that a garment could be made of dependable all wool fabrics that would be better than all others at the price.

"Supre-Macy" Suits for Men at $24.75

Were subjected to a rigid test which proved that they were equal in fabric and workmanship to some garments selling at a higher price elsewhere. The models are smart and semi-conservative — the patterns in keeping with the models. There is more hand tailoring in these clothes than in some sold for more elsewhere. Direct Elevators to Clothing Department on 35th St. side.

STRIKERS IN BRITAIN JEERED BY COMRADES

Idle Engineers Expected to Return to Work Today in Some of the Cities.

HOLD OUT IN OTHER PLACES

Suggestion That Strike Is an Attempt to Dodge Military Service by Hundreds of Eligibles.

LONDON, Monday, May 14.—The strike of engineers in various parts of England continues. The Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the great trade union which the strikers are disobeying, is urging the men to resume work today, and the indications are that the strikers will return to work at some places, for instance, in Derby, where they balloted in favor of a resumption of work. It is also said the men out in Manchester will return to their posts, although some reports from Manchester indicate that doubt is felt that they will do so. At some important centres, such as Barrow and Birkenhead, the men are reported to be determined to continue the strike.

One feature of the movement is the vehemence with which the strikers are being condemned by other workmen. A great number of the strikers are young, husky fellows from 25 to 30 years of age, who, except for exemption for special work, would all be in the army. Their critics say the strike is nothing more than an attempt to dodge military service by hundreds of eligibles, who fear their exemption is endangered by the abolition of the so-called trade card system, which is their chief grievance.

This view is being rubbed into the idlers by taunts from uniformed soldiers and workers in other trades. The munitions girls have particularly scored them with sharp comment, and in many instances the strikers fled from their ire.

LONDON BUS DRIVERS STRIKE

Traffic Paralyzed as the Result of Union's Demand for Recognition.

LONDON, May 13. — Omnibus traffic throughout London was virtually at a standstill today owing to a sudden strike of the drivers, their grievance being the non-recognition of their union by the operating companies. The strike seems to have been almost spontaneous, many of the strikers themselves being unaware that one had been ordered.

Employes of several affiliated street car lines joined the strike later in the day.

A meeting of the motor 'bus employes was held tonight, when a ballot was taken on the question of a strike. The vote showed 5,152 men in favor of a walkout and 699 against it.

The strike is extremely unpopular with the public, thousands of whom on Sundays use the 'buses for their outings.

NO 'TRUE DEMOCRACY' HERE.

Mrs. Catt Says Our Position Will Be Illogical Until Women Vote.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 13.—"Not until the United States has given self-government to women can it blaze the way for democracy," declared Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National Woman Suffrage Association, in an address this afternoon before the Mississippi Valley Victory Suffrage Conference.

She said the United States had no right to talk about "making the world safe for democracy" as long as it believed in drawing the sex line. "There is nothing more illogical," she said, "than to insist that men have the divine right to rule over women and say at the same time that kings haven't divine right to rule over men.

"Ours is not a true democracy," said Mrs. Catt. "The battle of democracy won't be won in this country until we rebaptize our nation and re-establish real democracy. The National Government says woman suffrage must come by States and not by Congress. Congress can declare war and conscript our sons, seize our food and clothes, but it cannot grant the underlying principle of democracy. It is a curious thing."

Governor James M. Cox of Ohio said he would do everything in his power to help defeat the referendum this Fall, called by anti-suffragists to nullify the Presidential Suffrage law passed by the Ohio Legislature.

Identify Newspaperman's Body.

The man who died on Saturday on the 155th Street station platform of the Sixth Avenue elevated line was definitely identified yesterday as Frank P. Richardson, brother of Stephen J. Richardson, editor of The Portland (Me.) Argus and formerly circulation manager of The New York World. Mr. Richardson became ill on a train as it was pulling into the station, and died a few minutes after he was carried to the platform. He had been employed in the circulation department of The New York American. Up to a month ago he had lived at 280 Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, when he went to live with his sister at 125th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue. He was a widower, 45 years old, and is survived by two children.

RESPONSIBILITY

The fate of a building enterprise is of necessity largely in the hands of the contractor who conducts it, for the efficiency and economy of the contractor's work will determine the ratio of income from the investment.

An Owner's problem is to select a contractor who is equal to the responsibilities he assumes.

The Land of Wild Flowers and Wonderful Pure Air. The Children's Paradise. The Place for Perfect Recreation.

You owe yourself and the family a rollicking vacation trip this summer. Perhaps you're wondering where you'll go.

The most attractive place for many reasons is Colorado. It does not require a large sum to go there with the family and enjoy a few weeks' rest and pleasure, living at one of the many small hotels or ranch houses, which are well known for their good cheer and comfortable quarters at moderate cost. You can, of course, go to one of the big hostelries and pay more.

Colorado is essentially the place for little folks as well as grown-ups, because the pure, rare, clear mountain air is like a life-giving tonic that brings health and vigor to everyone.

Let me tell you more about Colorado as a summer-vacation State. I know the country well and can furnish you illustrated booklets, and advise about hotels, ranch boarding houses, etc., for we have information about them all. Call at the office, phone, or write me for helpful suggestions.

HARRIMAN NATIONAL BANK
Fifth Avenue and 44th Street
NEW YORK

The Patriotic Pocket

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
'This is my own, my native land'?"

Let every American this day do his duty, and that duty, plain to the simplest intelligence, is subscription in some amount, no matter how small, to the Liberty Loan.

Do not wait to see what the other man or woman is going to do, but merely remember the Latin proverb, Bis dat qui cito dat—he gives twice who gives quickly.

The Harriman National Bank will receive subscriptions to the Liberty Loan from any responsible person in amount from the smallest denomination of the bonds, $50, to the largest, $100,000, or multiples thereof, to be paid for on favorable terms.

Moreover, the Harriman National Bank will deviate from a time-honored banking policy, and will lend funds at a suitable rate of interest, to equally responsible persons even if they are not customers of the bank, wherewith to purchase the bonds.

Serve both your patriotism and your pocket, for the Harriman National Bank endorses these bonds as an investment, believing that the obligation of the United States Government, bearing interest at the rate of 3½%, is normally worth a premium, and that the bonds will therefore increase in value.

Subscription blanks and detailed information upon application in person or by letter.

LUCKY STRIKE
The real Burley
Cigarette

It's toasted

AS you bite into your crisp slice of morning toast, give it an extra thought. Think how delicious it is; freshly-made, buttered hot.

Toast is an everyday matter of course, but one of the real things you have to be thankful for.

Now you're ready for the special idea on this delicious new Lucky Strike cigarette. The tobacco—it's toasted; and doesn't that give it a flavor though? Well, you know!

We've been working for five years to make a cigarette out of Burley tobacco. It's "blame good" tobacco; and you smokers have shown us how strong you were for it.

Last year you poured sixty million pounds out of those green, red and blue tins. That's enough for 35 billion cigarettes—against about 21 billion ready-made cigarettes sold in 1916. Considerable Burley enthusiasm!

Big discoveries are simple ideas

Until we went back to the toasting fork and old kitchen stove, to the simple idea of hot buttered toast, a ready-made Burley cigarette wasn't possible. The Burley flavor didn't hold. But now it does.

Now Lucky Strike—the real Burley cigarette

It's toasted—and the flavor holds. It's toasted—the result is delicious, full of flavor. Keep thinking of that hot buttered toast—and try a Lucky Strike cigarette today.

ARCHBISHOP CALLS THE WEST TO ARMS

Mgr. Ireland Thrills a Great Meeting of 50,000 at Farewell to Recruits.

SAYS LET ROOSEVELT GO

Spare No Effort for Victory—No Sacrifice too Great to Preserve Democracy's Starry Flag.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, May 13.—Fifty thousand people in Rice Park last night heard Archbishop Ireland deliver the greatest patriotic speech of his long career. The occasion was a mass meeting to bid farewell to 200 recruits for the navy and Marine Corps, about to start for the Mare Island training station at San Francisco. The Archbishop, who recently had conferences with the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour and M. Viviani, heads of the British and French missions, spoke with deep emotion, and his speech made a great impression. He said:

"Young soldiers and sailors: All St. Paul greets you, honors you, and pledges to you its reverence and its devotion. Go where your duty calls you. All the people of St. Paul, all the people of the State of Minnesota, will bear you in kindliest remembrance, will pray for your health and your victory, and will promise you at all times to do what they possibly can do for you that you may be true soldiers of America.

"We congratulate you. It is a privilege, that which is now given you, to be the soldiers of America, to suffer to defend its flag, to carry it far and wide without stain or reproach to it, to make sacrifice for it. Next to God is country, and next to loyalty to God is loyalty to country. The man should not live who does not love and cherish his country, and our country is that great assembly of men running from the Atlantic to the Pacific who call themselves Americans.

"To speak of America is to speak of the greatest nation among nations; to defend America is to defend not only the nation that protects you, that nurtures you, but the nation that stands in the universe for the highest ideals, the noblest principles governing mankind. When we speak of our country we have in mind not only our homes, the homes of our fathers, but we have in mind the grand and noble things for which America stands—liberty and order, and order in liberty. America rises before the nations of the earth as that great country which above all others gives democracy to mankind, which makes every man feel that it is pleasant to walk upon the earth and which showers blessings untold upon all its people. Great and good our country, and sacred is the duty to defend it, to make sacrifice for it.

"You are the privileged ones, because you are permitted to make the highest sacrifice; to offer, if necessary, your very lives on the altar of your country. And for those who are not permitted to bear the flag across the battlefield comes the home duty; to make all possible sacrifice that the army and navy may be well sustained, may keep up their numbers, and may have all the help that devotion and loyalty could possibly give. Our wealth, our labor, our time must, during the war, be entirely given over to America. No one is worthy of the name of American who is not ready for every sacrifice.

"America did not provoke war; America sought peace, but her honor was attacked, her dignity was assailed, her power was defied. What could she do but raise the flag and say: 'Whoever refuses proper respect to this flag, whether it be an individual or a national, we shall punish the offender.'

"A few days ago I met in Washington representatives of two of our allied nations—England and France. They told me, as they told others, of the bravery of their navy and army, of the sacrifices they have made for the last three years. They need our moral support; they need our physical support; they need our money, our methods, and our men. They ask that men be sent across the stormy Atlantic, and side by side with the banner of St. George and the tricolor of France fight that righteousness may prevail among nations, that truth and justice be upheld; and I say to you American people of St. Paul and Minnesota that now we are at war we must give to our country our best support. How could we possibly think of life, each and every one of us, if the Star-Spangled Banner were to be brought back to America stained in defeat? Life would not be worth living.

"Therefore let us be up and doing. Let us call for men to come forward and arm for America's triumph. I am convinced that we should make no delay in rushing help across the Atlantic. If the power were with me, I would this evening, in the name of my country, let Theodore Roosevelt hurry on his 200,000 volunteers—men who would die, if necessary rather than endure defeat. And I would hurry on conscription, because I know that millions are awaiting only for the immediate personal call of the country. It is the duty and a privilege on the part of every American to fight for his country, when his country is in peril. It is the most democratic act in the great democracy which he serves, and I am sure, because I know the American people, that the day conscription shall begin no slackers will be found; none will attempt to shirk their duty. You must be ready for every sacrifice, and have no thought above that of our country in your minds until at last peace is restored.

"And now, young soldiers and sailors, you are the first offering of the Northwest; go forth and do honor to America. Take in your hands and in your hearts the flag and let it be borne before you wherever you go. In your trials and distress look to the flag and remember what you are fighting for, and be sure, young soldiers and sailors, that when the war is over and you return to Minnesota, you bring to us the Star-Spangled Banner, free from stain, and make us all prouder even than we are today, that we may call ourselves Americans."

DEPUTY FOR STATE POLICE.

Superintendent Chandler Names Percy E. Barbour as His Assistant.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 13. — A further step toward the organization of the State police has been taken. Major George Fletcher Chandler, Superintendent, announced tonight that he had named as his deputy Percy E. Barbour of Yonkers, civil engineer and editor of The Engineering and Mining Journal, who has been an officer in the Coast Artillery and the Twenty-second New York Engineers.

Temporary headquarters have been established in the Telephone Building here, and examinations for membership on the force will be begun soon after June 1. These examinations will be open to the public, and will be held in the Executive Chamber. The State Civil Service Commission will co-operate.

About 400 applications for the 232 places have been received. Major Chandler desires unmarried men between 21 and 35, and not over 165 pounds nor less than 145 pounds in weight.

GIFT FOR WAR ORPHANS.

Historic Comb to be Sold to Help a Joffre Charity.

A tortoise shell comb, worn by the wife of Marechal Bertrand, who accompanied Napoleon to St. Helena, was donated yesterday to the New York Committee of the Fatherless Children of France. The proceeds from its sale will be used in the pledge this organization has made in honor of Marshal Joffre's recent visit to find foster parents for 5,000 French orphans. These are the boys and girls of soldiers in Marshal Joffre's own command.

Miss Luisita Leland, Chairman of the New York Committee, received the old-fashioned high backcomb by express. It came from the collection of Napoleonic souvenirs made by Major S. Taylor, who brought it several years ago from St. Helena. Accompanying the gift was a letter suggesting that it be sold for the Joffre tribute.

SUNDAY TRAINS CUT IN NEW ERIE PROGRAM

Gradual Reduction of Passenger Service on the Road Begins.

The Erie Railroad began yesterday the curtailment of its passenger service in conformity with the recommendations of the Council of National Defense Railroad Board. The company announced a week ago that, as the first of the roads to respond to the appeal for a curtailment of current service to provide for the release of men and equipment, it would take off eighty-two trains. Yesterday a dozen or more trains were discontinued, and others will be omitted today and on succeeding days of this week. It was said last night at the train dispatcher's office at the Jersey City station of the road that the service cut off the schedules yesterday consisted of suburban accommodation and special Sunday trains.

The most serious inconvenience from the change will befall suburban dwellers who come into New York to shop, an effort having been made to maintain schedules for commuters coming to and going from work in New York. No through trains will be taken off the road, according to present plans.

While it is accepted as a matter of course that other railroads will follow the course of the Erie, none of them has made any announcement on this point. Most of the roads will not suffer financially from a slight curtailment of part of their service, but any curtailment similar to that effected in England by the Executive Committee of Managers would seriously imperil the earning capacity of such great passenger carrying roads as the New York Central.

Another war plan of the railroads which is gaining headway is the employment of women in the places of men, especially for clerical work. The Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley have announced plans along this line, and last night R. H. Wallace, General Passenger Agent of the Erie, said that road would employ women to fill the clerical positions left vacant by enlistments of men.

NEW WORDS FOR DIXIE.

"A Battle Cry of Freedom" Sung at Self-dedication Service.

A "service of patriotic self-dedication" was held yesterday afternoon at St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, of which the Rev. William Norman Guthrie is pastor, on the occasion of the anniversary of the founding of Jamestown, Va. Robert Underwood Johnson read his poem, "The Answer of the Lord," as part of the service, and Henry St. George Tucker, who was President of the Jamestown Exposition in 1905, spoke on "For Our Father's Sake and for Our Children's Sake." An inspiring program of congregational recitation and responsive reading from American authors in praise of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and the United States was followed by the singing of stanzas from the "Marseillaise," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Speaking of the probable effect of the war upon the spirit of Americans, and its results of a historical nature, Mr. Tucker, after describing the war as the greatest event in history since the coming of Christ, asserted that democracy could not fail to win against the German governmental system, since God Himself was aligned with the side of democracy.

A feature of the occasion was the singing of the following words, printed under the title "A Battle Cry of Freedom," to the tune of "Dixie":

If our Sires, or We, for freedom came here,
That Man's high Hope endure no shame here,
We as they Look away
From decay
And despite,
(Upholding proudly our Country's honor,
Invoking every blessing on her,)
To the Day
That we pray
Shall array
Her in light:

CHORUS.

So we rally—landsman, seamen—
(Hurrah! Hurray!)
(Hurray! Hurray!)
With heart and hand
We take our stand,
To live and die God's freemen!
(Away! Away!)
(Away! Away!)
No dread of death or demon
(Hurray! Hurray!)
(Hurray! Hurray!)
Shall daunt the will of freemen!

We have wrought and fought, and sought for Duty;
We've own us wealth, to woo us Beauty—
Who'd gainsay
Her fair sway
With display
Of mere might?
While draughts of brother-love refresh us
Th' unwelcome Truth of life is precious;
No dismay
At foul play
Can betray
With affright:
(Chorus.)

Lo, for blood, for fire, seven stripes of crimson—
Heaven's Cup of sacrifice o'erbrims on—
Ever-plight
To the white
Of pure light—
Are unfurled!
The field is square—sky-blue, unclouded—
With five-rayed stars of white fire crowded—
To unite
For the Right
All the might
Of the world!
(Chorus.)

Prayers for the President, Congress, and for the harvest of the world were offered by the pastor, the Rev. William Norman Guthrie. The service closed with the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner" and "America."

About 100 members of the Seventh Regiment Veteran Corps attended the tenth annual memorial service of the corps yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Claudius M. Reome, the corps chaplain.

The names of veterans who had died within the year were read and taps was sounded.

NEW SUFFRAGE JOURNAL.

"The Woman Citizen" Will Be Issued by Leslie Commission.

"The Woman Citizen, a Journal of Democracy," a weekly publication to be edited entirely by women, will be brought out about June 1 by the Leslie Woman Suffrage Commission, Inc. The funds for it will come from the fortune left by Mrs. Frank Leslie to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt for suffrage work.

The Citizen is formed by the consolidation of three suffrage periodicals. The Woman's Journal, forty-seven years old, founded in 1870 by Lucy Stone and Henry B. Blackwell; The Woman Voter, organ of the Woman Suffrage Party of the City of New York, and The National Suffrage News, organ of the National Suffrage Association. The Citizen will be the organ of the National Association and its 2,000,000 women members, and is intended to be a self-perpetuating memorial to Mrs. Frank Leslie and "her faith in woman's irresistible progress." For its slogan the words of President Wilson have been taken:

"We shall fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts, for democracy, for the right of those who submit to democracy to have a voice in their own governments."

Rose Young, Director of the Leslie Bureau of Suffrage Education, will be editor in chief; Alice Stone Blackwell, who succeeded her father and mother in the editorial control of The Woman's Journal, will be a special contributing editor, and for associate editors there will be Ida Husted Harper, Mary Ogden White, Mary Sumner Boyd, Betty Graeme and Rose Lawless Geyer. Florence E. Bate is business manager.

SEIZE WAY TO PRESIDIO.

San Francisco Military Authorities Lay Tracks on Private Property.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—"Military necessity" ran a line of railroad across private property and connected the Presidio, San Francisco, with all rail and water terminals in San Francisco today. The work was started late last night and a military guard was placed over it.

The property is owned by the Rudolph Herman Estate Company. A strip of ground 300 by 15 feet lay in the path of the State Board of Harbor Commissioner's belt line extension to the Presidio military reservation and repeated applications for permission to use this strip were refused, according to Arthur Arlett, President of the board.

M'GRAWITES CONTINUE TO SHOW FAST BALL, WHILE ROBINS' SLUMP ALARMS FANS

GIANTS SET FAST PACE FOR RIVALS

McGraw's Able Cohorts Know Where They're Going and They're on Their Way.

CUBS CHASE ANCIENT FOES

Brooklyn's Slump Causes Comment —Work of Yankees a Feature of Week in American League.

The Giants won all of the five games they played last week and assumed a generous lead—or a selfish one, according to the viewpoint—in the National League race. St. Louis had the honor of leading the league for only a single day—last Sunday—and during the last week the Cardinals have taken a big slump and have dropped down to fourth place. The work of the Giants and Cubs afforded the feature of the playing of the week. It seems like old times to see the Chicago Club fighting in second place at the heels of the Giants. The rivalry between the two teams has been very keen in the past, and it looks as if this long-standing scrap might be on again in earnest this season.

The Giants defeated the Phillies twice and took three games from Cincinnati. McGraw's pitchers are working smoothly and the club is again intact. Herzog having returned to the fold late in the week. The chances of the New York Club look brighter as the season progresses.

The Cubs jumped to second place by defeating the Pirates twice and taking four games straight from Brooklyn. One of the remarkable features of the Cubs' spurt is the return of Pitcher Tom Seaton to top form. He pitched two three-hit games. Only two years ago, when Tom was in the Federal League, it was generally conceded that he was through as a major leaguer.

The deplorable showing of the Brooklyn Club is causing no end of talk among baseball fans. For a club which last year won the pennant, the work of the Dodgers this season is inexplicable. There seems to be little doubt that the Brooklyn Club is not playing the kind of ball it is capable of playing. Rumors are afloat of dissatisfaction among the members of the team over the re-trenchment policy followed by the owners of the club at the end of last season.

The Dodgers have dropped their last six games, and some of these defeats have been characterized by work which has been indisputably careless and indifferent. Manager Wilbert Robinson blames the slump onto the bad weather, but it would appear that there must be some other reason for such wretched playing. If it was the weather alone, some of the other clubs would be just as hard hit as Brooklyn. Many Brooklyn fans do not hesitate to charge the Brooklyn players with indifference.

The first week of the intersectional series between the Eastern and Western clubs shows a decided advantage for the Eastern clubs in both major leagues. In the National League the Eastern clubs won seven games and the Western teams won four. These four were won by Chicago against Brooklyn. In the American League the Eastern clubs won seven games and the Western teams five. The St. Louis Club in the National League was shown to be much weaker than the early showing indicated, for it dropped all three of its games to the Phillies. The Quaker pitchers showed remarkable improvement last week, and Pat Moran's team seems certain to figure prominently in the race. The Boston Braves moved up from seventh place to fifth by taking three out of four games from Brooklyn and Pittsburgh.

The champion Boston Red Sox increased their lead in the American League race by winning five out of six games during the week. They opened their Western invasion by winning three straight from the Tigers. The rise of the Yankees to second place was one of the notable achievements of the week, although by yesterday's defeat in Chicago the Yanks are now tied with the White Sox for second place, each having a percentage of .571. The Yankees' pitching continues to be remarkably good, but there is still room for improvement in the hitting of Bill Donovan's men.

The other teams in the American League did not change positions and Cleveland was the only one of them to go ahead in the percentage column. The American League games thus far have been marked by high-class pitching, the notable performance of last week being Groom's feat on Sunday against Chicago, when the Browns' boxman pitched eleven innings without allowing a single hit.

Heavy batting continues on both circuits. Jack Smith of St. Louis leads the National League batsmen with an average of .480. New York has Burns hitting .366, Zimmerman, .339, and Kauff, 383. The Giants still lead the league in team batting with an average of .271.

In the American League Sisler of St. Louis leads the hitters with an average of .405, with McInnis of the Athletics second with .371. Tris Speaker is third in the list, while Ty Cobb is eleventh in the list.

DETROIT, May 13.—A two-base hit by Cobb, coming after a single by Bush, and Young's sacrifice, gave Detroit a 2-to-1 victory over Boston in twelve innings here today. Boston scored in the second on Walker's three-base hit and Gardner's single. Singles by Hellman and Vitt and a sacrifice by Burns tied it in the eighth. Both Ehmke and Shore pitched great ball, the former allowing only five hits, none of which came after the sixth inning.

YANKS' SHIP RUNS ON CICOTTE REEF

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 13. — The Yankees bowed before the spell of Eddie Cicotte here this afternoon just as they have been accustomed to bow for several seasons past, and the White Sox took the final game of the series, 1 to 0. As the score indicates, the contest was marked by high-class pitching on each side, with Cicotte showing enough of an edge over Nick Cullop to be entitled to the honors by a narrow margin.

Before the game both teams put on exhibition drills, the Yankees in their baseball uniforms and the Sox in their suits of khaki. The warlike tactics thus displayed before the battle were carried into the game, and at times it appeared as if a feud had developed between the two clubs.

The Yankees continually complained that Cicotte was using the emery ball, and inning after inning they called upon Umpire O'Loughlin to examine the ball. Silk did not take too kindly to the idea, and finally the Yankees began to harry the umpire a bit. At one stage he threatened to banish some of Manager Donovan's men from the park when they yelled at him to throw a ball out of the game.

Buck Weaver and Nick Cullop figured in another wordy battle, with the Chicago infielder furnishing most of the conversation. In the eighth inning it looked as if Buck was about to go after Cullop when the latter ran to the first base line to field a bunt, which rolled foul. Cooler heads persuaded Weaver to be quiet, and he went back to the plate and struck out. Earlier in the game Cullop and the New York infielders had soiled three brand new balls as soon as O'Loughlin threw them into play, and not until Silk threatened to banish them and Donovan ordered his players to cut out this work did the storm abate. The game was as scrappy and peppery as it was close.

Cullop limited the White Sox to five singles, only one of which figured in the scoring. The Yankee southpaw paved the way to his own defeat in the fourth inning when he failed to locate the plate with Eddie Collins at bat. The latter, first Chicago hitter to face Nick in this frame, held his bat on his shoulder while Cullop pitched four balls in succession, and then ambled down to first. Joe Jackson's sacrifice put Collins on second, and when Felsch followed with a single to right field Collins raced in with the winning run. Felsch reached second on the throw in, and took third on an infield out, but was left. In the other innings the White Sox did not threaten seriously. Only two got as far as second base, and neither got beyond the midway.

The Yankees were even more helpless before Cicotte. Only thirty men faced him in the nine innings, and only three got to first base. Peck singled as the opener of the third inning, and stole second, but was left. Baker opened the fifth with a smashing drive between Weaver and Risberg, and moved along to second base on Miller's sacrifice. After Peck had flied to John Collins, Baters was intentionally passed, so that Cicotte might devote his attention to the less dangerous, Cullop. The strategy was successful, as Nick rolled to Eddie Collins and was retired at first base.

More than 16,000 fans turned out for the game, despite the cool weather. President Ban Johnson, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, and Captain T. L. Huston were among the spectators. The score:

CLEVELAND, May 13.—Cleveland made it three out of four from Washington by winning today 2 to 0. The Indians made only two hits but by reason of daring base running turned each into a run, Shaw's balk being a factor in one. Only four Clevelanders reached first base.

JERSEY CITY BEATS REDS.

Cincinnatis, Minus Matty, Get Careless and Lose, 6 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

JERSEY CITY, May 13.—With Jimmy Clinton in the box, Jersey City defeated the Cincinnati Reds at West Side Park today, 6 to 4. The Reds hit the ball hard for seven innings, but loose work on the bases kept their score down. In the final inning Clinton put on the brakes and held them hitless and runless. Regan and Eller divided the box work for Cincinnati, and Eller showed to the best advantage.

Groh of the Reds and Stallings of Jersey City were the hitting stars, each getting three hits out of four chances. Stallings got a two-bagger in his collection. The Reds were under the management of Tom Clarke of Corona, in the absence of Mathewson.

BREEDING REPORT SHOWS PROGRESS

F. K. Sturgis, Chairman of The Jockey Club Bureau, Announces Results of Work.

F. K. Sturgis, Chairman of the Breeding Bureau of The Jockey Club, has just received a report on the mares which were placed by The Jockey Club with members of the Genesee Valley Farmers and Horse Association last season. Mr. Sturgis, who is a keen student of horse breeding, is particularly pleased at the results of this venture, which is a part of the plan to place stallions of thoroughbred blood at the service of breeders at a nominal fee. He and other members of The Jockey Club consider this work of paramount importance at this time, especially that branch of the industry which has to do with the production of remounts for the cavalry arm of the service.

Though scores of other mares have been bred to the sires provided by The Jockey Club, the report just received concerns only those which were sent to the Breeders' Association a year ago. Mr. Sturgis expresses enthusiasm over the fact that eighteen out of the twenty-four mares mated with the Breeding Bureau sires in the vicinity of Avon, Mount Morris, and Genesee have proved with foal.

"The percentage is much beyond the average," said Mr. Sturgis, "and we are greatly encouraged at the success which has attended our venture at its very inception. It was our original intention to place only sires in communities which would appreciate the opportunity to improve the quality of their general purpose horses, but the results obtained by our answer to Mrs. Wadsworth's appeal for the distribution of mares among the members of her association are so heartening that as fast as we can secure females of a desirable type either by purchase or donation, they will be distributed in the Genesee Valley and other locations where the right sort of co-operative spirit is found. The fact that the custodians of these mares have the privilege of working them while the foals are their property outright is appealing. All that we exact is that the mother be well cared for. It is stipulated that they shall be mated with sires of the Breeding Bureau exclusively. There is a lesson for every farmer and horse breeder in the United States in the fact that these mares, many of which had not been regular producers, and others which were bred for the first time, should have averaged so high in fertility. It indicates the soundness of the theory that brood mares are better at work than running idle in pastures.

"When The Jockey Club inaugurated its Breeding Bureau," continued Mr. Sturgis, "prizes of $50 were offered in the various counties for the best foal by a Breeding Bureau sire. This was done with a view to stimulating interest in the breeding of a type of horse that would be available for any purpose—it being understood the world over that the thoroughbred makes a model topcross for any family, whether harness, saddle, or draught. These competitions have been held under the auspices of the county agricultural fairs, and considerable rivalry was developed. Interest has been still further increased by our yearling prize of $400, which will be an annual feature of the New York State Fair at Syracuse, where the cream of the young half-breds in the State met in competition last September for the first time.

"With a view to still further encouraging breeders, we have collaborated with the Rochester Horse Show in the offering of a $500 premium for the best two-year-old by a Breeding Bureau sire. The Jockey Club and the Horse Show will each contribute $250, and we look for a competition that should convince the most skeptical of the merits of the thoroughbred as a sire. Those who attended the Syracuse State Fair and the Livingston County Horse Show at Avon last Fall say that the yearling display was particularly strong at both places. It will be interesting to note the development in type during the year. These yearlings were out of three-quarter bred, half-bred, standard-bred, grade Percheron and other heavy draught mares, and still others were from dams of coaching and saddle breeds."

CLOVER PATCH WINS RACE.

Takes Two of Three Fast Heats from Master McKerron.

Clover Patch, J. A. Murphy's brown mare, pacing champion of the Harlem Speedway for the last three years, was forced to go through three stiffly contested heats on the Speedway yesterday afternoon before gaining the honors in the 1:05 pacing event over R. Jacob's bay gelding, Master McKerron. This event was the feature of the third Spring matinee meeting of the Road Drivers' Association and furnished the spectators with a thrilling race. In the first heat Mr. Jacob brought Master McKerron home a nose ahead of the noted mare, but the latter came back and easily led in the second heat. The third heat found the horses racing almost neck-and-neck down the half-mile journey until within about 100 yards of the half-mile post, when Clover Patch gradually increased her gait until at the finish line she was leading by half a length. The victor was timed in 1:00¼, 1:01¼ and 1:03 respectively.

Thanks to a drawn game against Clan MacDuff at Harlem Field yesterday, the Brooklyn Celtics, who needed but one more to clinch their right to retain the title, won the championship of the New York State Football League for the fifth year in succession. The invincible Irishmen did not suffer a single defeat in the entire series. The score yesterday was 1 to 1.

BETHLEHEM WINS AMERICAN CUP

Defeats West Hudsons, 7 to 0, in Final Game for Soccer Football Laurels.

Defeating the West Hudsons by the one-sided score of 7 goals to 0 in the final round of the American Football Association's cup tie competition at Newark, the famous Bethlehem Football Club of Bethlehem, Penn., yesterday won the American soccer classic for the second year in succession. Three thousand enthusiasts witnessed the play.

Within twenty minutes of the start, the steel workers had demonstrated their superiority by establishing a lead of 2 points and at half time they led by 3—0, the result being then a foregone conclusion.

The attack of the West Hudsons lacked direction, while the Bethlehem combination play was at all times under fair control. McKilvey, Easton, and Pepper scored in the first half.

With a deficit of three goals, the West Hudsons fought a losing fight and went from bad to worse in the second half. Pepper scored again, Easton added two more and Fleming sent in a beauty from the left. The lineup:

LEONARD TO BOX CHAMPION.

Harlem Favorite Meets Welsh at Manhattan A. C. on May 28.

Announcement was made last night by the management of the Manhattan A. C., at 155th Street and Eighth Avenue, that negotiations had been completed for a match between Freddie Welsh of England, holder of the world's lightweight championship title, and Benny Leonard, the popular Harlem lightweight, who is looked upon as the most formidable contender for Welsh's honors. The boxers will come together for ten rounds at the Manhattan A. C. on May 28.

This will be the third meeting between these two boxers. In their first bout Leonard gained the popular decision, but Welsh came back later and squared accounts. In his ring exhibitions since this latter engagement, however, Leonard has shown a wonderful improvement, and there are many who hold the opinion that he is the master of Welsh, especially since the latter's poor showing recently against Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion.

ROFRANO ASKS FOR REMOVAL OF SWANN

SAYS HE AIDED TAMMANY

Prosecutor, Accuser Alleges, Conspired to Bring About Conviction to Prevent Election Fraud Expose.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 13.—Michael A. Rofrano, former Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner of New York City, who was tried and acquitted of instigating the murder of Mike Galmari, an east side political worker, filed charges of maladministration and misconduct in office against District Attorney Edward Swann of New York County with Governor Whitman late on Saturday night. In these charges, which were given out today, he accuses Mr. Swann of having conspired to bring about his conviction for murder in order to prevent the exposure of Tammany election frauds He asks the Governor to remove Swann from office after hearing his charges, on the ground that the District Attorney abused the process of the court and the Grand Jury in improperly examining witnesses who were expected to appear in Rofrano's defense. In support of the charge of misconduct in office Rofrano mentions Salvatore Curica, a witness who he alleges was indicted for murder in the first degree after he had refused to give false testimony. And as proof of this he says that after the trial Mr. Swann procured the dismissal of the indictment.

Rofrano further charges that Swann appointed as assistants "inefficient, incompetent and unfit persons." The District Attorney, Rofrano added, could have been aware of this incompetence had he made proper investigations, but he did not, but has continued to keep them in office. Rofrano asks that the charges be heard by Justice George L. Ingraham, who has been appointed by the Governor a Commissioner to hear other charges made against the District Attorney by the City Club.

No comment was made at the Executive Chamber as to the Governor's plans further than the announcement that copies of the charges probably would be served upon Mr. Swann tomorrow.

In his letter to Governor Whitman, Rofrano said:

"The motives which form the background and foundation of this conspiracy against my life will be found in two facts, namely: First, my full and intimate knowledge of election frauds perpetrated throughout Manhattan in the interest of Tammany candidates and my further knowledge of the intricate political machinery by which these frauds are operated on a large scale in each recurring election. Second, my fixed purpose to employ this knowledge in a full public exposure of the facts, that the men in direct control of these frauds should be unmasked, stripped of their evil power and driven out of political life.

"The letter added that Rofrano had been seriously crippled in fortune by the costly legal fight of his life, and that within the last few weeks he had been "proffered large financial inducements to abandon the purpose which is revealed in the charges before you." The letter did not state who had offered the money.

The troubles of Rofrano grew out of the political feuds in the Second Assembly District, where for years he was a lieutenant of "Big Tom" Foley. There were differences of opinion, and in 1894 he left the Foley Club and later organized the Democratic Home Rule Club. Open hostilities between factions started shortly after Mayor Mitchel was elected, and there were several killings. The war was intensified when, in June, 1914, the Mayor appointed Rofrano a Deputy in the Street Cleaning Department. Mike Giamari was killed in March, 1915, and two of Rofrano's followers were convicted. Suspicion against Rofrano as the instigator of the murder grew, and at one trial Rofrano, from the witness chair, denied the charge. Then he resigned his office. On the confession of Frank Fennemore, a henchman, to the Grand Jury that Rofrano had offered him $2,000 for killing Giamari, Rofrano was indicted in August, 1915. He fled and remained a fugitive eight months, returning to surrender to Swann.

MR. SWANN REPLIES.

Says Charges "Maliciously False" in Every Particular.

A statement issued last night in District Attorney Swann's behalf said:

"Rofrano was indicted on Sept. 14, 1915, for murder in the first degree during the administration of Charles Perkins, who was appointed District Attorney by Governor Whitman. Rofrano immediately fled, and remained in hiding for nine months, although a reward of $5,000 was offered by the city for his capture. He surrendered himself after Judge Swann had been in office for five months. At the trial he claimed that he ran away because he could not get a fair trial under Mr. Perkins. He testified at the trial that after Judge Swann took office he believed that he could get a fair trial; that Judge Swann was a very square and upright man, who would gladly listen to any man's complaint and do justice to the poorest as well as to the richest.

"The charges made are maliciously false in every particular, as a full investigation of all the facts will show. No witness was either intimidated or subjected to improper examination.

"His charge of being a victim of political conspiracy is not a new claim for Rofrano. He made the same charge when he was accused of shooting the eye out of a little girl a few years ago.

"On his trial he claimed that every difficulty he had ever got into was due to the plot of his political enemies.

"Judge Swann does not get the connection between Rofrano's charge against him and his claim that the plot was hatched against him [Rofrano] because of his knowledge of alleged election frauds, especially in view of the fact that he was indicted by Mr. Perkins, a Republican appointee of a Republican Governor."

Benefit for Red Cross.

Benefit entertainments were given to crowded houses in two theatres last night. At the Astor the fourteenth annual dress rehearsal of the Green Room Club took place, and at the Casino an entertainment for the benefit of the American Red Cross was given under the auspices of Mecca Temple. Programs to which players from the legitimate stage and vaudeville artists contributed were given in both playhouses.

SYMPOSIUM ON ZIONISM.

Dr. Moskowitz Opposes Movement; Dr. Pool Defends It.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Dr. David De Sola Pool, and Dr. Maurice H. Harris discussed Zionism at a symposium on the Jewish question conducted at Temple Emanu-El last night. Dr. Moskowitz criticised the movement as romantic and impracticable, and said that while he had no objection to Palestine as a refuge for dreamers, he thought the keeping alive of the Hebraic ideals at home was of far greater importance than the Zionist movement.

Dr. Pool made a strong appeal for the colonization of Palestine as the only way to restore Hebrew ideals. Dr. Harris said Palestine should be the place where young Jews could be schooled in the principles of the Hebrew race, but he added that an extended colonization of the ancient land of his people was not practicable.

ACTORS' FAIR IN FULL BLAST.

Julia Marlowe to Read "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" Tonight.

The Actors' Fund Fair, after its gala opening on Saturday night, marked time yesterday preparatory to its big drive today. The bazaar did not suspend operations yesterday, but Sunday is a bad day for fairs, and this, combined with the fact that there was some misunderstanding as to whether the doors would be open, caused the attendance to be much smaller than it will probably be on any other day. All of the booths and exhibits are in place and today the bazaar will be in full blast.

One of the features of the night program will be the reading of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by Julia Marlowe. At the United States Navy booth stars of Charles Dillingham's companies will be on hand.

Luna Park Opens on Saturday.

Luna Park will open for the Summer next Saturday. Extensive changes in the arrangement of the park have been made since last season, and a number of new shows and amusement devices will be seen. The principal attraction will be Pawnee Bill's Wild West spectacle, entitled "Pioneer Days." In this real Indians, cowboys, and cowgirls participate. "The Darktown Follies," one of last season's most popular entertainments, will be retained, and there will be free dancing in the ballroom and free outdoor shows. Parking space for 3,000 automobiles has been provided adjoining an entrance for motors on the Twelfth Street side.

Renews Hippodrome Contract.

It has been decided that Charles B. Dillingham will direct the Hippodrome another year. Mr. Dillingham's original contract with the United States Realty and Improvement Company, which owns the property, was for two years, and at the close of the present season it expired. There was some question as to whether the contract would be renewed, but Harry S. Black, President of the company, said yesterday that it had been.

For Special Aid Society.

An entertainment will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Butler, 600 Park Avenue, on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Aviation Committee of the National Special Aid Society. The speakers will be Cosmo Hamilton, Henry A. Wise Wood, and Augustus Post. Janet Beecher will read an original poem, and Tyson Page, contralto, will sing patriotic songs.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Monday, June 11, is the date announced for the first New York production of the 1917 edition of Ziegfeld's "Follies" at the New Amsterdam. The week before the revue will be whipped into shape at the Apollo in Atlantic City. Vira Amazar, prima donna, and George Baldwin are recent additions to the cast of principals.

"The Eyes of Youth," a comedy by Charles Gueron, was acted for the first time on any stage at the Stamford Theatre, Stamford, Conn., on Saturday night. In the cast of the play, which is in three acts and nine scenes, were Fay Wallace, Harry Davenport, Leonard Ide, Robert Conness, Clifford Stork, and Warner Richmond. The play will be presented by the Shuberts in New York after a brief tour.

Silvio Hein has retired as conductor of the orchestra of "His Little Widows" in order to devote all of his time to the composition of two musical comedy scores. Gus Salzer has succeeded Mr. Hein as conductor at the Astor.

During the engagement of "Her Soldier Boy" at the Shubert Theatre, to which it will be transferred today, soldiers and sailors of the United States or our allies applying for admission in uniform may obtain tickets at half the regular rates.

The engagement of "Peter Ibbetson" at the Republic, originally booked for eight weeks, has been extended indefinitely.

Benjamin Chapin's cycle of motion pictures based on the life of Abraham Lincoln will be exhibited at the Strand in the week beginning May 27. Mr. Chapin, whose personal resemblance to the martyred President is marked, has spent the last four years posing for the pictures in his own studio at Ridgefield Park, N. J.

This will be the last week of George Arliss's engagement in his revival of "Disraeli" at the Knickerbocker. Souvenir booklets of the play will be given at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

The University of California students en route to France to serve in the American Ambulance Service will be the guests of Laurette Taylor at the Globe tonight.

"America's Supremacy" is the title of a patriotic entertainment combining music, drama, and motion pictures, that will be put in rehearsal this week. Mrs. Emma McCann Kemble is the author.

A NEW PICKFORD 'THRILLER.'

"A Romance of the Redwoods" is the title of a new Mary Pickford picture shown for the first time yesterday at the Strand. It tells a luridly melodramatic tale of the California of '49, and Miss Mary plays the rôle of a little New England miss who is sent to join her uncle at the gold fields. When she arrives she discovers that he has been killed by the Indians, and that a road agent is impersonating him to save himself from the law. She remains under the desperado's protection, and of course brings about his reformation, for this is a tale of the cinema and not of real life.

Life in the California gold fields in the middle of the nineteenth century was undeniably romantic and saturated with melodrama, but it is doubtful whether any two of those pioneers lived such strenuous lives as this girl and her bandit sweetheart. There are scenes pictorially beautiful, moderately amusing, and thrilling. Under the last-named classification is the hold up of a stage coach in the mountains.

Miss Pickford is such a thorough artist that it is too bad her authors rarely ever measure up to her skill, or, if they do, the director falls down. Most of her recent scenarios have been unworthy of her talent, and when one that was, "The Poor Little Rich Girl," came along, the director failed.

Margaret Illington was seen for the first time on a New York screen at the Rialto in a film called "Sacrifice." Miss Illington's beauty is not so compelling on the screen as in life, which is a trick of the treacherous camera, but the diminution is not sufficient to be serious. Miss Illington plays two rôles, and by the process of double exposure both characters appear simultaneously in many scenes.

"One Law for Both" was shown yesterday at the Lyric. "The Hand that Rocks the Cradle," a photoplay, was exhibited at the Broadway, though not without difficulties. License Commissioner Bell forbid the showing, and an order temporarily restraining the Commissioner from interfering was procured from Justice Nathan Bijur.

ARMENIAN SINGERS HEARD.

Ancient Airs Revived for Women's Relief Benefit.

The Women's Armenian Relief Committee held a record benefit in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, when an audience of 1,400, mostly of men, paid $3,000 to aid their people, who are victims of war in the East, and gave such applause as Aeolian Hall has not heard this year to a group of soloists, nearly all new to this stage.

A. Chah Mouradian, a tenor from the captured city of Van, was a favorite, and his Armenian folksongs, darting, it was said, from the days of the crusades in the Orient, were of extraordinary interest and worth a more general hearing here. Souren Sewny, violinist, assisted him in Handel's "Largo," addressed to a "Shady Tree," and fittingly sung under towering palms. Mrs. Z. Panosian sang the "Yerpor Patzoulin" of Armenia's canyons, not unlike the "Kom Kyra" of Jenny Lind. Others were Mrs. Donchian, a former professional singer in Constantinople; Miss Costikyan, who added piano solos, and Mrs. Henry Holden Huss, who sang in Armenian.

Enjoy Another "Big Sing."

The Community Chorus filled the thousand chairs on the floor of Carnegie Hall and some hundreds in the boxes last evening for another "big sing" that began with "America" and ended with "The Star-Spangled Banner," sung by everybody in the hall. Leader Harry Barnhart arrived from a community concert in Buffalo, took his coat off, and went to work with only a pianist on the stage to help him. The crowd joined heartily in familiar tunes. Pending Summer plans for a campaign in the parks, it was announced that the chorus has moved for regular rehearsals from De Witt Clinton High School up to the High School of Commerce, on West Sixty-fifth Street, where meetings will be held on Tuesday evenings hereafter.

McCORMACK RAISES $14,000.

Tenor's Home Town and French War Charity Get Benefit Proceeds.

John McCormack raised $14,000 at the Hippodrome last night, in what was said to be the biggest "one man" benefit ever given here, the proceeds to be turned over today in two equal shares, one to the Duc de Richelieu for the French Tuberculous Soldiers' Relief Fund, and the other half to Thomas Chapman, editor of The Westmeath Independent, for the poor of McCormack's native town, Athlone, Ireland. The tenor's children, Cyril and Gwen, with the little Duc de Chaulnes, grandson of Theodore P. Shonts, and several more, sold allied colors, also the green of the Emerald Isle, while some grown-up folk added to the fund from souvenir programs. Bishop Curley of Florida, who was born in Athlone, was a guest in a box.

Mr. McCormack gave a full program of his favorite songs, acompanied by Edwin Schneider, and with the usual violin solos by Donald McBeath. The novel feature was a first American appearance of a young soprano, Lily Meagher, a war refugee from Dublin, whom McCormack coached for the stage. Miss Meagher faced more than 6,000 persons as she sang in a light, high voice, of charming natural quality.

With as clear diction as her teacher himself, she gave songs of Massenet, James H. Rogers, and Molloy. She also added two encores, the last one "Danny Boy," that McCormack has sung to other words of the "Tender Apple Blossom," and that Kreisler arranged for violin and Percy Grainger composed for chorus as the "Irish Tune." Miss Meagher showed unexpected power over the emotions of a great crowd in that simple, tender air.

HONOR SHOLEM ALEICHEM.

Admirers Flock to Memorial Concert for Noted Writer.

The Manhattan Opera House was packed to the limit of its 3,500 chairs and standing room last night for a first memorial concert by admirers of the late Sholem Aleichem, and a popular tribute that recalled some scenes of his life in New York. Among the more serious numbers were songs by the Cantors' Association of the city.

There were readings, the first by Abraham Tannenholz, from works by the late Hayim Nahmoff, and also his story, "If I Were Rothschild," followed later by S. Goldenburg with "The Orphan" and Leon Blank in "There Are No Deaths." A program of incidental music engaged Mischa Levitzki in piano pieces by Gluck, Liszt, and Chopin, Maurice Dambois in 'cello music by Handel and Sammartini, and Maximilian Pilzer in Brüch's "Kol Nidrei."

Hotels that are Human
These three hotels are run by people, for people. Big as they are, they aren't too big to be human.
We don't hire people who can't smile, and be gracious, and be interested. And the employee who can't agree with us that "the guest is always right," doesn't last.
We operate our business on the theory that a successful hotel has to do more than sell to you;—it has to please you and satisfy you.
That theory is working out—as is evidenced by the two new Hotels Statler now building in St. Louis and New York City.
Every room in any Hotel Statler has private bath, circulating ice water and other unusual conveniences. Morning paper delivered free to every guest room. Club breakfasts.
AUTO TOURISTS—Each Hotel Statler has its own Touring Bureau, providing an efficient information service for your convenience.

GET THE SOLDIERS READY.

Not enthusiasm is lacking in the war crisis, but moderation, patience, and clear vision. Our military operations, when they begin, must be controlled by sound understanding and caution. It is true that in preparation we should proceed with all the haste consistent with thoroughness, and that is one reason why the President must accept the Army bill as it stands, when he gets it, though his judgment may convince him that the money and time which must be bestowed on the organization and equipment of an extra volunteer force can be ill-spared now when the real work of organizing a great war army is so pressing. For it must be remembered that this Roosevelt army, as every one is calling it, is out of the well-devised Federal plan; it is not of the regular army, the National Guard, or the drafted reserve. Misunderstanding of this fact is too common. Comment was made in the House of Representatives in Saturday's debate on this delusion. The regular army and the National Guard are recruited entirely on the volunteer plan. The Roosevelt scheme means more volunteers, bodies of untrained citizen soldiery inspired to enter the conflict by the magic spell of one man's name, which is held, in this case, to be more powerful than the call of the nation.

But whatever extra work and expense are involved in the formation and equipment of this special volunteer body must be cheerfully borne. The authorization for its recognition given to the President by Congress has the significance of a demand, backed by the constituents of the Congressmen. If it is not acted upon, means will soon be found further to delay the operation of the Draft bill, so that it must be acted upon, as delay is now perilous. The bill must be accepted so that the provisions relating to vast army extension can be put in operation. Some excellent men are included among the followers of Mr. ROOSEVELT, so far as names have been given. A few may have only personal authority and enthusiasm to recommend them for officerships, but there are others who have commanded large bodies of men and know how to enforce obedience. That a certain number of purely political appointments will be made is probably inevitable. There is all the more reason why such appointments should be avoided in other branches of the army.

It is still uncertain when the completed bill will reach the President. Nobody can foresee what new whim may develop in Congress. Sixteen days have elapsed since the first passage of the bill by both Houses, and the whole country, as it seemed, then congratulated itself upon the completion of a great task. Six weeks ago we entered the war against Germany. Time cannot safely be wasted.

The President comprehends the situation more clearly than Congress and a majority of the people. Again on Saturday he spoke directly to the point at the Red Cross ceremony. "I believe," he said, "that the American people perhaps hardly yet realize the sacrifices and sufferings that are before them." He pressed the point still further. "This is no war for amateurs. This is no mere war for spontaneous impulse. It means grim business on every side of it." Nevertheless, he must endure the workings of "spontaneous impulse" and make use of the measure of authority Congress gives him to prepare us for the grim business in which we must all bear our share.

"UNENLIGHTENED RESTRICTION."

There is a primitive simplicity, a sort of "pre-economic" careless ease of tax laying, in the proposal of the House Ways and Means Committee to raise by a 10 per cent. ad valorem addition the custom duties of the Underwood tariff and to slap a 10 per cent. duty upon all articles now on the free list. What do the originators of this scheme imagine that a free list is for? In general terms it represents the undeniable fact that the country must have free raw materials to keep its industries going, its labor employed, to increase its wealth by the labor and the skill that transform these raw materials. Just as we need to increase our exports, to supply our allies, to add to the national wealth which is to be drawn upon to an unparalleled extent, this naive attempt to hamper and reduce it is made.

There is in the scheme one particular which, without any great possibilities of revenue, marks a retrogression to an essentially barbaric view. It is always difficult to make Congress understand that works of art and antiquities are anything more than "luxuries of the rich." The American Free Art League, artists, educators, many societies and organizations, have had to plead with Congress for the free admission of works of art, to point out patiently and laboriously that such free admission is the settled policy of civilized nations, public policy for the general good. It had been supposed that such was the settled policy of the United States, after some divagations. By its impromptu proposal for the abolition of the free list the House Ways and Means Committee seeks to reverse that enlightened policy.

It would be thrashing over old straw to repeat the arguments by which in 1908, and again in 1913, educators and artists opposed a duty on works of art. One opinion, however, that of a distinguished educator, may be of considerable contemporary interest to the economists of the House Committee on Ways and Means:

> It seems almost superfluous to tell you that I am strongly in favor of absolutely removing tariff duties from objects of art, for it seems to me that every man who understands either the interests of popular education or the true interests of art would desire the removal of the present unenlightened restriction.

The author of this opinion was then President of Princeton University and is now President of the United States.

AN ISLAND PARADISE.

It may be we shall reach the happy isles.

Which are the Hawaiian Islands, and the most felicitous spot of that meridional felicity is the Island of Maui. Hear The Weekly Times of Wailuki:

> A resolution was presented in the House Saturday by Representative FERNANDEZ that the Congress of the United States be requested to increase the compensation of the members of the Territorial Legislature from the sum of $600 to $1,000 for each regular session.
> The present high cost of living is given as an excuse for this demand for more pay, together with the fact that the Legislature has increased the salaries of the officers and employés of the Territory. Neither reason appears to be a good and valid one. There is probably not a dozen members of the Legislature who spend the extent of their salary of $900 per month, and the rest do not spend half of it for one month's expenses. We have known some Maui legislators to come back from previous Legislatures with over $400 saved up out of the $600 allowed them for the sixty-day session.

JERRY SIMPSON of Kansas used to save most of his salary as a Member of Congress, but that was long before these giddy-paced, high-flying, and copiously taxed times. Maui must be a kind of paradise. You seem to hear the surf. You smell the poi. You lie under a breadfruit tree and worry not about the price of wheat. And you are able to save money. Paradise, oh, Paradise!

CONTROL OF FOOD SUPPLY.

The President of the Chicago Board of Trade, explaining why business had been suspended, said:

> Speculation has nothing whatever to do with the action of the Directors in deciding to abandon trading in May wheat, nor is speculation in any sense responsible for the high prices prevailing for May wheat or the cash article. Practically the entire interest in May wheat is restricted to farmers, grain dealers, millers, and foreign Governments. The largest buyers of wheat for present and future delivery at this time in this market are the Governments of Europe, not speculators.

In other words, the food market has been cornered unintentionally, and for reasons which it is not possible to condemn. The buyers of wheat are as careless of profit as of cost. Their only thought is to provide more than enough to keep from starvation the peoples who are separated from their food by the ocean and the submarines. They have bought in rivalry with each other, in ignorance of each other's doings. It is said that their losses are "frightful," running into millions. As they are buyers of what they want and can take and pay for in unlimited amounts, it would seem that the real losers are the sellers. If they cannot deliver, they must pay the penalty. If they can deliver, there is likely to be a disclosure of unsuspected quantities of wheat. The Leiter corner collapsed when ten millions of dollars had been lost in buying more wheat than was thought to exist. There will be a loss of neither wheat nor money to the buyers this time.

The special application of this incident lies in the fact that what is now printed as news was known to Mr. HOOVER before he sailed from the other side. Weeks ago he declared that the urgent need of the situation was to stop competitive buying and to regulate distribution. There is only one man to be the world's Joffre against hunger. It is the man who is not seeing spooks, who has expressed his opinion that the ordinary processes of trade ought to be interfered with as little as possible. He is the very man to be the world's food provider from the stores of North America. With the information which he would have as the dominant buyer and seller he could control supply and forwarding, so far as they are capable of control, without hardship to anybody, with fairness to everybody, and without sending a single rascal to jail.

The price at which he would both buy and sell would be the world price more nearly than the prices of the Board of Trade which was compelled to close for lack of the information which he would have. His prices would be altered daily according to the state of the market, and according to whether he wanted more wheat, or was willing to supply those who wanted it more than he. He would not monopolize the market. If there were others willing to pay more, and he could spare it, they would be supplied. If he had more than he wanted, he would reduce his price. Others might speculate in futures. He would deal in the edible grain, and would control the situation through knowing more about it than anybody else.

It is an extraordinary remedy for an extraordinary situation. In ordinary times nobody would defend a proposal to put the market in the control of anybody for any reason, particularly not for profit. We can neither submit to be overbought in our own market, even by our allies, nor deny them what they need, so far as we can spare it, and in the order of their necessities. There must be somebody informed as to both supply and demand, and indifferent to either, except so far as the information enabled distribution of the staff of life. The situation has created the man to meet it in a degree not true of the military or naval campaigns. There is no mention of price control in the amended bill giving the Agricultural Department authority to deal with other phases of the food question. It is better so. What is wanted is control of the food, rather than of the prices. If the prices are to be controlled, it cannot be done by any device so clumsy as a statute. Discretion and liberty are needed for regulating prices, not the straitjacket of a law.

SUBMARINES AND TRADE.

Ruthless submarine warfare began in February. The cabled reports of British trade show that the imports were £90,000,000 in April, £81,000,000 in March, and £71,000,000 in February. British exports were £43,000,000 in April, £44,000,000 in March, and £37,000,000 in February. March is the only month this year which shows a decrease of imports compared with last year. Every month this year shows a marked increase of exports. The increase of imports for April by nearly £9,000,000 over March and by nearly £15,000,000 over April, 1916, shows that the authorities can import whatever they like, so great is their control over shipping. If they are short of food, it is not from shortage of shipping or the activity of the submarines. The increase of exports shows greater control over the exchanges and an improved condition of industry.

These facts are reinforced by our own trade statistics. For April our figures are not yet available, but for March our exports of foodstuffs were greater than in either 1916 or 1915. That is true of our total exports, and England had its option to take what it wanted of any sort of goods. It is not possible to doubt the activity of the submarines, but they seem to have better sport with hospital ships than with food ships. That progress is being made against the submarines is shown by two facts. In a Washington dispatch one is set forth:

> The State Department has received a report of a speech in the Reichstag May 10 by the German Secretary of the Navy in which that official admitted that a "certain number of submarines were lost as the result of "improved means of destruction devised by the Allies."

Second, some twenty Dutch ships which had been held in harbors on this side for many weeks have received orders to continue their journey home. England dislikes the inactivity of neutral ships, upon which its commerce partly depends, and it has been finding reasons for detaining Dutch ships which avoided the submarine menace by remaining in our ports. The departure of these Dutch ships therefore suggests either less fear of the submarines by Holland or an understanding with England regarding still other ships.

STEEL FOR SHIPS.

Announcement of the Government's plans for the construction of from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 tons of steel and wooden ships in two years at a cost of $1,000,000,000 caused some uneasiness, as it was accompanied by assertions that the program involved "diversion to Government use of the "products of every steel mill in the "country," and cancellation of contracts with private consumers, with payment of damages to them. Railroad companies were to be excepted, but their supplies must be reduced. Consideration of certain facts shows, however, that such treatment of the steel industry will not be required. It will not be necessary to subject all buyers of steel, except the Government and the railroads, to such interference and restraint. American shipyards could not build so much tonnage in two years or three. Their annual capacity, greater now than at any time in the past, and fully engaged for a year to come, is less than 1,400,000 tons. If all their private contracts should be set aside—and a majority of them relate to such work on the sea as our Government desires to do—four years might be required for the specified quantity of tonnage. Even if 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 tons of ships could be made here in two years, the steel required each year would not exceed 1,500,000 tons. And the annual output of our great steel industry is more than 30,000,000. The Government recently ordered 610,000 tons, and it was estimated that all its requirements could be satisfied by 4 or 5 per cent. of the entire product. All that will be needed can be obtained without assuming control of every steel mill or ordering cancellation of existing contracts. We must have the ships, but the nation should know that the greatest possible progress in making them will not necessarily interrupt and stop work on private projects.

The steel industry desires to assist the Government and co-operate with it. This has been shown repeatedly. Judge GARY, Mr. SCHWAB, and other leading representatives of the industry are members of a committee associated with the Council of National Defense. The steel companies will make every effort to satisfy the national war demand. Fortunately, they can supply what the Government wants without causing widespread annoyance, restraint, and loss.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Services Not to be Forgotten.

Italy, as a country, is as well known to Americans as any in Europe because of the great number of them that have visited it, and its history, up to recent years, forms no small part of our textbooks for secondary and advanced education. We are, however, strangely and, considering the size of our Italian population, rather mysteriously, out of touch with modern Italy, and concerning its living men of eminence not many of us know more than a few of their names. So, too, the part which Italy has played in the war is not generally understood and appreciated here, though in proportion to her resources she has probably done at least as much for the good cause as any of its other supporters, and her accomplishments have been neither small nor unimportant.

To the military achievements of Italy Il Cittadino of this city calls deserved attention, its motive being, of course, to gain for the members of the Italian mission who have just arrived recognition in some degree comparable to that which has made so notable the welcome accorded to the representatives of Great Britain and France.

Even at the beginning of the war, it reminds us, Italy's carefully reasoned and fully justified abandonment of the Central Empires, with which she had been in alliance, was of enormous service in that it relieved France from what otherwise would have been the task of guarding her Italian frontier. After some months of comprehensible delay, Italy entered actively into the war on the side of the Allies, timing her declaration of belligerency so that it stopped the German rush into Russia and compelled Germany and Austria to use against Italy great numbers of troops drawn from the eastern and western fronts. At Durwzzo Italy saved the remnant of the Serbian Army—the men now fighting in Macedonia—and she captured Monastir, the only allied victory in that section.

And Italy can claim the credit of being the only one of the Allies to carry the war into enemy territory on a really large scale, and thereby she has given anxious occupation to large forces of both Germans and Austrians—forces which, but for her courage and efficiency, would have been available for employment elsewhere and might have affected seriously the course of events.

Suspended, but Not Repudiated.

Our Teutonic neighbor, the Staats-Zeitung, finds itself consoled for a few of its recent woes by the fact that another neighbor, The Brooklyn Eagle, has been moved to lament and criticise the Washington authorities for ceasing to pay the pensions of civil war veterans who have chosen to pass the last of their declining years in Germany, the land of their nativity. The Staats-Zeitung is unduly pleased with its grievance, and The Eagle should have done a little more investigating before it entered its complaint.

It is true that the pensions in question—there are very few of them—have not been paid since the 1st of January, but they have not been repudiated nor have the names of the pensioners been crossed off the list. The validity of their claim on the Government is still recognized, though if there were any inclination to deny it, a good excuse, if not a good reason, for doing it might have been found. The money is not going to them simply because there is no way to transmit it, or at least none that the Government feels authorized to use. The continuance of the obligation is officially recognized, however, and when peace is restored not only will the payments be resumed, but the arrears will also be sent over.

In some cases, presumably, deprivation of the little income previously received is a severe as well as a real hardship for these pensioners, yet they are only suffering from the fortunes of war, as is almost everybody else, at the present time, and it ought to be easy, or at least possible, for them to discount their expectations at a rate not too exorbitant. The solvency of their Uncle Samuel is beyond question, and his determination to pay his honest debts cannot be doubted by the German bankers, even though some other Germans do pretend to do so.

The Eagle hopes that "we may be pardoned for wishing that something could be done for them," and that "we may be forgiven for hoping that President WILSON will find some feasible way of meeting the pension obligations of the United States to its defenders, wherever their domicile may be, even in Germany." It will be, in the circumstances, but before speaking on this particular subject The Eagle should have remembered that it doesn't take long to wait a minute.

He Talks Real English.

Several of Mr. BALFOUR's hearers have noted with interest that he speaks with only a trace of what we, absurdly enough, are wont to call an "English accent." All but a few, a very few, of his words he pronounces just about as they are pronounced by those of us who have had a decent amount of schooling and have not passed too much of our lives in parts of the country sufficiently isolated to develop—and maintain—a distinctive variant of "American."

There are not many of us, indeed, who enunciate as clearly and carefully as does Mr. BALFOUR, and if hard pressed we would probably have to confess that therein his "accent" is "English," for a good many of his countrymen show the same admirable peculiarity, but that isn't what is usually meant by "English accent." At any rate, Mr. BALFOUR agrees with ourselves in making "here" and "there" the monosyllables they ought to be, and if he divides "issues" with a longer pause between its parts than is familiar to us, that may be not "English," but "Balfour."

Of course, the way he talks is English, not "English," and it is he, and men like him, not the people who talk one or another British dialect, whom the ambitious Americans should try to imitate. Those who, in or out of "society," talk with a marked "English accent," simply talk bad English, and deserve either ridicule or pity, according to the circumstances of their education.

CHARITY AND ART.

Mrs. Atherton Makes a Special Appeal for the Wounded.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

John Moffat tells me that my last article to THE TIMES in behalf of Le Bien-Etre du Blessé was too much in the nature of an interesting article, and that I was so much occupied in stating all that we had accomplished so far and in entertaining the reader that my appeal for funds was completely swamped.

It is true, alas! that writers, like any other artists, are always too prone to be occupied with their manner, and the picturesque matter this manner may be engaged in embellishing, to be as effective as the crafty professional charity fund raiser, whom long practice has taught every sure method of coaxing money out of reluctant pockets. I noticed the same fault in Edith Wharton's appeal in behalf of her tubercular work. The article was so interesting that one quite overlooked its appeal and had a pleasant sensation of content that she had done so well. As any one connected with war relief work knows, her need is great and pressing.

So is mine. I must raise $5,000 a month or my blessés will die. And now that this terrific fighting on the western front is in progress, and the wounding is three times as great as the killing, the need grows daily. In a letter from Mme. d'Andigné, just received, she says:

> There are two enormous new evacuation hospitals opened in Champagne and three or four people come in a day asking us to send supplies there. The camions (trucks) come up to the baraque (warehouse) and simply beg for food. * * * I am so rushed that I can hardly think. A certain number of people are very faithful about helping, but no one person seems able to take charge of any one department. I have to keep everything in my head and it makes it turn. (I never thought my head would turn!) But if some of the suffering is relieved what difference does it make? As I said in my last, cable every week three-fourths of the money collected and send one-fourth in foodstuffs, particularly just now condensed milk, cocoa, prunes, and sugar. A poor soldier wrote me from a hospital: "Dear lady, the cocoa was so good. I had not tasted any for so long, and those biscuits and soups—la! la! I was so hungry and ill and now I am better." Another letter was an attempt from an Arab, poor thing. I could only distinguish the word "co-co." * * *
> (In P. S.)—People clamoring for supplies all morning. Ten thousand just brought into hospitals greatly in need. Please make new appeal.

If out of the many thousand readers of THE TIMES 1,000 would send me $5 each, or 5,000 would send me $1, Munroe & Co. could cable $4,000 to Paris on Saturday and I could place an order with the Vacation War Relief for $1,000 worth of the immediately desired articles. Last week, alas! I could cable nothing, and I have been so successful hitherto in raising money that it is now well known in France, and no one over there gives any more! I have long since passed that point where I have any pride in the matter, but its substitute is a haunting vision of what the conditions in those terrible war zone hospitals would be if I no longer could raise the money to help Mme. d'Andigné supply them; and not only the physical calamity but the grim and silent despair of those wounded men. Now we keep up their morale, as well as restore their vitality.

Many rich people have refused my personal appeals (and if anybody thinks begging is pleasant let him try it) on the ground that they are already pledged to certain war charities and can afford no more. The truth is they are ashamed to give small sums. Cannot they donate $5 through one of their employes? And $5 keeps a man during his entire term in hospital, and means either a life saved or a short term of hope and comfort.

All donations should be addressed to our Treasurers, the bankers, John Munroe & Co., 360 Madison Avenue, (eighth floor.) Please do not omit these specific directions, as the National Allied Relief Committee has moved, and all checks must be entered there upon our books before being sent on to Munroe & Co., at their banking house, 30 Pine St. This is done by special messenger every afternoon. All checks should be made out as follows: "To John Munroe & Co., for Le Bien-Etre du Blessé."

The French Loan and Ours.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why shouldn't the Government issue its Liberty Loan bonds in denominations as low as $20, as was done by the French Government? Why could not the bonds be sold at every Post Office and every branch Post Office in the United States, as was done in France? Why not make these $20 bonds of such a form that, instead of having a lot of coupons attached to them, the interest could be collected at any Post Office or branch Post Office in the United States upon having the bond punched like a meal ticket? I remember during the early days of the war in Paris seeing the branch Post Offices selling 100-franc bonds like hot cakes to long lines of purchasers composed of concierges, cab drivers, and small trades people—in fact, every Tom, Dick, and Harry. My idea may not be as silly as it looks. In any event, something like this ought to be done to make the Liberty Loan a really popular success. This method would give everybody a chance to get a bit of it, and these small bonds might afterward circulate as freely as $20 notes.

A SOLDIER OF THE SOIL.

A long deserted, barren spot,
Its boundaries mine, and yes, alas,
My only makeshift garden plot!

While others plow the spreading field
And plant with ease the fertile soil,
I'm wondering what will be the yield
For all my hard, back-breaking toil.

A crop of cut-worms, first, no doubt,
Or maybe just some frozen seeds,
And then the tender shoots choked out
By nettles or some other weeds.

A foot of dirt to rake and hoe;
A month of work before I'm through;
Still, to the war I'm bound to go—
I want to be a soldier too!

My blood is hot for patriot strife;
I'm out for gore and victory.
Armed with a spade, I'll take the life
Of every bug and worm I see!

APPEAL TO COAL MEN TO INCREASE SUPPLY

MUST NOT HOLD UP CARS

Operators Asked to Pledge Themselves Not to Delay Rolling Stock at Mines or Terminals.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The newly-formed Committee on Coal Production of the Council of National Defense addressed an appeal today to the coal operators of the United States stating that: "The country at the present time, in the matter of its fuel production, is confronted with a great emergency," and asking the operators' organizations to co-operate in the fullest degree with the Council of National Defense to keep production at the maximum as long as the war lasts.

The committee said that if the coal situation continued to grow worse "it may be necessary that active steps be taken to so far as possible confine the distribution and use of it to those activities which are more nearly vital to the welfare and protection of the nation."

The appeal said: "The miner or the company's representative who remains at work renders as patriotic service as the man at the front."

The appeal to the coal operators was the first action of the Coal Production Committee, which, with Francis S. Peabody, as Chairman, was formally organized on May 9.

"Notwithstanding the increased production of coal from practically every district, the increasing requirement to meet the needs of all classes of industry, as well as for the comfort and welfare of the people and the transportation of troops, munitions, food, and other products, together with the supplying of our allies, and for our national protection, all these demands are liable to surpass the capacity of our mines unless the full co-operation of the mining, transporting, and distributing agents of this country is secured," the letter to the operators said. "This emergency requires not only the development of the highest efficiency, especially on account of a diminishing supply of labor used in the production of coal, but also in more comprehensive methods of co-operation by the coal producers with the transporting and distributing agencies, so that not only a full production will be secured, but also that this production finds its way over our railroads to those centres where the most urgent need exists.

"We believe that the first essential toward an increased production of coal is a close co-operation between mine employer and mine employe, and inasmuch as the United Mine Workers of America and the mine operators in several districts have already pledged by joint resolutions to the Council of National Defense, under whom this committee works, and have nominated committees, the services of which have been offered to the Council of National Defense to this end, we now call upon the several committees to use their best and continued efforts to increase, in so far as they are able, the production of coal for the public necessities by keeping the mines continuously at work, avoiding labor disputes and unnecessary shutdowns. The operation of well-established mines should not be impeded, and we suggest and urge that the practice of moving miners from the mines of well established producing companies or communities to other districts be discouraged, as this practice creates a state of unrest and tends to decrease the total output of coal, interfering with the stability of the industry which is necessary for the highest efficiency. An effort should be made to instill in the mind of the individual miner and operator, as well as the organized body, the necessity of individual effort and continuous performance so far as work is offered. The miner or the company's representative who remains at work renders as patriotic service as the man at the front.

"The total production of coal throughout the country has been seriously curtailed by difficulties in transportation service and unequal distribution of cars, resulting in shortage in the number of cars available for loading, as well as congestion in the avenues leading to the points of distribution. We urge upon the operators that they pledge themselves to load all cars obtainable in the shortest time after they become available, and that they further take up and urge their customers to release these cars at the earliest possible date after delivery so as to make them available for further use without unnecessary delay."

QUAKERS IN A QUANDARY.

Though Exempt Under the Draft Bill, Many Are Likely to Enlist.

New York Quakers are stirred over the form of the Conscription bill. Edward Thomas, a member of the Twentieth Street Meeting, which is ranked with the Orthodox, said yesterday that the bill as it stands exempts Quakers, but that Friends sought to have it exempt all whose consciences forbid them to take up arms. Quakers of New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore went to Washington for conferences with the Government—not in their own interest, Mr. Thomas said, but of all. A result was the exemption of Quakers alone, which had not been sought.

Yearly meetings of both Orthodox Quakers of New York and of Hicksites in Rutherford Place are to be held two weeks hence, and the question of Quakers and the war will come up. In England many Friends are in jail, and some Quakers here assert they will go to jail rather than fight. Yesterday Elisabeth E. W. Hoag, one of the ministers of the Friends Meeting in Rutherford Place, said:

"W. M. Jackson, one of our honored Friends, said to me the other day he feared only a few Friends would stand by the old Quaker peace conviction. All others will go to war if asked by the Government to do so. I hardly think any will enlist, but they will not stand out against the Government."

FOR A PAID SCHOOL BOARD.

Levy Says Duties Will Require All of Members' Time.

Isadore Montefiore Levy, a member of the Board of Education, issued a statement yesterday opposing the Lockwood bill providing for a board of seven members to serve without pay, which is now awaiting the Governor's signature after passing the Legislature. Mr. Levy's first criticism of the bill was that the proposed board of seven could not carry on properly the work devolving upon the legislative and executive body at the head of the city's school system. In the present board of forty-six members, says Mr. Levy, there are thirteen standing committees, each of the chairmen of which has to devote from two to four full days a week to his school duties.

"If a change is going to be made to a board of seven, then such members should be paid," he said. "I know strong objection is made to a paid Board of Education. The late Mayor Gaynor thought that was the only solution of the problem. If we are going to have a small board of seven, then the members thereof must be able to conscientiously give up all of their time to the work. We must take the same chance of politics affecting such appointments as we take in the case of appointments to the Supreme Court of the State or of the United States."

SHALL ROOSEVELT GO TO FRANCE?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The adoption by the House of Representatives of the "Roosevelt" amendment to the Conscription bill presages the authorization of the President to raise and maintain by voluntary enlistment, to organize and equip not to exceed four infantry divisions, the officers of which shall be selected in the manner provided by Paragraph 3 of Section 1 of this act; provided, that the organization of said force shall be the same as that of the corresponding organization of the Regular Army; and provided, further, that there shall be no enlistments in said force of men under 25 years of age at time of enlisting; and provided, further, that no such volunteer force shall be accepted in any unit smaller than a division.

It is well understood that the President will have full discretion in regard to the raising of the force, the time of dispatching and the rank of Colonel Roosevelt. On all these points he will take counsel with the General Staff.

It does not seem to be generally appreciated that the advice of the General Staff and the course of the President will be determined by the views of the French Government, without whose consent we cannot land a corporal's guard in France. These views, shared by the War Council of the Entente and in some way authoritatively conveyed to the President, will unquestionably guide his conduct.

To be short: If France calls in distress for Roosevelt and his volunteers our duty, no less than her concern, demands a quick response. If France simply calls for troops in a hurry let us speed a force composed of regulars and the best of the State troops, complemented, if necessary, by hand-picked volunteers and with regular officers in all the high commands.

Whenever and wherever our armies go let the high commands be first given to the professional soldier, to the man who has spent his life in our military service. Once in the fight the volunteer may aspire to whatever rank his service merits. CARMAN F. RANDOLPH.

Popular Judgment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Roosevelt's position as a patriotic citizen needs no strengthening. He is today the foremost citizen of this country, and is so regarded by multitudes of those who voted against him four years ago and who would have voted against him last November.

A plebiscite would demonstrate the almost unanimous opinion that he should lead a brigade or division abroad at the earliest moment possible—and it would be upheld by public opinion in France and England, both civil and military. Mr. Choate has expressed that judgment in his terse "Send Teddy." Colonel Repington of The London Times voices it in his appeal for "200,000 American troops at once," and the English and French Commissions, now our guests, have urged it, so far as propriety would permit.

Colonel Roosevelt's experience as a military commander (although he is not without it) is secondary to the psychological value of the fact that he can put that number of trained, or partially trained, men in Europe by mid-July, and he is the only man who can. Marshal Joffre has said that, in any case, the intensive training must take place behind the lines. Those in the "Roosevelt Legion" will be drawn almost entirely from those not included in the selective draft, and many of them, perhaps most, have had military training, and all of them are fit.

In this expedition there is no interference with the military plans of the Administration. It is essential that our flag be placed at the front as soon as possible, and Colonel Roosevelt can inspire his men with an esprit du corps that will be possessed by no other organization. He can lead them to hell—and back—as none other can. He is the man above all others to go, therefore he must go and he will go.

The Cuban Campaign.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Have the officers of the regular army no friends, wives or sons or daughters to defend their loved ones, to come forward at this time to let these United States know what Theodore Roosevelt did not do in Cuba? Must we whose nearest and dearest were killed or wounded stand back and let this man who employed magazine writers or newspaper men to accompany him—a man, not a soldier, but an excellent politician—write of exploits that no regular army officer can be said to be a witness to?

Ask Colonel Roosevelt himself and let him answer over his own signature; Did he lead out the army? Was he the first man up San Juan Hill? Where was he that day and then at Las Guasimas? Did he receive orders from any higher authority, his brigade commander, to detour the Rough Riders past the United States Infantry and fairly murder his men? None would have ever lived to tell the tale but for the colored Ninth and Tenth Cavalry Regiments.

The army officers are too modest all these years they have borne in silence the part each man took in that fight. It was a captains' fight, each officer had to judge for himself, and for the sake of those who died and were wounded that day I say let some man speak who can without breach of etiquette.

HONORA M. GODFREY.

Joffre's Advice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It appears that Roosevelt is able to create sufficient enthusiasm to enable him to raise a division of possibly 150,000 men outside of the ages named in the Conscript act; and it further appears that he does not ask to be placed in personal command of this army; and it further appears that General Joffre is pleading for just such untrained troops as are rallying to Roosevelt.

It further appears that the military authorities at Washington are utterly opposed to sending the regulars to France, claiming they are needed here to train the 500,000 we are going to raise. Why not follow the advice of Joffre, who has an established reputation for military capacity and genius, rather than that of others who have had no such experience, and why not utilize the enthusiasm which Roosevelt has aroused in the country to send at once to France an army whose enthusiasm will fire alike the French and English armies, and send a cold chill down the spine of the disheartened German Army? It was just this patriotic fire which for a time made the untrained volunteers of the South invincible in 1861-2.

I would sooner trust the Roosevelt contingent to the wise and safe guidance of Joffre when they reach France than to any one on this side. There is no enthusiasm now in the country except that which Roosevelt has evoked, and nothing will tend so much to kindle enthusiasm here as will Roosevelt's expedition at the present time to France.

Both sides in the civil war, as I know from experience, suffered from the jealousy of trained military men toward civilians, some of whom developed more military capacity than those trained at West Point—take John B. Gordon of Georgia for example.

Like Garibaldi.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in this morning's papers the resignation of Colonel Roosevelt from the Army League and also the letter to him of Joseph Leiter.

It seems to me that present history and past history have shown that volunteers are those who bring the results in battle.

In 1860, when Garibaldi left this country and went to Italy to fight for the unity of the Italian States, he accomplished it with the volunteers who followed him and who adored him as their idol.

Volunteers are always better fighters than conscripts. They know for what they are fighting. Conscripts are not necessarily patriotic, as was instanced the other day at a nearby university, when many of the students declared that they would prefer to go to jail rather than go to the front.

I think, and earnestly believe, that in the interests of the United States Colonel Roosevelt should be allowed to lead a volunteer force into France. He has experience, ability and courage, and his fighting units are now ready.

FUND FOR RUSSIAN EXILES.

George Kennan Tells Needs of Those Returning from Siberia.

George Kennan, an authority on Russian affairs, in a letter to the Society of the Friends of Russian Freedom, made public yesterday, writes in support of a fund it is proposed to raise for the temporary relief of returning Russian political exiles. He gives this summary of conditions that prevailed in Siberia to show why these long-banished fighters for freedom have never been able to help themselves:

"As I have visited most of the Siberian penal settlements and am familiar with the conditions of life in that remote part of the world I am able to explain some of the reasons for the destitute condition in which thousands of these political exiles will return. Most of the towns and villages to which they were banished are so situated, geographically or climatically, that it was practically impossible for cultivated men and women to earn a living.

"In the northern parts of the Siberian provinces there is no agriculture, and the movements of the exiles were so restricted by the police that it was impossible for them to engage in fishing, fur trapping, or the transportation of merchandise, which were the only gainful occupations open to them. None could practice his profession, for the alleged reason that such work would give facilities for disseminating revolutionary ideas among the people."

Mr. Kennan says Paul Milukoff, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Provisional Government, has consented to ascertain the needs of these exiles and to provide for the distribution of contributions in the form of food and clothing.

FOR OLD CITY HALL CUPOLA.

Marks and de Forest Favor a Return to Original Design.

At a meeting of the Municipal Art Commission this afternoon at 4 o'clock it is expected that suggestions will be made regarding plans for rebuilding the City Hall cupola, which was destroyed by fire on Thursday. Borough President Marks and President de Forest of the commission have conferred on the question of using the original plans of the architect of the City Hall, John McComb, which were changed by the builders of the second cupola in order to put a clock in the tower.

The Borough President, Mr. de Forest, and other members of the commission agree that the cupola should contain a clock if it can be made to harmonize with the beautiful lines of the building.

TO CUT LIVING COST.

Newly Formed Committee Tells of Broad Taxing Scheme.

The formation of the Committee on the High Cost of Living was announced yesterday, with offices at 320 Broadway. Charles H. Ingersoll is Chairman of the Executive Committee, the other members of which are Frederick L. Cranford, John J. Hopper, Frederic C. Howe, Frederic C. Leubescher, and William Lustgarten. Benjamin C. Marsh is the Executive Secretary.

The purposes of the committee as told in its announcement are: (1) To secure the transferring of taxes now levied on buildings and all other improvements and products of labor to land values. (a) In order to bring about more land cultivation and so to reduce the price of all foodstuffs by increasing the supply. (b) In order to take the burden of taxes off the workers of the country by securing the ground rent to meet most of the cost of local and State Governments. (2) To urge Federal acquisition of the natural resources of the country during war—oil, minerals, and timber—the owners to be paid only the value, excluding good will, they have given thereto—and sale of the products at cost.

The committee has submitted a brief embodying its ideas to the Federal Trade Commission.

$2,000 OBTAINED ALREADY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—It became known today that the entire net proceeds of the concert tour on which Miss Margaret Wilson, the President's daughter, is now absent in the South are to be given to the American Red Cross. That body has already acknowledged a previous gift of $1,000 from the proceeds of other concerts by Miss Wilson, and the Blind Association of the District of Columbia has received an equal amount, also the result of Miss Wilson's artistic activity. Her present tour, on which her friend, Mrs. Ross David of New York, is acting as accompanist, has lasted more than a month, and during her absence the family circle at the White House has been smaller than at any other time in the present Administration. There are no guests there at present.

The President and Mrs. Wilson attended the Central Presbyterian Church this morning, and in the afternoon went for their usual motor ride.

Mrs. Charles Taber Martin, eldest daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury, has arrived in Washington from her home at Chestnut Hill, Penn., to attend the marriage on Tuesday of her sister, Miss Nona McAdoo, and Ferdinand de Mohrenschildt, Second Secretary of the Russian Embassy. SALE OF HOWELL LIBRARY.

Washington's Copy of Shakespeare in Collection to be Disposed of.

The library of the late James E. Howell, Vice Chancellor of New Jersey, will be sold at the American Art Galleries on May 15 and 16. Mr. Howell's interest in Shakespeare and the Bacon controversy led him to collect an unusually large number of items relating to Shakespeare and his contemporaries. Although none of the rarities are represented, the collection is one of the largest that has been offered at public sale in America within recent years. It includes Shakespeare's plays, tragedies, comedies, poems, and sonnets, together with biographies and bibliographies.

Mr. Howell was interested in the history of his State and country. His library contains a number of items relating to New Jersey and America, among which are Burk's "History of Virginia, 1804"; Imlay's "Topographical Description of the Western Territory," London, 1797; Philip Freneau's "Miscellaneous Works," Philadelphia, 1797; Cooper's "History of North America," London, 1789, with the rare frontispiece, "America Trampling on Oppression"; the exceedingly rare "New Jersey Boundary Line," by "Aristides," 1795; "New Jersey Laws," Trenton, 1805, with the autograph signature of Governor Pennington, and various Newark imprints.

Of special interest is a copy of Bell's edition of "Shakespeare's plays," London, 1774, which was owned by George Washington, and was in his library at Mount Vernon. Washington presented it to his nephew, George Lewis, who was the son of Mrs. Betty Washington Lewis, the only sister of George Washington.

CONCOURSE IN TIMES SQ.

Merchants' Association Wants It Extended to Forty-fifth Street.

The Board of Directors of the Merchants' Association has indorsed the plan to build a concourse for general public use between Forty-second and Forty-fifth Streets, in connection with the new Seventh Avenue subway. The report of the Committee of City Traffic of the association, which was approved, says that the subject was taken up for consideration at the request of the Broadway Association, which had proposed changes in the present plans for the Times Square station of the dual subway station. The plans submitted are:

"Discontinue the so-called physical connection now provided by the two northeasterly tracks of the Interborough Company between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets; raise the grade of the Broadway line until it is on a level with the Seventh Avenue subway. This will permit of an extension of the concourse which is now planned from Fortieth Street to Forty-second Street, to Forty-fifth Street, which would give Times Square practically an underground street.

"The stubbing of the present four tracks in Forty-second Street at the easterly line of Forty-second Street and Broadway. Proper platforms can be arranged for those tracks, and these platforms will be straight, and will accommodate the largest size trains that can be run. Two of these tracks will be slightly depressed, and if desirable to have a physical connection between the Interborough west and east side lines, and we favor it, these two tracks can be continued under the grade of the Broadway subway, curve around into Broadway at Forty-fifth and Forty-seventh Streets, and make connection with the Interborough line at those points, which will be a real operating connection."

Flag Raised in Front of Church.

A large American flag, the gift of Dr. Charles V. Paterno, was unfurled on the thirty-five-foot flag pole in front of the Fort Washington Presbyterian Church, Broadway and 174th Street, at noon yesetrday. About 1,200 persons, including members of the Home Defense League of the West 177th Street Police Station, attended. The large flag was unfurled and hoisted by Carlo Middagh Paterno, 9-year-old son of Dr. Paterno, the "Star-Spangled Banner" was sung, and the ceremony concluded with the singing of "America's Prayer," followed by benediction.

SAVE FOOD, SAYS PERKINS.

Holds High Prices Are Due to Poor Transportation Methods.

George W. Perkins spoke on the importance of food conservation last night at a meeting of the Civic Forum at Public School 84, Glenmore and Stone Avenues, East New York. He said a reason for high prices was the antiquated method of bringing food into the city, and cited the delays experienced by the New York Central Railroad in bringing its freight cars in from Spuyten Duyvil.

He said the city should have a Market Department which would furnish information to the people as to the kind of food which was plentiful. Food, he concluded, would probably be the deciding factor in the war, and the problem should be given intelligent consideration.

BIRDSEYE ACCUSES STATE OFFICIALS

Declares Insurance Departments Knew of Pittsburgh Life and Trust Co. Insolvency.

SAYS PHILLIPS AIDED HIM

New York's Superintendent Issues Denial—Believes Consultations Were Part of Scheme.

Clarence F. Birdseye, who was indicted last week in Pittsburgh on a charge of conspiracy with others to wreck the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company and whose business activities are being investigated by the New York County Grand Jury, issued a statement yesterday through his counsel, State Senator James A. Foley, C. L. Craig, and Martin W. Littleton, in which he charged that Jesse S. Phillips, New York State Superintendent of Insurance, and the Insurance Department of Pennsylvania knew for several years that the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company was insolvent and permitted it to carry on business that placed the money of new policyholders in jeopardy. Mr. Birdseye further charged that Mr. Phillips had advance knowledge of and approved the transactions which formed the basis of his later attack on the company.

Mr. Phillips, whose report to the Pennsylvania and New York authorities about the condition of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company caused the criminal actions against Mr. Birdseye and others, was in Montclair yesterday and did not have the facilities for preparing a complete answer to Mr. Birdseye. The statement was read to him over the telephone, and he dictated a reply in which he branded as "absolutely untrue" everything said by Mr. Birdseye that cast reflections on his conduct.

Mr. Birdseye's statement read in part:

"The Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company and the Washington Life insurance Company have been in a condition of practical insolvency for a number of years. This condition has been fully known to the Insurance Departments of both New York and Pennsylvania, which departments, during this period, allowed the companies to carry certain of their assets at grossly inflated prices so that their true condition might not be known to the insuring public.

"Through his great familiarity with insurance matters, Clarence F. Birdseye came to know this condition of affairs, and in a number of interviews with the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York he pointed out the great danger of such a condition, and suggested a method whereby the company might be put on a sound basis. This general plan was to substitute first-class lumber bonds in place of some of the nonproductive and grossly overvalued real estate and to obtain a fine insurance man to head the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company, and to reorganize entirely its internal affairs.

"All of these matters were gone into very carefully with the Superintendent of Insurance of New York, and Mr. Birdseye understood that he had the full approval of the New York Insurance Department in what he was contemplating acting on this basis. Mr. Birdseye made arrangements to obtain such lumber bonds as were needed, and also arranged to acquire control of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company. A few days before the final transaction took place, he asked a number of personal friends of his son if they would act as temporary Board of Directors, and this they consented to do. They were none of them personally interested in any manner whatsoever.

"After the transaction had been consummated exactly along the lines discussed, Mr. Birdseye again saw Jesse S. Phillips, Superintendent of Insurance of New York, for the purpose of obtaining his formal approval. Mr. Birdseye throughout has acted in the utmost good faith, which is confirmed by his repeated conferences with the New York Insurance Department.

"The onesidedness of the Pennsylvania official presentation of this matter is emphasized by criminal proceedings against five New York Directors, while the six other Directors participating in the same acts and having exactly as much knowledge, but who reside in Pittsburgh, are left unmolested and unmentioned."

Mr. Phillips, in his reply to this statement, flatly denied Mr. Birdseye's charge that he knew the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company was insolvent and permitted it to place the money of policyholders in jeopardy. Discussing the lumber bonds, Mr. Phillips continued:

"It is true that Mr. Birdseye conferred with me several times, and it now appears that this was a part of his scheme to induce others to assume their part in the affair. But any statement that he ever mentioned to me directly or indirectly the Dare Lumber Company or its bonds or that he ever motioned any proposed disposition of the funds of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company prior to the consummation of the deal is unqualifiedly false. He never mentioned any lumber company bonds in connection with the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company. In one conversation he intimated, in reference to another insurance company, that perhaps lumber bonds could be used to dispose of its real estate, and I stated to him in connection with that company that I would not consent to the exchange of real estate for industrial bonds regardless of their value. He never mentioned any particular lumber company.

"My activities since the discovery of the facts in connection with the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company indicate that the transaction in question never had the slightest approval from me."

INDORSES COTTON SHIELDS.

Inventor Thinks Heflin Plan of Ship Protection Is Feasible.

"I read with a great deal of interest Congressman Heflin's suggestion in THE TIMES this morning of the use of cotton bales to protect ships from submarines," said Levi F. Eaton, an inventor and mechanical engineer, at the Prince George Hotel yesterday. "That is the best suggestion I have seen in print so far in regard to dealing with the submarine menace, although I have no doubt that the naval experts and the Advisory Board are working on many promising devices to baffle the U-boats.

"All persons who have familiarized themselves with the resisting power of cotton against projectiles must know the value of this suggestion," continued Mr. Eaton. "When the submarines first began their ravages on commerce it occurred to me that an outside armor or shield of cotton on the hulls of vessels would prove effective and I gave the matter some serious consideration, but I realized that the most noted mechanical and scientific minds in the world were at work on the problem and hesitated to make any suggestion or submit any plans to Washington, assuming that the cotton shield would come in for due consideration in their experiments.

"My idea would be to make a shield, say six inches thick, of raw cotton encased in thin metal, and suspend one from either side of the vessel at a distance of six or eight feet from the hull. It would be fastened to the vessel by steel davits, much as the lifeboats are, and would extend perpendicularly to sufficient depth to protect the hull to the point where it begins to bend toward the keel. It would extend fore and aft in such a way as fully to protect the broadside of the vessel. The shields would be chained to the hull below the waterline to prevent their 'spreading' in rough seas—that is, they would be so tethered as to keep them as nearly perpendicular as possible at all times.

"When the torpedo struck the shield it would be deflected downward and when it exploded the cotton would prevent the fragments tearing the hull of the ship. The shield itself doubtless would be damaged, possibly sounder, but it would protect the ship from serious damage. It must be remembered that there would be six or eight feet of water between the shield and the hull of the vessel and this would take up much of the impact of the torpedo. It would be simply applying the principle that the ballplayer uses in catching a swiftly thrown ball; it strikes in his glove and at the same instant he draws his hands back, slowing down the force of the ball."

Mr. Eaton, whose business is at 138 Lafayette Street, Detroit, Mich., has invented many printing and engraving devices and is well known in the mechanical engineering world.

BOARD WILL UNIFY ALLIES' SHIPPING

RED TAPE IS QUICKLY CUT

Made Our Heads Swim, Says E. D. Page, Describing Rapidity of Secretary Baker's Action.

A transportation board under the direction of the War Department to coordinate the shipping facilities of the Allies and the United States Government and to attain the greatest possible efficiency in the movement of military supplies to Europe is to be organized at the Port of New York. The plan, which was originated in this city by the New York Advisory Committee to the Quartermaster's depot, has been approved by Secretary of War Baker. He has appointed Colonel John M. Carson, Depot Quartermaster in New York, to head the board, with the title of Superintendent of Army Transport Service of the Port of New York.

Edward D. Page, Chairman of the New York Advisory Committee and a Director of the Merchants' Association, who submitted the plan to Secretary Baker, said yesterday that it was expected the board would include expert shipping and railroad men, as well as representatives of the Allies. Vice President A. C. Fetterhoff of the International Mercantile Marine and Connop Guthrie, the British agent, have already approved the plan. "Hundreds of thousands of dollars can be saved," said Mr. Page, "by cutting red tape, storing goods together for shipment abroad to the allied Governments, shipping together consignments for the same destination, and releasing some 20,000 freight cars now stacked up on the railroads for miles out of New York."

The taking over of the dock property of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines by the War Department puts into the hands of Colonel Carson docking facilities capable of great expansion, Mr. Page said. Plans have been drawn showing how the railroad connections of these docks could be quickly improved and large switching and sorting yards provided. In the development of the plan the War Department may lease the property of the Hoboken Shore Road, and thus be in a position to use the docks, railroad, and switching facilities as practically a unit.

"When we laid our plan before Secretary Baker," said Mr. Page, "we received a strong impression as to how business is being dispatched in Washington. Lucius R. Eastman, Jr., of the New York Committee, accompanied me. Mr. Baker heard our plan through without interruption, made only one slight comment on the suggestions and then asked us if we had any one in mind to represent the War Department on the board. Upon our replying in the negative, he proposed Colonel Carson, whom we heartily approved.

"Without another word the Secretary rang his bell, sent for the Quartermaster General, laid the plan before him, obtained his immediate approval, and instructed him to issue the necessary orders at once. All this was done so quickly that our heads began to swim. At the same moment he wired Colonel Carson to breakfast with him the next morning in New York. I understand that he then gave his instructions verbally.

"Some of the examples of waste through lack of co-ordination of the shipping agencies of the Allies would be ludicrous if the situation were not so tragic. Two transports arrived at Hampton Roads the same day, one from Bordeaux fitted with horse stalls, but ordered to take back a cargo of grain, the other from Plymouth with cargo space, but ordered to take back horses. Ten days, costing at least $1,000 a day for each ship, were wasted in a vain effort to change the arrangements. Red tape effectively prevented it. As a result, the horse stalls on the French ship had to be wrecked at a cost of $10,000, while horse stalls were fitted into the British ship at a cost of $40,000 more."

FINDS NEW FOOD FISH.

Washington Bureau Recommends the Cod's Cousin of the Lakes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce today announced that the Bureau of Fisheries had discovered another new edible fish that in the past had been unjustly neglected. It is the "burbet," and is being advertised by the Bureau of Fisheries by illustrated cards on which is printed a picture of the fish and this legend: "The cod's cousin from the Great Lakes—practically no waste. Ready to cook. Recommended by the United States Bureau of Fisheries."

"The burbet," said Secretary Redfield in a statement tonight, "flourishes in the Great Lakes and is plentiful there. The fish is known in some localities as the 'eel pout' and 'eeling,' and 'ling' and 'cusk.' It is prepared for use by skinning, instead of scaling. It has few bones, and the flesh is firm, white, flaky and of good flavor. It ships well. A bulletin for free distribution giving information regarding the fish, and recipes for preparing it, contributed by Mrs. Burleson and Mrs. Redfield, has been issued by the bureau."

FROM WIRE TO A PRESIDENCY

J. Frank Howell, Once Telegrapher, Heads Consolidated Exchange.

The election on Saturday of J. Frank Howell as President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange was announced yesterday. Mr. Howell, who went to the Exchange years ago as an arbitrage telegrapher, had been for twenty years a member of the "Little Board," and one of the Governors of the Exchange.

He was born in Kentucky, and his first work was that of a telegrapher at Morrisonville, Ill. Later he became a dispatcher for the Chesapeake, after which he worked in many cities in the country. The wanderlust left him after he went to work for the Exchange, and he made rapid progress there.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

The most painful duty that ever devolves upon Congress is the finding of means for increasing the national revenue. As a nation we have grown up under the delusion that taxes which are not in sight, but which are paid indirectly, are not felt. The tariff has always been the result of compromises which sought ways to collect duties where they would be least obnoxious. The return of the Democratic Party to power four years ago was taken as an invitation to lower custom duties, which touched alike the rich and the poor, especially when the poor indulged in what are commonly called luxuries, and to substitute income taxes to be paid by the relatively small class known as the well-to-do. The sudden demand of the Administration for approximately $1,800,000,000 of additional revenue placed the Ways and Means Committee in an embarrassing position. Obviously, all of this vast sum could not be levied upon the individuals and corporations in the form of income taxes. It could not all be raised even by including much higher excise levies. It was necessary to resort to customs for a large sum, and the committee responded by ordering a horizontal increase of 10 per cent.

The patchwork blanket which has been superimposed on the existing scheme of taxation is evidently designed to be lifted off again, restoring taxes as they stand today, when the extraordinary expenditures come to an end. From the prospective increases the security markets shrank instinctively when the tentative plan was put forth last week. Granting that such a huge sum, greater than England raised when preparing for her first year of war, must be provided out of current revenues, it is evident that increases must be laid on to the limit of the endurance of many activities, personal and corporate. The danger is that the burden may prove too heavy for some, and may end the activity from which it is planned to collect the revenue. The bill as introduced is admittedly unscientific, crude, and in need of revision. This treatment will be accorded it in the Senate, where it is quite likely that an effort will be made to eliminate some of the worst features, even though striking them from the bill lower the estimated receipts by several hundred million dollars. In banking circles objection is made principally against the retroactive income tax payment, for which little can be said in extenuation; to the great increase in the excess profits tax, which is held to endanger some forms of business, and to the tremendous increase in the supertaxes to be collected on large incomes. Investment dealers argue that if the Government wants to take as high as 46 per cent. of big individual incomes, it must not expect the possessors to subscribe to Government bonds, except to the point that they can profitably enjoy the exemption of the bonds from taxation. The immediate effect of the proposed increases in taxation was severe liquidation of taxable bonds and in stocks. Some of the bond issues which suffered particularly by the selling last week lost from 8 to 11 points. The decline in stocks was but partly made up by a rally at the end of the week.

The gold import movement, which many people had supposed ended with the assumption by the United States of its rôle as banker to the Allies, was resumed unexpectedly in the middle of last week and resulted in a receipt of $48,000,000 in three consignments. Receipts for this gold, at once deposited in the banks, greatly enlarged their loaning ability. The Governor of the Bank of England, who is here with the British Commission, has frankly explained his country's position on this matter. He announced that he had fought for a continuation in power of the Committee on Foreign Exchange at London, and had favored the shipment of further amounts of gold here with a view to keeping money easy at this centre, in which Great Britain is such a heavy borrower. The rise in money rates the week before last was apparently responsible for the order to Ottawa to release more gold to New York, and its immediate effect was a return to lower rates. The amounts which have been advanced to the Allies by this Government thus far fall much below their needs. At last reports the British Government had outstanding here bank loans approximating half a billion dollars, secured by collateral. Under such conditions, a strengthening in money rates may be counted upon automatically to induce further shipments of gold to New York.

Hysteria over the plight of the railroads has given way to calmer thinking without lessening in the public's mind the necessity for an early granting of substantial relief in the form of higher rates. It was hoped when the executives first appeared before the commission with their application that the nature of the emergency might influence the commission to grant temporary relief pending completion of the usual exhaustive study. The hope faded when it was announced that the commission would follow its usual procedure, but the case has been expedited by the commission as much as seemed consistent with its decision. The railroads opened their case last Monday and completed it on Friday. If the shippers are as expeditious when their turn comes with the resumption of the hearings, the commission may be able to reach a decision by July 1, the date set for the new schedules to take effect. Objectors to the increase are relying on the old argument that because the conspicuously prosperous roads do not need more revenue, it is not right to grant relief affecting all for the sake of the weaker lines. Against this the carriers argue that the increases asked for now do not mean a real addition to their income, but would only about offset the inroads made in the past year by higher wages and sweeping increases in the cost of fuel and other supplies.

Business is still feeling the momentum imparted by the vast buying demand opened up when the United States declared war. The distortion in trade movements worked by such a demand, which takes such articles as are needed for military organization without much regard for quality or price, while forcing contraction in the production and sale of other merchandise, is becoming more marked from day to day. There has already been evidenced the great economic changes which come when extravagance is checked by fear of the future. People everywhere have been less inclined to assume new obligations or to continue unnecessary expenditures. The cry of "business as usual" has been raised without affecting this tendency. As pointed out by a distinguished visitor last week, business as usual should not be taken to mean also extravagances as usual. If the contraction in the demand for unnecessary articles comes on gradually enough it will be possible for labor released in this way to be absorbed into other lines without any suffering.

The Government's big financing operation has lost much of its early glamour of patriotism, and has settled down into its real place as a tremendous task, to be accomplished by unselfish co-operation among banks, bond-selling organizations, industrial plants, stores, and individuals. Careless statements made in the first few days that oversubscription was then in sight, failure of the Treasury officials to decide matters of detail before asking for subscriptions, and the plan to take an unduly large share of the first year's expenditures by taxation have all operated against an early closing of the loan books. In the meantime, an organization which will reach into every home in the land is being perfected as an agency which not only will insure the sale of this offering, but which may be counted upon to make the second loan move along more smoothly.

LONDON MARKET REACTS.

Huge Daily War Bill Tends to Check Trading.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 13.—Business on the Stock Exchange was further contracted last week, and there was a reactionary tendency in prices. The Russian situation was the chief cause of dullness, but some influence also was exerted by the announcement of a New South Wales loan of £3,000,000 5 per cent. five to ten-year bonds, and by the disclosure that the recent scale of national expenditure is well above the budget estimate.

Favorable adjustments may occur later, but in the first thirty-five days of the iscal year the national outgo averaged £7,450,000 a day, in contrast with the original forecast of £5,500,000 a day. Thus the new credit of £500,000,000 authorized by Parliament on Wednesday may be absorbed by Aug. 1, or at the rate of £6,400,000 a day. Advances to our allies hav been heavy at £2,000,000 a day, but this rate should now be much reduced, owing to the obligations assumed by the American Government.

British Government securities were well maintained throughout the week, but other investment stocks relapsed and Russian Government, railway, municipal bonds and mining shares gave ground daily. The French national loan declined to below 83. Losses occurred in a great majority of the prominent railway securities, with particular weakness in Grand Trunks in response to fears engendered by the report of the commission which recently investigated the Canadian railroads.

Trade returns for April show an increase in imports of £84,585,000, against an increase in March of £8,471,000 and of £8,900,000 in April last year. Exports show a decrease of £44,280,000, against a decrease of £17,892,000 in March and £623,000 in April last year. The excess of imports over exports last month was £40296,000, against an excess of £20,433,000 in March and £30,774,000 in April a year ago.

BOURSE'S TONE IS DULL.

Russian Securities Are Depressed on Petrograd News.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 13.—The Bourse was dull throughout the week, with few transactions of interest, the market apparently being disposed to await further developments in Russia before engaging in fresh business. The Russia group was depressed by the political news from Petrograd and closed weak. Realization sales were evident in several sections, the banks also losing ground. Coppers were quiet. The War Loan was firm at 87.60. There was a decline in Mexicans following the recent activity. Sterling exchange, 27.15½; New York, 5.70.

The increased activity of German submariens engrosses attention here. Reports that your scientists are on the track of new and effective countermeasures are accepted as reassuring, and results are awaited with keen interest. A census has been ordered by the Government of the present occupations of males from 16 to 60 who are not already mobilized.

Gold holdings of the Bank of France amount to 3,309,895,453 francs; gold held abroad amounts to 1,948,706,126 francs. Advances on account of the war amount to 10,100,000,000 francs; advances to foreign nations to 2,880,000,000 francs.

SHIP STEEL ORDERS GET FIRST PLACE

Mills Co-operate in Plans to Combat U-Boats — Deliveries Months Behind.

A LULL IN SHELLMAKING

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 13.—Shipbuilding will take first place in the call for finished steel. Mills are months behind in deliveries, and where the additional tonnage required is to come from is a mystery. A system of distribution of tonnage will be practiced. This will not augment the tonnage required for shipbuilding. Plate mills have a limited capacity, which has been contracted for more than one year ahead. It will take at least one year to increase the capacity of existing plate mills. The building of wooden vessels will increase demand for ship hardware, especially spikes.

Contracts have been accepted by American shipyards for almost as many vessels for foreign account as for American registry. Many of these are for neutral nations. Whether the Government will countenance the completion of these boats prior to the laying of keels for ships of American registry has not been settled. In the main, each concern is going about its affairs in its own way, as no definite regulation has been made by the Government.

Ship plate is held as high as 8 cents, and 10 cents has been offered for prompt delivery. Japanese agents are among active foreign buyers, and a corps of men is enlisted in attending to deliveries.

Considerable material for shipbuilding is tied up in Western Pennsylvania mills because of lack of freight facilities. Structural material for ships can be had more readily than plate because of the small amount of building going on.

Orders for munitions from the Government have begun filtering in. These are kept secret, however. The clamp is being tightened on publicity of Government orders. Numerous plants employed in manufacture of munitions for the Entente Allies have closed, and new orders are not coming in. It is presumed that the United States Government will take over the contracting of war material for its allies. The subject is being discussed by the Central Committee of Steel Manufacturers.

Foreign Governments will require a large number of shells in the Fall. Most of the steel will be rolled in this country and machined abroad. The United States Government has an understanding with steel producers that steel bars are to be sold at 2.50 cents. The quotation for private consumers is 3.50 to 4 cents, while a majority of the mills are asking 4.50 cents.

Agricultural implement makers are seeking to be put on the preferred list for the purpose of increasing production of farm machinery. Bar mills have increased the allotment of farm machinery plants, but the Government has not recognized the claims of the latter for preferment. Tin-plate makers have been thus favored and tin can plants are enabled to work to capacity.

Sheet and tin-plate bars are very scarce and are selling around $90 a ton and probably will be quoted at $100 before long. Most of the sheet bar production is going to tin-plate mills. Steel billets are more readily obtainable than sheet bars and are selling at $5 to $10 a ton below the latter.

Production in all lines of iron and steel has been increased to a marked degree and will continue until warm weather sets in. The weather to date has aided by its coolness in large output. In spite of this every mill is behind in delivery from three to six months.

Pig iron has taken another advance and is nearing $50 a ton. Basic pig iron was increased $2 a ton during the week and sold at $44, valley. A sale of about 10,000 tons of basic to the Columbia Iron & Steel Company at $42 was instrumental in creating the higher price. The United Alloys Steel Company of Canton, Ohio, is credited with having purchased close to 40,000 tons of basic iron at $40 a ton, valley. The last sale of Bessemer, involving 3,000 tons, was made at $44 a ton.

Buying of Bessemer for export has been resumed, and one Eastern Ohio furnace is making a shipment of 30,000 tons of Bessemer abroad. Atlantic coast melters have been active buyers of pig iron. Malleable pig iron is becoming very scarce. Low phosphorus is selling at a premium. Southern iron has been selling freely in Northern markets and export demand is strong.

The United States Navy Department is in the market for 2,400 tons of 85 per cent. ferro-silicon.

SHIP ONLY CARLOAD LOTS.

Railroads Embargo Smaller Freight Consignments to Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 13.—An embargo against the shipment of freight in less than carload quantities from any point in the United States will be put into effect by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tomorrow morning, and until the congestion is relieved this city will be shut off from receiving a large share of its supply of staple groceries, shoes, millinery, and general merchandise.

The placing of the embargo closes every avenue of trade through which freight in less than carload quantities may be received in Baltimore, as other railroads have taken similar action.

SAYS LATIN AMERICA COULD FEED ALLIES

John Barrett Sees Key to Food Problem in Potential Resources of our Neighbors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Pointing out that the twenty Pan American nations, other than the United States, exported last year the enormous quantity of foods valued at $774,000,000, John Barrett, director of the Pan American Union, said tonight that the countries of Central and South America "can decisively help, if not completely solve, the future food problem facing the United States and its European allies."

This is the conclusion that Mr. Barrett reaches in an advance statement issued tonight preliminary to a special report which he will soon submit to the Council of National Defense, based on data that he has been collecting for several months through the Pan American Union.

As proving the natural capacity of Latin America to supply food products and the dependence of the United States and its European allies upon them, it is pointed out that the twenty countries of Central and South America exported in 1916 to the United States and Europe foods valued at $774,00,000. Of this grand total there went to the United States $371,000,000, and to other countries, principally Great Britain and France, 403,000,000.

While these figures, large as they are, represent only a small part of the total food consumption of the United States and its European allies, they show, Mr. Barrett contends, that the Latin-American countries, with wise co-operation and co-ordination in conserving supplies and extending production, will be able to take care of and provide against that very deficit or shortage in the production of the United States and its allies which might be fatal in an ultimate crisis.

Mr. Barrett believes that no step should be neglected and immediate action should be taken by the United States in aiding the countries of Latin America to increase their food production and to develop their vast unused fertile areas. If necessary and desired, they should be supplied with the necessary capital, agricultural experts, and engineers to accomplish these ends. Their ready co-operation would seem to be assured, he says, because such aid and development would greatly benefit them and would appeal as much to the neutral countries as to those actually in the war.

As an illustration Mr. Barrett calls attention to the unrealized potentialities of banana production. In a few years the consumption in the United States of this fruit, almost the most nutritious that grows, has reached an annual total of over 30,000,000 bunches, valued at $11,000,000. Palatable and nutritious flour can be made from the fruit.

Of beef, Latin America exported in 1916 340,000 metric tons, valued at $104,000,000. This came largely from Argentina and Southern South America, and yet the numerous extensive plateaus and uplands of Central America and Northern South America can be utilized in raising immense herds of cattle. Of wheat, corn, and other grains Latin America exported a total of 6,000,000 metric tons, valued at $100,000,000; of sugar, 3,236,000 tons, valued at $271,000,000; of coffee, 18,000,000 bags, valued at $161,000,000; of chocolate or cocoa, 126,000 tons, valued at $35,000,000; of cocoanuts, $2,500,000; of pineapples, $1,000,000, and yet not one-fourth of the area suited for growing these products is today under cultivation. Again, there is the extraordinary advantage of such a variety of season and climate on both sides of the equator to care for proper rotation and succession of products without diminution of supply.

Finally, the Director advises the appointment of a commission or committee of experts in Latin-American matters to co-operate with the National Council in caring for this problem of food supply and other phases of Latin-American economic co-ordination with the United States in meeting war conditions.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET

No General Commandeering of Steel and Lumber Supplies Expected.

Reassurances to builders and realty interests, startled into a state of paralysis by rumor of a general commandeering of national steel and lumber supplies by the Government, are given in today's issue of The Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Upon high authority the statement can be unqualifiedly made that no general commandeering of either steel or lumber plant capacities in the United States is to take place. The original report had to do with the possible action this country could take should the present plans of the Shipping Board prove to be ineffectual. The plan to take over all the steel plants of the country and all the lumber mills was only considered as a possibility arising from the most extreme sort of emergency.

Every steel and lumber manufacturer in the country worthy of the name is not only pledging his support to the proper authorities at Washington, but is actively and eagerly co-operating with the various departments in meeting national requirements. The steel manufacturers, especially those rolling large orders for the domestic trade, have given the Government every right of way through their plants, and the Government requirements only total between 5 and 10 per cent. of the country's steel rolling capacity. This represents a pushing back of domestic tonnage from three to five months and deals primarily with heavy tonnage for bridges and buildings secondarily and similar work.

A canvass made by The Dow Service Daily Building Reports of the various stores out of which supplies come to builders for moderate sized operations last week showed that there were fairly good stocks of steel on hand sufficient to take care of moderate sized building requirements for the balance of this year at least. On orders for large buildings, which have to be rolled on specification at the mills, delays ranging from eight to twenty months, depending upon tonnage and specification, may be expected, although new steel capacity is being rushed to relieve this pressure. This delay includes estimates for structural steel business now pending or being figured and also includes the setting back of orders approximately five months to give the Government requirements prior place in the mills.

The threatened engrossment of 1,500,000,000 feet of shipbuilding lumber is not a serious factor, because it does not affect general building lines to an extent making for general stagnation in construction. The lumber trade looks for some further reflection from this demand so far as prices are concerned, but increased orders for terra cotta fireproofing material and other lumber substitutes are expected to further stimulate the tendency to proceed with small building operations running as high as six stories.

This disposition is further encouraged by the fact that common brick prices are remaining steady at $10 wholesale and that basic materials, like sand, gravel, glass, asphaltum, plaster, metal lathing, expanded and wire lath, Portland cement, roofing materials, and front brick, continue to remain steady at or near present levels. There is also noted a considerable tendency to concentrate on building alterations.

Careful daily surveys of the suburban districts show that the big building movement of the hour is outside of New York City, where steel and metals constitute an important factor in construction. In cities like Newark, Paterson, Passaic, Elizabeth, Plainfield, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, and territories in Westchester and Orange Counties and Long Island there is a volume of new construction comparatively far in advance of that of New York City.

One important building material supply house holds the view that this suburban building movement and the increasing alteration work going on in the city will be sufficient to keep this market practically normal far into the Winter. Another important building material manufacturer, representing one of the largest industries in the building material line, which called in its salesmen three weeks ago, because it did not care for any new business, is sending them out again today covering the suburban fields in the vicinity of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. This particular company has assurances that it is the disposition of the Government not to check industry by stifling demand, but to keep the materials going and to encourage realty interests to improve their property to help the national building industry to meet its share in the financing of the great war.

Son of General Sigel Speaks at Sons of Veterans' Memorial.

Under the auspices of the Allied Association of Camps and Auxiliaries of the Sons of Veterans, U. S. A., memorial services were held yesterday afternoon at the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument, Riverside Drive and Eighty-ninth Street, for the fighters of the civil war. Franz Sigel, son of the civil war general of that name and commander of the Sons of Veterans, in earnestly advocating a united country without a trace of hyphenism, said that thousands of so-called "German-Americans" had revolted against the autocracy of their fatherland, thus accounting for their presence here. Borough President Marcus M. Marks of Manhattan and Judge William H. Wadhams also spoke.

"Slackers will be few as soon as the true spirit of Americanism permeates the veins of the citizens of this country, as it will when our first troops leave for the front," said Mr. Marks. "In the hour of danger and sacrifice this country will stand firm with all its citizens loyal; there will be no longer men of the North and men of the South, but men of America. Semblances of hyphenism will fade——."

"Hear! Hear!" cried Commander Sigel while the audience, many of whom were Irish and of German extraction, applauded warmly.

SUNDAY DECLINED $200,000 MOVIE JOB

3,339 HIT THE TRAIL

Cheers for Roosevelt — Evangelist "Nominates" Whitman for the Presidency.

The mention of Roosevelt's name in the big Sunday tabernacle almost stampeded the afternoon and evening meetings yesterday when Billy Sunday preached his famous sermon, "Booze; or, Get On the Water Wagon." During intervals in the applause Sunday nominated his friend, Governor Whitman, for the Presidency.

The evangelist preached three times and obtained a single-day record of trail hitters. In the morning there were about 3,000 present, and 589 hit the trail. The afternoon meeting was for men only, and there were 15,000 present, including 600 men from the Bowery, a representation from the McAuley Mission and another from the Doyer Street Mission. In the afternoon, of those who listened to the attack on "booze," 1,093 came forward and promised not to drink. At night Sunday preached the same sermon, and for the first time women were allowed to attend. About 23,000 crowded into the tabernacle, and it is estimated that 10,000 could not get in. The night service brought 1,657 trail hitters.

Sunday was in the best of form. He leaped from side to side on the platform as he hammered the liquor traffic; he marched about showing a parade of drunkards, he waved the flag, and as a climax he stood upon the platform stand.

"For every dollar they pay in taxes the saloons take $40 from the workingman!" he shouted. "If the church members would vote against the saloons the latter would go to hell at once!"

In the course of the afternoon he said that Lincoln, McKinley, and Roosevelt were opposed to saloons. At the mention of Roosevelt's name there was a burst of applause, and then more when the evangelist said: "I am mighty glad Congress is big enough and American enough to say, 'Teddy, you can go to Europe and lead an army.'"

Sunday's attack on drink was supplemented by Warren S. Stone, Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who said that he represented 74,000 men who practiced prohibition. To add to the enthusiasm Homer Rodeheaver sang for the first time here "The Brewers' Big Horses Cannot Run Over Me."

In the course of his remarks Sunday said he had had a chance to go into the movies. "The doctors say I am shortening my life by twenty years," he said. "Well, I don't have to preach. I could go out and in a week make enough to keep my family for a year. I have been offered $200,000 cold just to stand before a movie camera. I said not for $50,000,000. It is not that I am opposed to the movies, but I won't commercialize my mug, and don't you forget it."

Among the delegations who heard Sunday at night was one of 200 sailors from the battleship Brooklyn and another from the Chinese class of the First Methodist Church. The Bible class of the West End Presbyterian Church marched in headed by the Subway Band.

Sunday brought forth cheers when he said: "All credit to your brave Governor for his fight against whisky. They say he will dig his political grave. But, take it from me, he is paving his way to Washington. The whisky interests are trying to control the Federation of Labor. That is their last stand, the last gasp of the whisky gang."

Leading his imaginary parade of drunkards up and down the platform, Sunday suddenly stopped and said: "I hope the day will come when the women of this country will be given the vote. Most of the opposition to woman suffrage comes from the whisky interests."

It was announced last night that Mr. Sunday at 1 o'clock today would meet with the preachers of the various churches throughout the city for a luncheon in the Hotel Savoy.

EATABLE TRADING STAMPS.

Onions and Potatoes Replace the Paper Variety at Ridgewood, L. I.

Some of the merchants of Ridgewood, L. I., have supplemented trading stamps by giving their customers onions and potatoes. One small potato or onion is given with each 10-cent purchase. A bigger potato goes with a bigger purchase. The housewife who makes a $4 purchase gets enough potatoes for a dinner. The merchants report that the scheme is popular.

Incidentally, it is reported that it has become so popular that the proprietors of moving-picture theatres are thinking of giving a small potato and a young onion with each 10-cent ticket.

Campaign for Albany Hospital Unit

The Albany Hospital and Albany Medical College, it was announced yesterday, have united in an effort to form a base hospital medical college unit, and have submitted a plan which has been approved by the Government. The Governors of the hospital have undertaken a campaign to raise $300,000 for the unit and for the tuberculosis work and general development of the hospital. The response to their appeal has been so generous that they expect to have their fund in hand by tomorrow night. Among the contributors from New York City are George F. Baker, $25,000; Charles H. Sabin, $1,000, and Mrs. Frederick Ferris Thompson $1,000. The work of organizing the unit is going on under the direction of Dr. Arthur W. Elting.

Supplying Women in Men's Places.

Employers requiring the services of women to fill the places of men called to war may obtain the services of trained women by applying to the Efficiency Bureau of New York University, according to an announcement made yesterday by Hale H. Huggins, director of the bureau. The bureau, it was said, had enrolled women from the university's School of Commerce and other departments and, would co-operate with the new department of the university, which will open on May 21 to train women to do the work of men absent with the army or navy. The bureau makes no charge for its services.

The Note of Distinction at the Hampton Shops

THE charm of the unusual at the Hampton Shops brings you under its spell the moment you step across the threshhold into the lofty and dignified Entrance Hall.

¶ It is to be accounted for by the fact that even the famous Hampton Reproductions, preserving as they do the very savor of old world Romance, are here regarded as merely incidental to some large and well matured scheme.

¶ It is the intuitive sense of the varying personality of all that goes to make the perfect room, the ability to design harmonious settings, and the subtle skill in arrangement that have made the Hampton Shops supreme masters of all included in that ofttime mis-used term — Interior Decoration.

Facts of Official Record

About Grain Consumed in Making Distilled Beverage Liquors

to correct grossly inaccurate statements as to the quantity of cereals used in the production of distilled beverage spirits.

Here are the facts—

	Production in the U. S. 1916		Used in Making Distilled Liquors 1916
Barley .	183,536,000	" (48 ")	4,480,736	"
Oats . .	1,129,182,000	" (32 ")	9,807	"
Rye . . .	41,884,000	" (56 ")	3,116,612	"
Corn . .	2,717,932,000	" (56 ")	32,069,542	"

Of this quantity 8,000,000 BUSHELS were used in the manufacture of denatured alcohol; 7,000,000 BUSHELS in making alcohol for export; and 5,000,000 BUSHELS in the production of commercial alcohol used in the manufacture of flavoring extracts, perfumery, medicines, chemicals, etc.

The amount of grain used in producing distilled beverage spirits was under 20,000,000 BUSHELS.

THIRTY-FIVE PER CENT. of this amount was returned to the farmers as stock food.

The net consumption was, therefore, only 13,000,000 BUSHELS.

This is less than ONE-THIRD OF ONE PER CENT. of the annual cereal production of the country.

The value of the grain consumed was less than $13,000,000.

From the product of this grain the United States derives a revenue of $102,864,437.

Is there any other way by which material worth $13,000,000 can be utilized to provide this great amount of revenue?

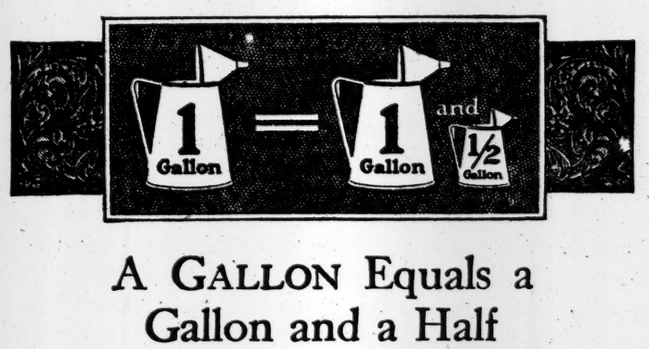
MARMON 34



A GALLON Equals a Gallon and a Half

Most Marmon owners report they are averaging from 12 to 15 miles to the gallon of gasoline under ordinary driving conditions. This, we believe, is considerable more mileage than is obtained from cars that may be compared to the Marmon.

Scientific construction, 1100 pounds lighter weight, motor efficiency, perfect balance and reduced inertia—all these are factors that contribute to this extra mileage.

Also Marmon owners report the tires on the Marmon give from 2000 to 3000 extra miles of service.

Not only is the Marmon wonderfully economical to operate, but it broadens your touring range and increases convenience.
